HOOVER ATTACK ANGERS LEGION

DR. CLYDE L. KING

Appointments Give Pinchot Control of Utility Board

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today took control of the Public Service Commission for the first time in his two terms by naming Dr. Clyde L. King, secretary of revenue, and P. S. Stahlnecker, his secretary, to its membership. The appointments are effective today.

The jobs pay $10,000 each. King drops from $12,000, his present salary, to accept the place, while Stahlnecker moves up from $7,500.

King is now en route to Omaha, Neb., where he was invited to sit as an arbitrator of a milk dispute. Before leaving here last night he said he would act in the "farm strike" only if both sides were ready to co-operate and would accept his decision.

HOLDS 4-TO-3 MARGIN

Pinchot has waged a steady fight on the commission for more than 10 years, charging that it was too friendly to utilities of the state and had saddled the commonwealth with excessive rates.

He met successive defeats, but reopened his attack six weeks ago. The rapid turn of events give him 4 to 3 control of the commission now, and assures him 5 to 2 domination October 1.

Pinchot forced the resignation of W. D. B. Ainey, chairman for Hungry Mob Raids Store In Toledo

TOLEDO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Shouting for food, more than 300 members of the Lucas County Council of Unemployed, raided a downtown grocery store today.

Police were powerless. One woman who had grabbed a sack of flour slapped a patrolman's ears.

Blonde Remanded In Holdup Inquiry

Mary Howard, 22, of Carlton street, the platinum blonde arrested as a suspect in connection with a holdup, was still in jail today. She was remanded after a hearing in Central Police Court. Detectives said they wanted more time to investigate.

Gilbert Martin, 26, of Warrington avenue, was turned back to the East End police. The Rev. Isaiah Hawn, pastor of Christ Reformed Church, has testified that Martin held him up while Miss Howard looked on from a nearby car.

KLINE HOME, IGNORES CLEANUP

Mayor Knows Nothing About Gambling, Vice Resorts

Mayor Charles H. Kline, home from his vacation today, declared he "knows nothing" of gambling dens, speakeasies and vice resorts, despite the crusade begun by Judge F. P. Patterson and carried on vigorously by county detectives.

The Mayor indicated he contemplated no action.

Meanwhile from New York came word that Mayor Joseph V. McKee, successor to Jimmy Walker, had ordered a cleanup of gambling houses and slot machines, while in Philadelphia Major J. Hampton Moore launched a campaign to wipe out the numbers racket.

IGNORES CLEANUP

Buttonholed in the corridor of the City-County Building, the Mayor was asked whether he would order an investigation of resorts which Judge Patterson had flayed constables for failing to report.

He replied:

"I have just returned from my vacation and I don't know anything about them."

Informed that Judge Patterson had received numerous complaints of speakeasies operating in the city, one of them within a stone's throw of the Oakland Police Station, the Mayor said:

"I used to get plenty of these complaints myself when I was on the bench."

"Did any of these complaints result in a cleanup?"

Laughingly the Mayor rejoined:

"I don't know."

Then he disappeared within the portals of his private office.

Hill district vice resorts were closed and dark early today when county detectives started out to collect evidence following a pep meeting in the Courthouse at midnight.

LID GOES ON

News of Chief George Murren's midnight meeting with his entire force spread rapidly through the Hill and in "hot spots" reported to Judge Patterson and those that had not been previously closed turned out the lights and locked up.

Last night's meeting was the second in a week, or since Judge Patterson scored constables for laxity last Tuesday. Armed with a long list, the judge ordered the constables to make an investigation and report back.

Acting on additional complaints from Judge Patterson, the county detectives staged four raids yesterday. Two alleged disorderly houses in Elm street, a poolroom in Wylie avenue, a few doors from the Courthouse, and a Soho restaurant were raided. In the latter two slot machines were confiscated.

Gus Ellis, one of the three city detectives who in his spare time is a constable—or vice versa—also was active over the week-end in the Twelfth Ward. Eleven alleged booze joints were visited and the proprietors arrested. They were, however, not charged with violating the Snyder act but with keeping disorderly houses.

Beaten 'Mystery Man' May Be Col. Robins

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Chief of Police Will D. Lee today asked Memphis newspapers for a detailed description of Col. Raymond Robins, after a man who resembled the missing welfare worker and prohibition advocate was brought to the police station.

Lee said the man, who styled himself "Col. Raymond," was found "badly beaten" near here, but he did not reveal the circumstances. He indicated the man was found today.

Beyond the request for information concerning the missing friend of President Hoover, Lee would not discuss the case. He said:

"The man looks like pictures of Col. Robins. That is all we have to work on."

He described the man as not critically hurt.

Detective Lee Quianthy, Jr., who has the man under supervision, would not say where he was held, but disclosed he was "about 60" and "could not explain his appearance at Memphis nor give us any information about himself."

Other officers expressed the belief the man is being held at a boarding house or hotel until investigators find out more about him.

RITES THURSDAY FOR VICKERMAN

Funeral services for John W. Vickerman, head of the County Department of Elections, churchman and editor, who died early today in his home, 734 Clinton place, Bellevue, will be held Thursday afternoon in the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church. Dr. Ralph B. Urmy, pastor, will have charge. The hour will be announced later.

Blood poisoning complicated with pneumonia claimed the militant dry and Independent political leader after a 10-day fight.

Three weeks ago Mr. Vickerman was bitten by a mosquito while at the camp of the Iron City Fishing Club, Georgian Bay. An infection developed. He was treated by a physician and thought little of the incident until he arrived home two weeks ago, when his arm and leg became infected. He was ordered

VON PAPEN DEFIED BY REICHSTAG

Non-Confidence Vote Precedes Decree Of Dissolution

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Caught napping by the Reichstag opposition which passed a motion of non-confidence before he could serve a decree of dissolution, Chancellor von Papen found himself today in a position of great uncertainty.

He will remain in charge of the government for at least several weeks longer, however, for the Supreme Court will be asked to decide the constitutionality of the events which made today's session of the Reichstag one of the most dramatic in a long time.

NO OBJECTION

A single dissenting voice could have forestalled consideration of a Communist motion coupling a declaration of non-confidence with a demand that the government's last emergency decree be rescinded. But the government had not expected this turn of events and there was no objection to the motion.

Realizing too late what was going on, the Chancellor sprang to the rostrum with his decree of dissolution, but the Speaker waved him aside, asserting the vote would be completed before anything else was taken up. It carried by 513 to 32, with 50 members abstaining.

CHANCELLOR'S STAND

The Chancellor maintained that the vote was the act of a Parliament already dissolved, and therefore ineffective. Hermann Goering, the National Socialist Speaker, said the decree would be ignored and the Reichstag would be summoned for tomorrow.

Then he reconsidered and agreed to submit the issue to the Supreme Court.

It was understood that several states would contest the legality of the dissolution, probably Brunswick, Mecklenberg and Oldenburg, inasmuch as the Reichstag itself cannot appear while its existence is questioned by the government.

The litigation probably will require several weeks.

WIDOW BOUND BY GUNMEN

On her lonely farm in Kilbuck Township, near Glenfield, a widow was robbed and bound with wire today by two gunmen. They tied up the hired hand also.

The gunmen, one young, one middle-aged, forced both victims into the house and after binding then with bell wire, ransacked the house for an hour. In a trunk which they forced open they found $130. From the widow, Mrs. Margaret Farmer, 47, they took $7. The hired man, Sam Richey, 26, was not robbed.

"If I didn't do this he'd kill me. We won't hurt you."

Mrs. Farmer's farm is a part of the Holy Ghost College property.

PLANES HUNT 'FLYING FAMILY'

Hutchinsons Feared Dead in Waters Off Greenland

International News Service.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 12.—Two airplanes today joined in a widespread search for the lost trans-Atlantic amphibian City of Richmond, forced down off the coast of Greenland while carrying George R. Hutchinson, his wife, two small daughters and a crew of four from America to Europe.

With more than a full day elapsed since the American plane went down in a sea jammed with treacherous icebergs, hope dwindled fast for the safety of its eight passengers. A thorough search of the area about the spot where the craft was forced down revealed nothing.

PLANES IN SEARCH

Latest news of the futile search was contained in a statement of the Greenland government's representative here. He said:

"The Ministry of Marine received a message from the Danish war sloop, Heidbjoern, stating 'The British trawler, Lord Talbot, reported at 7 a. m. the search was without results.'

"The Danish Marine seaplane 84 left Julianehaab (Greenland) at noon, flying along the coast to Angmagsalik to search for Hutchinson.

"The Heidbjoern states the British explorers, Riley and Chapman, of the Watkins expedition, started from Angmagsalik on a motorboat search.

"The seaplane 84 is connected with the Danish polar epxedition under Knud Rasmussen (noted explorer) and piloted by Lieut. Rasmussen. It was not known whether Knud was aboard."

The second airplane participating in the search was the American motion picture plane Flamingo, flown by Ernest Udet, noted German aviator. Its takeoff was reported in dispatches from Berlin, European headquarters of Universal Pictures, its owners.

PLANE DOWN

The plane went down at 3:10 p. m., Greenwich time, (11:10 a. m. E. D. T.) yesterday, at a spot between 20 and 30 miles southwest of Angmagsalik, Greenland, its immediate destination.

Experienced Arctic seamen said that the Americans would certainly perish, even if they succeeded in reaching land, unless they were fortunate enough to be found almost immediately.

The Hutchinsons were forced down while on their way to Angmagsalik from Julianehaab, about 440 miles distant, in their leisurely trip to Europe from America. The plane had followed the coastline, it was believed, and had been forced down possibly owing to lack of fuel.

The radio station at Angmagsalik, Greenland, picked up distress signals sent out Sunday by Hutchinson when he was forced to make an emergency landing.

Genuine Americanism Can Restore Prosperity, Says W. R. Hearst

THE DAILY NEWS REPORTS in all papers, Republican and Democratic, show exactly how Hoover prosperity—the 'round the corner kind—is operating.

Stocks are going up and wages are going down.

Railroad statements continue very discouraging, but railroad stocks have risen on the stock exchange.

And while the railroad stocks increase in speculative value the wages of railroad employes are being cut at this very day and hour.

The railroads have been especially favored by the government. They have been allowed to raise rates. They have been allowed to effect combinations more or less menacing to shippers.

If there is any Republican prosperity anywhere, either here or around the corner, the railroads ought to be enjoying it.

But the railroads feel compelled to make a second cut in wages, making the total cut twenty per cent.

WHAT HAS BECOME of the billions supplied by the government through the Federal Reconstruction Corporation to the various banks?

Why are not those billions being used to better effect in helping industry and stimulating business activity?

The truth is the banks are not using this money for the extension of industry and the increase of employment.

They are using it to buy securities and to balloon the market.

As a matter of unfortunate fact, the banks have called loans instead of extending them and the consequences of this policy of contraction have been to compel those who owe the banks money to raise the money by throwing their securities on the market at any price.

That procedure accounts for the appallingly low levels to which sound interest-bearing securities recently sank.

Then when securities were low enough the banks stepped in and with the money supplied to them by the government through the Federal Reconstruction Corporation proceeded to buy up those securities which their policy of contracting credit had forced their debtors to sacrifice at a fraction of their value.

NATURALLY THE BIG BANKERS are grateful to an administration which supplies them with money with which to speculate so securely and so profitably.

Those Wall Street gentlemen point to the rise in stock prices and declare that this is an indication of reviving prosperity and a reason for retaining Mr. Hoover, the apostle of around the corner prosperity, in power.

Then what kind of an indication is the increased number of men out of employment, and what kind of indications are the general twenty per cent pay cut of the railroads and other wage reductions throughout the country?

What kind of prosperity do these sad conditions indicate?

Is that a genuine American prosperity which only Wall Street enjoys?

WHAT DO THE LABORING people and employes generally throughout the nation care about the price of stocks in Wall Street if jobs are getting scarcer and scarcer and wages are going down and down and down?

What do the legitimate investors who lost their securities long ago because of the Wall Street collapse and the banking contraction care how the friends of the administration balloon the market between now and election day?

What do bankrupt business men, what do impoverished industrialists, what do striking and

VETS IN RAGE OVER B.E.F. CHARGES

Outbreak Feared When Hurley Talks; Fight To Balk Censure

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12.—In a sensational revolt against conservative leaders, 50,000 World War veterans opened the fourteenth annual convention of the American Legion here today ready to go on record for outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, immediate cash payment of the bonus, and possibly, censure of President Hoover for using federal troops to expel bonus marchers from Washington.

The attitude of liberal legionnaires, in lining up a majority of the convention for repeal of prohibition, stunned conservative leaders. All hopes of avoiding a prohibition row on the floor of the convention were abandoned and friends of the Hoover administration privately conceded the repeal resolution would be adopted.

VETS INFURIATED

The bonus contest, settled except for a formal vote, will end in the convention going on record, 5 to 1, for immediate cash payments.

The proposed censure of the President on the bonus riot issue was developing so bitter a battle it can be settled only on the floor of the convention. The President's defense of the use of troops against helpless, jobless veterans served only to infuriate the legionnaires and undo months of labor that otherwise might have ended in pigeon-holing the issue.

Republican leaders of the Legion were making desperate efforts to stave off the censure resolution. Led by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, who came here ostensibly as a guest of the Legion, they WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—President Hoover has moved to forestall censure by the American Legion, meeting in Portland, Ore., today in national convention, for the forcible eviction of the bonus army from the national capital.

The President selected the eve of the Legion's conclave to defend the use of federal troops by making public a report by Attorney General Mitchell embodying a stinging attack on the B. E. F. as being wholly unrepresentative of the veterans of the World War.

The White House "press release" was a personal appeal by the President to the Legion against censure of his administration for the fateful events of July 28 when the bonus army was routed from Washington.

Mitchell's report summarized an investigation ordered by the President into the incidents leading to the bonus riots on July 28.

Mr. Hoover said the "extraordinary proportion of criminal, Com-

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12.—Hello everybody—here's a war and here's a yarn.

It opens up full blast on the front pages across the nation and on the convention floor of the American Legion right here in Portland.

I had a hunch that it was going to happen, and that's why I beat it out here without orders or instructions—just to be on the job when the fireworks started.

Stand by now and hold on to your hat, because this week you are witnessing the grand opening of the grand offensive which is to continue with increasing ferocity until the political Armistice Day on November 8.

Army Wields Fire and Sword

Just a month ago President Hoover hurled the Secretary of War, the Chief of Staff and the United States Army against hungry, homeless, jobless veterans and their wives and children in Washington, and drove them out of the capital of the nation they fought for.

He did it with fire and sword and tear gas and tanks.

Today he justifies his action.

President Hoover's ''justification'' is based on the report of the Attorney General that 829 ex-service men among the 40.000 that passed through the bonus camps in Washington have been convicted at one time or another of violating the laws of the country.

The violations range from felonious homicide, of which seven are reported, to drunkenness, of which 95 of the ex-service men had been found guilty at some time or another.

Other laws violated to bring up the grand total of 829 dangerous convicts include breaking traffic regulations, vagrancy and spitting on the sidewalk, which comes under the heading of disorderly conduct.

This constitutes the ''extraordinary proportion of criminal'' elements which President Hoover sees in the report—the ''extraordinary proportion'' which justified the calling out of the armed forces of the nation.

Small Percentage of Offenders

As I figure it, the proportion of 829 ''convicts'' out of 40,000 men that passed through the camps, is something under 3 per cent.

Now let's see just how bad that is.

Why, President Harding's own cabinet, of which Mr. Hoover was Secretary of Commerce, had a higher criminal record than that—yes, sir—at least 10 per cent of Mr. Harding's cabinet was convicted and sent to the penitentiary and served its time behind the bars—and it wasn't parking in front of a fire plug, either.

The ''extraordinary proportion of criminal element'' was discovered by the Department of Justice, which Mr. Hoover says he directed to ''exhaustively investigate'' the so-called bonus riot.

After a month's exhaustive investigation, the Department of Justice sleuths revealed that there were 69 ex-service men who had been found guilty of vagrancy.

I'm no lawyer, much less an Attorney General, but I always thought anybody who had no permanent address and was without visible means of support was guilty of vagrancy.

Why, the whole doggone bonus army were vagrants.

And so are 10,000,000 other unemployed American citizens.

No jobs, no homes, just vagrants.

The vagrancy of the United States of America is the thing that sent the veterans to Washington.

That's what they went to Washington to explain.

They don't want to be vagrants.

The Department of Justice did not have to ''exhaustively investigate'' to find that 69 of the veterans were vagrants.

The thousands that tramped to Washington went there to tell the President and the Congress that they were vagrants and that they were tired of being vagrants, and they wanted to know then and still want to know why they are vagrants and whose fault it is and how long they must continue to wander around the country without a permanent address or visible means of support.

Congress saw them, but did nothing.

Belonged to Wrong B. E. F.

The veterans were in the wrong B. E. F. The other was the Bankers' Expeditionary Force.

Were they received and did they collect?

In President Hoover's crime chart of the convicted ex-service men of the bonus army is one item which will bring the blush of shame to most veterans.

Out of that destitute 40,000 that tramped to Washington 49 were guilty of violating the liquor laws—you know, drinkin' and carrying on like that with alcohol.

The other 39,000 and some veterans must have been dry, and that's just what's worrying the delegates to this convention—these Legionnaires who have been trying to do something about the beer business ever since they came back from France and found it had been changed from a business to a racket.

Those 829 convicts which brought the criminal record of the bonus army up to a lower percentage than the criminal record of President Harding's Cabinet—those 829 convicted veterans—are not the only ones that come under the ban of the President's investigation.

There were some 250 others who had been charged with crimes or misdemeanors, but had been able to prove themselves innocent.

Sixty-Three Accused of 'Suspicion'

As for example, 63 culprits who had been charged with the crime of ''suspicion and investigation''—those are the words from the Attorney General's crime chart—and, although I never heard of this crime outside of the Cheka in Soviet Russia, I presume it must be a legal one because it is itemized in those words by the Attorney General of the United States.

I can't quite understand why these 250 men who proved their innocence were itemized in the ''police record'' category and stigmatized by President Hoover as constituting part of the ''extraordinary proportion of criminal element.''

The legal presumption is that those men are innocent in the eyes of the law and society.

Many men have faced the bar of justice on any number of charges from fraud to shady business practice, but have been able to clear themselves and after that have reached the ranks of the high and mighty.

Poor Sportsmanship by Cabinet

In law, the slate is wiped clean and innocence established: in cricket—well in cricket it's not considered the sporting thing to do to bring up the trial in which they proved their innocence and refer to it as a police record or a criminal past.

It just occurs to me that the Cabinet of this President of the United States is the last source from which such intimation should come.

There's another thing I can't understand about the report.

It reveals that the government had all of its legal and crime detection machinery working and it found the ''extraordinary proportion of criminal element'' in the person of 829 ex-service men who had been convicted of crimes.

If these men were such dangerous criminals, why were they not arrested in Washington?

The department of the government charged with protecting the country from criminals and enforcing the law reveals today that it knew these 829 dangerous criminals were in Washington.

If it was dangerous for them to be in Washington, why were they not arrested?

'Criminals' Scattered Over U. S.

If the administration considered this ''extraordinary proportion of criminal element'' a menace to life and property in Washington, why then did the administration scatter these dangerous criminals throughout the peaceful communities and neighboring states?

I wonder how dangerous those veterans were.

The chief of police in Washington reported no additional robberies or murders in Washington while the veterans were there.

There was no violence between the veterans and police until the agents of the federal government were ordered onto th scene.

Brig. Gen. Pelham Glassford, the Washington chief of police, handled everything all right without violence and without trouble until the administration ordered Treasury agents to start the eviction.

Gov. Ritchie in Maryland managed to handle the fleeing men, women and children without the use of armed forces. There was no violence or trouble in Maryand under ordinary police supervision.

No violence or trouble happened in Virginia when veterans fled southward from terror of the night attack of the United States Army on their camp.

Gov. Pinchot in Pennsylvania seemed to be able to manage the veterans with ordinary police methods in his state.

Why, even that talkative little ex-prize fighter of a Mayor of that little mountain town in Pennsylvania to which thousands of the fugitives fled—he handled the whole business alone, without bloodshed, without violence, without trouble.

Just a constable's job.

But in Washington—in the District of Columbia, in that 10-mile square of non-political federal neutrality—it was a case of nerves and jitters—It was violence and terror and tragedy under the handling of President Hoover's cabinet—the Secretary of War, the Attorney General and his federal marshals, the Secretary of the Treasury and his Treasury agents [illegible] Secretary of Labor with his Bureau of Emmigration

Criticizes President Hoover

I don't believe President Hoover yet understands or realizes the enormity of what happened that night a month ago in Washington, when he dined with friends at the White House and retired early while the light from the flames of the burning veterans' camp in Anacostia reflected red on the night sky over Washington and on the windows of the White House.

I base this belief on the following words taken from his public statement today. He says a large portion of the veterans ''returned to their homes.''

He does not understand that they have no homes to return to.

They are homeless.

They are jobless.

They are hungry.

They are wanderers.

No visible means of support and no permanent address.

Just several thousand of the army of 10,000,000 American vagrants.

The only ones I know of that reached home are the two that are planted across the river from Washington in the sacred soil of Arlington.

They were shot and killed the day of the Washington riot.

In the uniform and the service of their country, they earned those narrow homes in Arlington with full honors and respect. These two American veterans joined the honorable company of the nations' soldier dead, one month before their living comrades were stigmatized as ''the extraordinary proportion of criminal element.''

Strange, but did you notice that President Hoover in his public statement accompanying the reply expresses no note of sympathy or regret for the killing of those two American boys that now lie in honored graves in Arlington?

No sympathy; no regret; only justification.

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—In a desperate political effort to save the Hoover administration from censure, on the eve of the American Legion convention, Attorney General Mitchell has compiled an amazing report on the eviction of the bonus army from Washington last July, which so bristles with glaring inaccuracies of fact that it would read like a burlesque but for the ghastly tragedy which envelopes the whole incident.

Made public in Washington today, with the obvious view of warding off the impending blow to re-election hopes at Portland, the Attorney General's version of the midnight routing and burning out of the miserable ex-service men from their wretched hovels in Pennsylvania avenue, and on the Anacostia flats, has fanned again to flames the controversy over the President's whole handling of the half-starved bonus seekers, while in Washington in midsummer in a vain hope to collect at once the bonus which the government had promised to pay them later.

Many of the charges hurled at these splendid veterans of the World War, by the Attorney General of the United States, are wholly at variance with the general public conception of the entire bonus incident.

Charge Already Refuted by Leaders

Attorney General Mitchell makes a sweeping allegation that ''a considerable number of the marchers were not in the military service during the World War,'' a charge which has been repeatedly denied by the responsible leaders of the bonus army, who have explained to the apparent satisfaction of everybody, save perhaps the President and the Attorney General, the great care taken in registering applicants for shelter in the bonus camps in Washington. Non-service men were rigidly excluded.

The Attorney General also makes the sweeping and astounding charge that 22 per cent of the bonus marchers, of whom fingerprints were taken, were men of criminal record, or 1,069 out of 4,723 thus subjected to investigation.

The purport of the attorney general's charge is that at the time of the eviction of the bonus marchers from their camps in Washington, by United States troops ordered out by President Hoover, most of the bona fide ex-service men had left the city, and that those who remained, and who were burnt out of their shacks in Pennsylvania avenue, elsewhere in Washington, and on the Anacostia flats, were largely imposters masquerading as ex-service men, Communists, and men of criminal record.

Hines Admitted 90 Per Cent Were Vets

Director Hines, of the Veterans' Bureau, through which funds were made available by Congress for the voluntary return of the bonus marchers to their homes, was quoted in the newspapers at the time as saying that '''90 per cent of the bonus army were ex-service men.''

That was a damaging admission. Attorney General Mitchell seeks to shatter it by declaring, ''General Hines made no such statement.''

It is significant, however, in this connection, that of the two men killed in Pennsylvania avenue in a riot with the police, on the afternoon of July 28. William J. Huska, and Eric Carlson, were both proved to EX-SERVICE MEN OF HONORABLE RECORD and both were BURIED IN ARLINGTON WITH FULL MILITARY HONORS.

It is also pertinent to recall, in this connection, that the three who were subsequently indicted in connection with the bonus riots, were ALL EX-SERVICE MEN.

It is unfortunate for the reception which the report of Attorney General Mitchell is certain to receive, that of the members of the bonus army who have emerged as identities in the news, ALL WERE WITHOUT A SINGLE EXCEPTION EX-SERVICE MEN.

Some radicals were arrested in a radical demonstration at the White House, but although this incident occurred while the bonus army was in Washington nobody in this city thought for a moment of seeking to connect the two.

Discharge Papers Shown Willingly

This writer has personally come into contact with certainly not less than 200 of the men of the bonus army, both before and since the eviction.

In nearly all cases, in the course of conversation about the war service of the men, he has been shown their discharge papers. In no instance was there any reluctance to show them.

In many instances this writer encountered ex-soldiers who had seen service at the front in territory familiar to the writer, who also saw service there as a war correspondent. A smattering of broken French, a glib knowledge of remote and little-known French towns, invariably stamped the bonus marcher as a veteran who had served overseas.

In no instance that came within the personal knowledge of this writer was he ever made suspicious of the war service of one of these men. So far as this writer knows, of a fairly comprehensive acquaintance with them, the bonus marchers were practically 100 per cent upstanding American citizens who had served their country in an hour of peril, and many of whom had been wounded in action.

Mitchell Softens "Criminal" Charge

So far as the charge of men of criminal record is concerned, there were doubtless such in the A. E. F.

No large group of men is free from men of criminal record. But doubtless also there were more out-of-town pickpockets in attendance at the inauguration of President Hoover than there were radicals and criminals among the bona fide ex-service men who came to Washington in their misery and despair to collect what the government had already promised to pay them.

Although charging that a ''very much larger proportion of the bonus army than was realized at the time, consisted of ex-convicts, persons with criminal records, radicals, and non-service men,'' Attorney General Mitchell hastens to add—with due regard, doubtless to the delicacy of the political factor involved—''on the other hand, a very considerable number were genuine ex-service men of good intentions and clean records.''

That must be regarded as a clever use of what Theodore Roosevelt would have called ''weasel words,'' which suck the meaning out of other words.

Demonstrates His Acrobatic Skill

On Page One of this statement the Attorney General says:

"A considerable number of the marchers were not in military service during the World War."

But on Page Three he takes a verbal hand-spring, and with a remarkable exhibition of ground and lofty word tumbling he says:

"On the other hand, a very considerable number were genuine ex-service men of good intentions and clean records."

Attorney General Mitchell couldn't possibly be considered honest in the implications in both these statements.

Indeed, the statement as a whole is as incapable of holding water as a colander.

Speaking of the routing of the bonus marchers from their shacks and half-demolished buildings in lower Pennsylvania avenue, on the afternoon of July 28, and later at Anacostia, where the shacks at both places were burned, the Attorney General says:

"THE CAUSE OF THE OUTBREAK OF THE FIRE IN THE PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE AREA IS NOT KNOWN."

Soldiers Applied Torch to Shacks

If the cause of these fires is not known to the learned Attorney General, he must be the only person in Washington thus drenched in colossal ignorance of a commonplace.

That fire in the Pennsylvania avenue area was started by the soldiers.

The reason this writer is able thus to state this as a fact without qualification is because he was there, on the scene, and saw the soldiers going about applying the torch. If the Attorney General of the United States still feels ignorant, he can ask the people of Washington. Many of them saw the soldiers burning these shacks.

This writer arrived at the scene as the fire engines, with screaming sirens, threaded their raucous way through the crowds of people, going home from their work, who were caught on the outskirts of the area around which police and troops had thrown their lines. A police badge admitted the writer into the heart of the area.

This writer saw these fire engines stand idly by, the firemen watching the blaze as it spread over a whole block of ground. They were there to prevent it from spreading, not to extinguish it. Here were the soldiers' shacks, and the half-demolished buildings which were being torn down to clear the ground for what is known as the ''Mall triangle development.''

Chance to Shift Blame Seized

Not only did this writer see the soldiers firing those shacks, but he saw one woman trying in vain to rescue some articles of wearing apparel which she had drying on a line. She was shoved back, and her dress burnt up, too.

When it was discovered later that a great number of magnificent shade trees, some of them doubtless a hundred years old, had been killed by these fires, the authorities were glad to SHIFT THE BLAME FOR THE CONFLAGRATION ONTO THE BONUS MARCHERS. Attorney General Mitchell is more ingenious—he suspects the exploding gas bombs.

The troops burnt these shacks in order that to their glowing embers the bonus marchers could not return. That was well-known to everybody on the scene at the time.

Attorney General Mitchell says of what he calls the ''Communist Camp,'' on Twelfth street, Southwest, just south of the white marble Department of Agriculture, that it ''was not disturbed by the troops but was voluntarily evacuated by the marchers.''

Gas Dense In Residential Area

Attorney General Mitchell is again in error. This writer, after leaving the Pennsylvania avenue area, proceeded in a taxicab with another reporter, to the Twelfth street area. The gas from the bombs thrown by the troops was so dense in this residential district, as we passed through, that all the occu-

JEAN HARLOW'S ATTORNEY TO EXPLAIN

Will of Motion Picture Executive to Be Opened

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The suicide of Paul Bern was still a mystery today as officers strove to fill in missing chapters leading up to the death of the motion picture producer husband of Jean Harlow, screen actress.

Letters from Bern to Dorothy Millette, missing "other woman" in his life, were found in her effects here yesterday but filled only a few pages.

More was expected from Los Angeles, where Bern shot himself a week ago today, with the probable opening of his last will and the promise of a statement from Mendel Silberberg, attorney for Miss Harlow.

SEEK 'OTHER WOMAN'

Authorities of Sacramento and San Francisco sought Miss Millette or her body. She was believed drowned either in the muddy Sacramento River between the two cities, herself a suicide, or if still alive, fleeing from possible recognition.

Bern and Miss Millette were definitely linked in four letters found as police opened baggage left at a San Francisco hotel room from which the woman checked out the day after the producer's death. She vanished that night or the following morning from the river steamer Delta King, en route to Sacramento.

Three of the letters were from Bern, the other from his secretary, Irene Harrison.

The letters revealed Bern had been solicitous of Miss Millette's welfare and interested in supplying her with funds. He sent "love and best wishes" in a letter written to "Miss Dorothy Millette" in New York City six months before he shot himself and four months before he married Miss Harlow. He wrote:

"If you do change to another place we will find some way of supplying you with funds in a manner convenient for you."

The letter was addressed, on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stationery, to "Hotel Algonquin, New York City."

LETTERS FROM BERN

He said in a preceding paragraph he had read with "great interest" she was "contemplating a trip to San Francisco," and added:

"Of course I cannot give you any advice because you yourself can be the only person to know what is best."

He recommended the hotel at which he registered last May 4.

In one of the other letters written two years ago Bern discussed business and financial conditions briefly, adding:

"Consequently, I don't think that you should come out here now."

The third letter, dated two weeks previously, said:

"I was really very happy to get your note of the 16th, because it is so very long since I heard from you. Particularly was I happy to know that you are in relatively good health."

The letter from Bern's secretary, dated last May 13, and addressed to Miss Millette in San Francisco, announced the enclosure of an order for $160, "due on May 14." It stated:

"Mr. Bern has already left on his vacation, but I am at the office in the meantime, and if I can help you in any way at any time, please don't hesitate to let me know."

On a blotter of Miss Millette's writing pad, stamped in reverse order, was the one, engimatic word—"justification." There was no indication of what the word referred to, but police expressed the opinion it was blotted from a note or letter written shortly before the woman left the hotel.

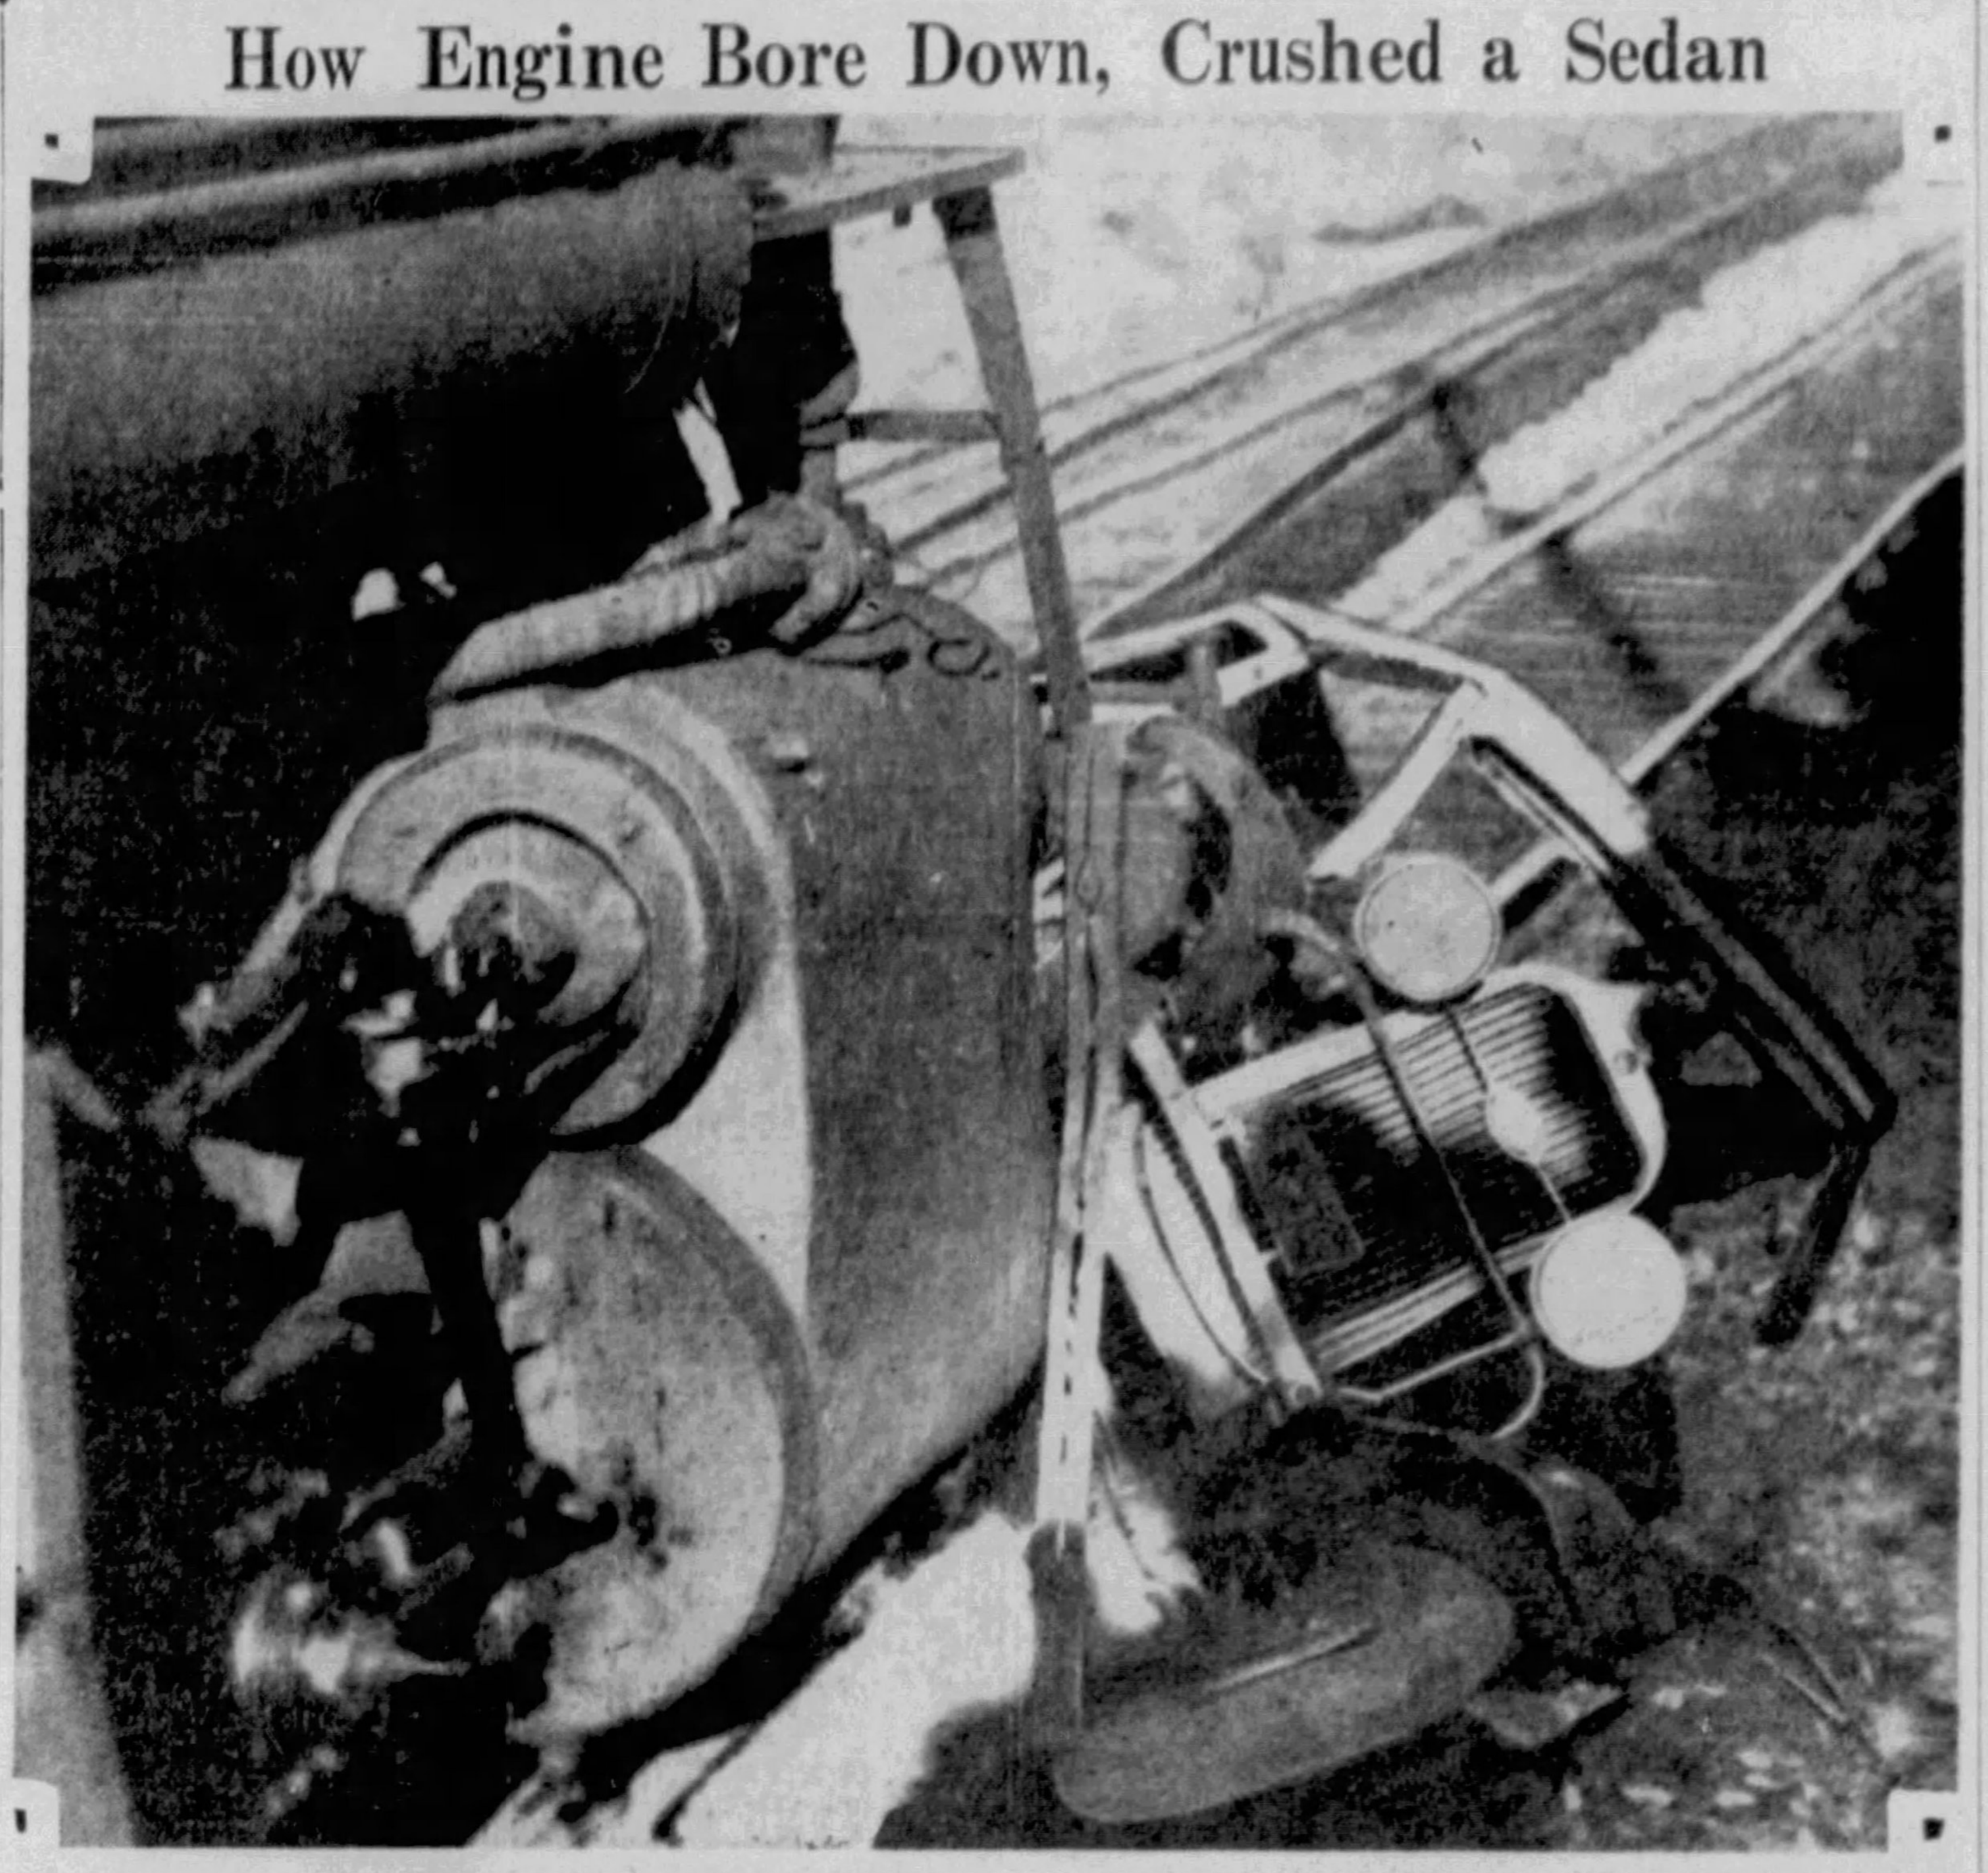
How Engine Bore Down, Crushed a Sedan



MRS. ANNA POTERSNAK'S AUTO CRUSHED BENEATH THE CYLINDER OF A FREIGHT ENGINE ON THE P. & L. E. RAILROAD

The wrecked auto from which Mrs. Potersnak, 1510 Elmwood avenue, Port Vue, two other women and her two little daughters hurriedly escaped just in time to avoid injury or death before an approaching train. Arthur A. Abbott made this picture.

CHILD RESCUED ON CROSSING

A 3-year-old girl was pulled from the path of a freight train as she tried to retrieve a box of candy from a stalled automobile, and three women leaped to safety late yesterday when their machine was struck by a Pittsburgh and Lake Erie freight train at Rebecca street crossing, McKeesport. The engine and tender of the train were derailed and the automobile was destroyed by fire.

Breaking away from her mother, Mrs. Albert Potersnak, of 1501 Elmwood avenue, Port Vue, after she had been carried to safety when the machine, driven by the woman, stalled and drifted back onto the tracks, Bernice, 3, was rescued by a bystander. Mrs. Potersnak, another daughter, Virginia, 8; Anna Lasich and Helen Yesh, both of Aliquippa, jumped to safety as the train neared the machine.

As the child was pulled to safety the train struck the machine, dragging it 200 feet before it burst into flames. Traffic on the west bound track of the Monongahela Division was blocked for nearly three hours.

STALIN MURDER PLOT FOILED

LONDON, Sept. 12.—(INS.)—A plot to assassinate Joseph Stalin, Soviet dictator, has been discovered by government agents in Moscow, a Central News dispatch from Warsaw, Poland, said today.

Discovery of the plot was followed by wholesale arrests and imprisonment of 120 persons, including Communist army officers. Commissar of War Voroshiloff allegedly was implicated in the plot, according to the report.

Stalin, it was said, hurriedly returned to Moscow after the plot became known.

JUDGE PROBING 'PROTECTION'

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Judge Harry S. McDevitt said today he and William O. Connelly, chief of county detectives, had learned that "identification cards signed by police officials and giving the bearer immunity from arrest are being carried by numbers writers."

Returning from Moyamensing Prison where he questioned 15 men, recently arrested on charges of numbers writing, the judge said he had begun a "searching investigation." He said he and Chief Connelly had learned that the "writers" obtained the cards from "bankers." He said:

"We have heard many charges that police officials are in collusion with numbers racketeers, but we've never had anything definite to go on. Now we have."

PARLEY TODAY ON P. O. STRIKE

A conference of a committee of the Chamber of Commerce and representatives of the hoisting engineers at the new postoffice was to be held today in an effort to bring the strike at the federal building to an end. Reports of the meeting will be given directors of the chamber tomorrow.

The strike, involving 12 engineers, caused a tieup of more than five weeks, and has thrown 200 men out of employment.

BAN BOND SALE IN CLARION DEAL

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The Public Service Commission today won from Dauphin County Court an injunction restraining the Pennsylvania Electric Company from selling $10,000,000 worth of securities, based in part on its purchase of the Clarion River Power Company. The court fixed Saturday as a hearing date.

The commission filed two suits. In both it charged that the company did not file suitable certificate of notification with the commission, which had rejected several certificates.

The petition declares that after the commission started an investigation of the proposed securities and set September 15 as a hearing date it learned from a broker advertisement that the securities were actually on sale.

The Pennsylvania Electric Company was the reported purchaser of the Clarion River Company at a trustees' sale March 7. The commission charges that although the company paid $6,500,000, it lists its value at $8,000,000 on its books.

STAHLNECKER, KING NAMED

17 years, under changes that he accepted graft. Ainey stepped out protesting his innocence and declaring that he lacked physical strength and financial ability to fight the charge. He died 10 days ago.

The Governor also demanded that Emerson L. Collins, of Williamsport, vacate his place, which hed had been too ill to occupy for more than a year. Collins resigned effective October 1.

NOMINATION SURPRISE

King took Ainey's place, while Stahlnecker gets the post left by J. W. Brown, of Lancaster, whose term expired July 1. Brown was a Pinchot appointee in his first term.

Pinchot did not nominate a chairman today, so S. Ray Shelby, of Uniontown, whom he tried to remove in 1925, continues as acting chairman.

King's nomination was a surprise to politicians at the capital, as it was widely known that he had strenuously resisted going to the utility body.

Both appointments are subject to the approval of the Senate. Stahlnecker's runs until July 1, 1942, and King's until July 1, 1937.

Pinchot expressed "keenest satisfaction" that Dr. King and Stahlnecker had "yielded to my earnest request" and accepted the commission posts. He said:

"I am forced to add that the absence of Dr. King and Mr. Stahlnecker from the highly responsible positions which they now hold will cost the administration a great sacrifice, and me personally an even greater one.

"I am willing to accept this sacrifice only because the public utility question is of the first importance to every family in Pennsylvania, and because no sacrifice is too great if it can help to take our people out from under the political and business domination of the public utility magnates of New York."

PICKETS BOMB HOMES, SNIPERS FIRED ON

New Disorders Mark Strike at Ohio Coal Mines

ATHENS, O., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Two dynamitings and a gun battle between Snipers and Ohio National Guardsmen were developments in the coal mine strike war in the Hocking Valley last night and early today.

The home of Curt Daugherty, of Buchtel, night watchman at the 119 Mine of the Sunday Creek Coal Company, was wrecked by an explosion shortly after midnight. Daugherty, his wife and daughter and a brother-in-law, Walter Smathers, escaped injury. Malachy Byron was arrested by guardsmen.

Six snipers surrounded the home of John Hayden early today and when he started to work at the Lick Run mine, opened fire and drove him back into the house. National Guardsmen fired 64 shots at the snipers. Apparently no one was injured.

Dynamite thrown from a hill landed within 40 feet of the home of Oliver Savage, employed at the No. 6 mine, but did no damage. After the blast, Savage told authorities, he ran up the hill and there encountered George Green, a Negro. Savage said Green placed a pistol against his head and pulled the trigger, but the gun failed to fire. The Negro was arrested and charged with shooting with intent to kill.

National Guard headquarters at Millfield was evacuated today, but the one at Nelsonville will be maintained.

RITES THURSDAY FOR VICKERMAN

to bed a few days later, and pneumonia subsequently developed.

BORN IN ENGLAND

Born in England, May 21, 1868, he came to America at the age of 2 years with his parents. He spent his early boyhood in Hamilton, Ontario, coming to Pittsburgh in 1882. Educated in the public schools, he later entered service of the Young Men's Christian Association, being secretary of the Railway Branch in Altoona and Pittsburgh.

More than a score of years ago he became editor and proprietor of the City and Suburban Life, a weekly of the North Boroughs, of which he continued in charge until his death. He took an active part in civic affairs, serving several terms as president of the Bellevue Board of Trade.

Long a champion of the dry cause and Independent politics, Mr. Vickerman entered the political arena in 1914 when he was elected to the State House of Representatives from the Thirteenth Legislative District. He was reelected four times.

PROMINENT CHURCHMAN

Mr. Vickerman was prominent in the councils of the Methodist Episcopal Church, being a member of several boards of the Pittsburgh Conference. For 25 years he was superintendent of the Sunday School, Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, retiring several years ago.

He was president of the State Federation of Adult Bible Classes, a former superintendent of the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association and was a lay delegate to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Atlantic City last May.

Mr. Vickerman was thrice married. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Emma Vickerman; his mother, Mrs. Sarah Vickerman, who made her home with him; three sons, Willard I. and Harry, of Bellevue, and John W., Jr., of West View; a daughter, Mrs. J. A. Brownlee, of Mt. Lebanon; a brother, Joseph C. Vickerman, and a sister, Mrs. Ella Mae Kennihan, of Pittsburgh, and seven grandchildren.

7 GO ON TRIAL IN OLD KILLING

Seven men, exonerated by a Coroner's jury, went on trial in Criminal Court today, charged with the murder, five years ago, of two alleged strikebreakers in the Moon Run mining district.

They are Constable Thomas Drexler, Henry Drexler, Basil Petrolina, Newell Cummings, Nick Nosik, Stuart Obenauer and Paul Dugas. They were charged in an information by Mrs. Margaret Diczhazi, of Cleveland, with slaying her brother, Joe Vargo, and James Toth, both of Cleveland, June 19, 1927.

An eighth defendant, Albert Chess, deputy constable, has never

Furloughed Soldier Hurt in Crash Here

John F. Newman, of 44 South Thirty-third street, a furloughed soldier, and his companion, William Miller, 19, of 3725 Carson street, were injured yesterday when their motorcycle crashed in the Perry highway, near Perry View avenue. Both were removed to St. John's Hospital.

THREATEN 4TH SOCIETY BRIDE

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Another socially prominent suburban family had disclosed that it was the target of extortion demands as investigators today pushed on inquiry into a plot directed against daughters of at least four social leaders.

George B Harrington, Lake Forest, president of the Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal Company, revealed yesterday that he received a written demand for money under threat of harm to his daughter, Sophie.

In each case the threats were sent to persons whose daughters were about to be married. The letters, police said, named abduction and death for the girls as penalties if the money were not forthcoming. Most of the letters asked $2,000 or $3,000

Rudolph Diez, a grocer, seized as police said he picked up a dummy package in response to an extortion note, was held by Evanston police along with his wife, Bertha, as suspects. Three of the families said they would push prosecution.

Diez insisted a "tall man with a big black mustache" hired him to pick up the dummy package early Saturday morning.

Others who received extortion demands were Edwin M. Ashcraft, Jr., of Evanston; Ernest H. Noyes, of Chicago, and William Southworth Miller.

WOMAN SOUGHT IN ACID ATTACK

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Charging mayhem, warrants for the arrest of Mrs. Bruce Douglas, wife of a wealthy South Georgia turpentine operator; her son, Bruce, and daughter, Vashti, accused of kidnaping and disfiguring with carbolic acid Mrs. G. A. Gibbs, pretty young matron, formerly of Oil City, Pa., were issued today by Justice of Peace J. S. Geiger.

The warrants were granted on affidavits sworn by G. A. Gibbs, Homerville (Ga.) insurance man and husband of the victim.

Police left immediately for Homerville to arrest the accused trio.

Gibbs' affidavits, made after the young matron was unable to sign her own statement because of her injuries, charged Mrs. Douglas and her two grown children with luring Mrs. Gibbs to a vacant house in the Riverside section here, of overpowering, binding and gagging her and then pouring carbolic acid over her face and body.

Guard Who Slew Man In Mine War Killed

BARBOURVILLE, Ky., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Arlin Miller, mine guard who killed Harry Sims, of New York, in the Brush Creek coal field of Knox County last February during the mine strike, was slain on Moore's Creek, Knox County, last night.

Miller was found with his throat slashed and a bullet wound through his heart. Authorities are holding four men who are said to have accompanied him to Moore's Creek.

ROOSEVELT'S MARGIN CUT TO 18 PCT.

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—With the swing of the Presidential campaign well into September it is beginning to shake down to something approaching solid ground. Early indications that were inclined to reflect the extremes of political sentiment are giving way from week to week to campaign actualities.

This is the conclusion to be drawn from a careful and continuing study of returns in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

WIDE MARGIN CUT

In the first analysis of returns in the present poll, when there had been a comparatively small section of the voters canvassed, Gov. Roosevelt started off with a 63 per cent advantage against 37 for President Hoover. A week later this had turned to 64-36 in Roosevelt's favor.

With the third week's returns the percentage shifted to 62-38 for Roosevelt. The fourth week resulted in a 60-40 division.

Today sees a further adjustment, with the percentage moving to 59-41.

In the poll returns tabulated last week President Hoover cut the Roosevelt percentages in 21 states. Roosevelt reduced the Hoover percentages in seven states. In the other 20 states, the percentages were unchanged. In 16 of these Roosevelt is leading.

The net result is that with the new week's returns Roosevelt held his own or improved his position in 23 states and Hoover held his own or improved his position in 25 states.

ELECTORAL VOTE CHANGE

A week ago Roosevelt had to his credit a potential electoral vote of 285 in states where he was showing 60 per cent or more of the poll response. Today he has 269., a loss of 16. This was brought about by the shifting of Minnesota and Oregon from safe Roosevelt states to doubtful states with Roosevelt leading. The 269 potentially safe votes Roosevelt now holds gives him three more than the 266 electoral votes necessary to elect.

Hoover, on the other hand, has only 37, the same as a week ago in his potentially safe column. The remaining 225 of the 531 total electoral votes are in states giving neither candidate 60 per cent or more of the poll.

Roosvelt has the advantage in 12 doubtful states with 117 electoral votes. Hoover leads in six doubtful states with 108 votes.

Helene Madison Gets Contract for Film

Towns to Discuss Gas Rate Reduction

starving farmers care about the artificial prices of Wall Street stocks?

PROSPERITY WILL NOT be brought back to this nation by Wall Street nor by a Wall Street administration.

It will not be brought back by an administration which killed for purely political reasons Speaker Garner's measure to relieve unemployment by extensive government construction.

It will not be brought back by an administration which brands as dangerous inflation any legitimate attempts to put money into general circulation, but which does not hesitate to use government billions to finance the financiers.

It will not be brought back by a gentleman who does not understand the fundamental democratic principles of American life and American business.

It will not be brought back by an executive whose chief experience is with foreign nations and whose chief concern is for the international bankers who deal with foreign nations.

It will not be brought back by a gentleman whose main interest is in moratoriums and foreign debt cancellations, and in the transfer of European burdens to American backs.

IT WILL BE BUILT BACK, not for Wall Street alone, but for the whole country, by the farmers, the workers, the industrialists, the professional men, the legitimate business men, with the aid of an American administration which has intelligence enough to realize that this is the only way in which prosperity can be restored to the land—and which has patriotism enough to use the power of government to help American labor and American industries and legitimate American business, and not merely favor and pamper the international bankers and the speculative interests of Wall Street.

'THIRD DEGREE' CHARGES FAIL

MINEOLA, N. Y., Sept. 12.—(INS.)—All indictments against the Nassau County policemen growing out of the death of Hyman Stark by alleged "third degree" methods were dismissed today today by Supreme Court Justice John B. Johnston.

The dismissal of the indictments was on the motion of District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards.

Trial was to have started this morning of Detective Sergt. Marcel Chagnon and Patrolmen Lanice Ray and Harry Liljigren on a charge of second degree assault. They were three of nine Nassau County policemen indicted on that charge.

In asking dismissal of all the second degree assault indictments, Edwards explained he no longer entertained hope of obtaining a conviction.

Mrs. Shepard, Ill, Reported Improved

Mrs. Shepard, the former Helen Gould, was suddenly stricken last week.

'SUNSHINE MAN,' CRIPPLE, DIES

PASSAIC, N. J., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Thomas Shinners, 50, a patient at St. Mary's Hospital for over 20 years and widely known as "the sunshine man," died today. The cause of death was given as a complication of internal troubles.

Shinners was taken to St. Mary's on the afternoon of December 11, 1911. The boom of a derrick snapped from its base and fell on the sturdy ironworker, breaking his back, arms, legs, fingers and toes. At the hospital they said Tom would probably die within a few hours.

He was 29 years old at the time and weighed 185 pounds. He regained consciousness and prayed for death. For seven years he could not move. Then slowly he regained the use of his fingers and a few of his joints. He managed to turn his head a bit and move his arms.

He resigned himself to living and because time hung heavily on his hands began to read and to correspond with people in all parts of the world. He had his own telephone and a typewriter. He wrote as many as 4,000 letters a year, and his reading embraced everything from Zane Grey to the dialogues of Plato.

FOUR GUNMEN ROB STORE

Four masked gunmen beat the manager unconscious and held up three other employes of the Fisher Brothers egg and poultry store at Franklin and Sedgewick streets, North Side, today.

Manager G. R. Dunseath, 50, was alone in his office when two gunmen entered. When he yelled for help they beat him on the head with a revolver, emptied his pockets and a nearby strong box of $100.

At the same time two other robbers had forced three employes into the egg-testing room. The employes were Charles E. Pafenbach, Fred Thompson and Isador Leibowitz.

The four bandits hurried to their auto, parked outside, where a fifth confederate sped them away.

Dunseath, treated for lacerations at Presbyterian Hospital, returned to work. This was the second holdup there in a year.

TOKIO PROBES U. S. ATTACK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Assurance from Count Uchida, Japanese foreign minister, that press attacks on the National City Bank were being investigated, have been received by the State Department through Ambassador Grew.

Grew, who requested that the attacks be looked into, said Uchida told him he would consider fully the report of the inquiry.

The ambassador said no Japanese law appeared to have been violated by the Osaka branch of the bank, which was accused, in the Japenese press, of photographic espionage.

F. P. Hanna Funeral Tomorrow Afternoon

Frank P. Hanna, 69, for more than 35 years well known in Pittsburgh hotel circles, who died Saturday following a lingering illness, will be buried tomorrow afternoon from the family home, 5410 Normlee place. Mr. Hanna was president of the Hotel Henry Company when he retired from business five years ago. He had been connected with that hotel since its construction, serving as manager for many years. Mr. Hanna was a Mason and Shriner. Besides his wife he leaves a daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Warner, of Pittsburgh.

3 Women Cleared In Holdup Charge

Mrs. Emma Floyd, 28, of Munhall road; Effie Laisch, 32, and Lula Hahn, 32, were discharged in Central Police Court today after detectives had testified they had no connection with recent holdups. They were arrested after Mrs. Floyd's husband, Sidney Floyd, 30, and his brother, Paul, 28, were taken into custody for fighting a taxicab driver.

Rivers Being Tested Here for Impurities

A test of Pittsburgh rivers in an effort to eradicate possible pollution was to begin today by a staff of state chemists and bacteriologists. The work will be under the direction of Dr. Glenn V. Brown, state chemical engineer.

M'KEE ASKS BAN ON MAYOR VOTE

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Mayor Joseph V. McKee disclosed today that he has taken action through the courts to prevent the Board of Elections from holding a mayoralty election in November, to assure his own continuance in office and block James J. Walker or anyone else from seeking the mayoralty this fall.

McKee was served at City Hall with a copy of an application by David McAdams, for an order directing McKee and the Board of Elections to show cause, why, on September 14, a peremptory order of mandamus should not be issued compelling the board to abandon its plans for a mayoralty election at the general elections on November 8.

Mayor McKee admitted to reporters that he instituted the action himself on the advice of his former law partner, Howard Medina, a professor of law at Columbia University, when the question of his tenure of office arose.

Woman Stowaway Sails to See Fiance

NICE, France, Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Mrs. Mabel Kingsley Huntley, of London, was in VilleFranche today after landing there from the Italian liner Roma, on which she had sailed as a stowaway.

She explained she had made the passage to join her fiance, Tilden Tuyler, of New York.

Dramatize Battle That Inspired Key Anthem

BALTIMORE, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The bombardment of Fort McHenry which inspired Francis Scott Key to write the Star Spangled Banner will be dramatized tonight as the concluding feature of Baltimore's own holiday, Defenders' Day.

The scene of the night of the battle and then the breaking of dawn with the flag still flying above the fortress, which Key saw from the deck of the Minden off Sparrow Point on September 14, 1814, will be re-enacted by gunfire and flares with searchlights aiding to bring out the effect.

Bomb Wrecks Car Of Theater Man

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—A time bomb was exploded under the hood of an automobile just a few minutes before a theater executive was due to ride home in the car late last night. Max Melcher, the theater executive, told police he knew of no enemies who might be responsible.

Chance for Recovery For Eva Tanguay

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—A strong improvement in the condition of Eva Tanguay, famous dancer of a decade ago, was noted by her physicians, who said she had a good chance for recovery. She has been critically ill from a heart ailment.

GANG'S VICTIM SLAIN IN AUTO

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Trussed up in a burlap bag, the body of Gerarda Scarpato, Coney Island cabaret owner, was found in a sedan in the Windsor section of Brooklyn yesterday under circumstances indicating gangster revenge.

The car had stood in the street since Saturday morning and aroused the suspicion of residents. Scarpato had been tied with ropes and apparently had died from strangulation.

Brooklyn police recalled that Giuseppe Masseria, "Joe the Boss," had been slain in April, 1931, and theorized that his friends had made away with Scarpato in the belief he was responsible.

Memorial Service Held for Firemen

Firemen from a number of South Hills boroughs joined with members of the Dormont Firemen's Association last night in observing annual memorial services at the Dormont Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. U. P. Smiley delivered the sermon.

The services also included a roll call and the placing of a flower on a flag for each member of the association who died during the year. Mrs. Elizabeth Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Bess Miller sang and several numbers were given by the firemen's quartet. Members of the Boy Scout troop sounded taps.

CHARGE KILLING, BODY UNFOUND

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—What is believed an unprecedented action in this state—the arrest of a person on a murder charge without the establishment of a corpus delicti—was taken early today when Charles Dubois, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., was locked up accused of slaying his wife, Edith.

Dubois, former operator of a chain of jewelry stores, was held without bail after being questioned by Assistant District Atorney John Sullivan.

Sullivan said the body of Dubois' wife, missing since August 10, had not been found and that Dubois was held "chiefly because of conflicting stories." Sullivan also said that Dubois was planning to marry a Boston woman.

Mrs. Dubois disappeared from her summer home here August 10.

Paraguay Reports Battle Successes

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Paraguayan forces fighting a three-day battle with Bolivians at Fort Boqueron in the Chaco region "completely annihilated" the Fourteenth Bolivian Infantry Regiment and were meeting with further successes as the fierce battle continued, the government announced today.

The Bolivian commander, Maj. Adolfo Lairana, was taken prisoner, the official bulletin said, and bodies of several other high officers were identified on the battlefield.

Presidential Trend by States

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

Percentages in Poll

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Division of the 186,922 post card ballots thus far recorded in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, reduced to a percentage basis, shows Gov. Roosevelt drawing 59 and President Hoover 41 per cent.

A week ago the vote divided 60-40, and the week before, 62-38 in Roosevelt's favor. While Roosevelt has continued to increase his popular vote majority each week the increase has not been sufficient in volume in relation to the total vote polled to maintain his early percentages.

ROOSEVELT OFF TO CAPTURE WEST

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt sets out today "to win the West." Another Roosevelt—it was "T. R,"—once wrote several volumes entitled "Winning the West."

Before he returns to Albany three weeks hence, Gov. Roosevelt will have visited 20-odd states, whose 200 electoral votes will have a powerful voice in determining the next President of the United States.

In following the westward trail the Democratic nominee follows Democratic precedent. With few exceptions, Democratic candidates for the last quarter of a century have made bids for western support by personal tours.

SEES WEST TURN

Most of them have been unsuccessful, but that fact has not deferred Gov. Roosevelt. He believes that this year it will be a different story, that this year will witness the normally Republican West turn again to the Democratic party as it did in 1912 and 1916.

Although he has managers and advisers galore, Gov. Roosevelt is, in fact, his own campaign manager. Probably no better proof of that could be had than that he is invading the West against the advice of some of those numerous advisers.

They have pointed out to him that recent political history has shown that the "traveling candidate" usually has lost—Bryon several times, Hughes in 1916, Cox in 1920, Davis in 1924, and Al Smith in 1928—while the "stay-at-home" candidate usually has prospered.

ROOSEVELT FIRM

To all of which arguments, Gov. Roosevelt has returned a smiling disclaimer. He recently told a friend that there was, to him, one "all compelling reason" as to why he should undertake this 8,000-mile swing about the great circle. He said:

"It is that I want to go."

So tonight he starts westward on a trip that will take him across the continent to the Northwest, down the Pacific Coast, through the Southwest, and through the agrarian West that is seething with political discontent.

The Democratic nominee does not feel, however, that it is incumbent upon him to speak formally at all the places he will visit. His speaking engagements have been limited to four major speeches, although there will be innumerable impromptu and extemporaneous talks all along the line. He told friends:

"I go to listen and learn more than to speak."

He opens his western invasion with a speech on farm relief on Wednesday at Topeka, Kan.

MAINE VOTERS GO TO POLLS

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Some 200,000 men and women of Maine are treking to the polls today in Maine's election with the first reasonable prospect of Democratic victory in 18 years.

They are electing a governor, both branches of the legislature, all the county officers and three congressmen.

A customary, overwhelming Republican victory will be interpreted as an indorsement of President Hoover. Anything less, will be interpreted by the Democrats as a rebuke to him and a repudiation of his policies. The campaign has been fought almost solely on national issues.

The Democrats have carried Maine only once for President since reconstruction days. Wilson got 51,000 votes in the Bull Moose year of 1912, and obtained the electoral college vote, but Roosevelt and Taft polled a joint total of 75,000.

Pinchot Owes $3 In Flicker Case, Squire Holds

FAIRCHANCE, Pa., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—If Justice of the Peace William J. Ruble's figures are correct, Gov. Gifford Pinchot owes him $3.35.

The chief executive sent the "squire" a check for $17.90 when he obtained the release of Mrs. Anna Chess, sentenced to 20 days in jail for killing and frying a flicker.

Ruble says the check covered the fine and costs appearing on the original papers forwarded to Harrisburg by him—but the charge for committing Mrs. Chess and the mileage amounts to $3.25.

Ruble is pondering whether to write "finis" on the papers or send a note to Gov. Pinchot reminding him of the "debt."

PARLEYS HELD BY DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Congressional Democratic leaders are converging on New York headquarters for campaign conferences.

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi will go to New York tomorrow in response to a call from James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who will leave for the West next week with Gov. Roosevelt.

Representative McDuffie, of Alabama, stopped at the capital en route to New York headquarters, where he will assist in the campaign.

McDuffie said the voters of Alabama were in harmony with the Democratic platform, including the prohibition repeal plank.

NEW DOLLAR BILLS EXCITE PITTSBURGHERS

Wrigley Inquiring Reporters Hunt Gum Users Everywhere.

By MR. SPEAR

It sounds like the easiest, simplest job in the world just to amble around town, passing out dollar bills to Wrigley Gum users. Miss Mint and I and our assistants find it just that kind of a job. It is like a glorified tag day to us. We actually get a big kick out of it.

J. GOULON, who runs the barber shop at 504 Liberty Avenue, almost cut a customer's throat—by accident, of course—when I slipped him a brand new one dollar bill when he produced a package of Spearmint from his pocket. MR. GOULON said: "I gave up smoking several years ago and have chewed Wrigley's ever since."

Another barber, MR. NELSON E. HOLMES, 934 Liberty Avenue, I discovered, was a regular Wrigley gum user. "Wrigley's keeps my breath fresh and sweet; it's my favorite gum," he said.

W. C. GARNER—no relative of the famous Democrat—169 Navahoe Drive, Mt. Lebanon, received his dollar when he produced a package of Double Mint, and said: "My wife won't let me bring any other kind of Gum home—it has to be Wrigley's."

W. C. VAUGHN, 1244 Irwin Ave., said Juicy Fruit is his favorite. He showed me the open package and went on his way with a smile and a dollar bill.

One thrill was when I stopped the Pittsburgh Police Radio Car and saw OFFICER JAMES E. O'CONNOR, 107 Berwick St., nonchalantly chewing Wrigley's. OFFICER O'CONNOR said he and his fellow officers in the car always chew Wrigley's—it relieves the tenseness of their job.

MISS ELINOR MILLER, 207 Meade Street, Wilkinsburg, who works in an insurance office in the Chamber of Commerce Building, was jauntily walking out of her office when I stopped her and asked: "Have you an open package of Wrigley's Gum?" MISS MILLER quickly flashed a package of Spearmint and was immediately rewarded with a dollar bill for her opinion.

CHARLES L. SNYDER, 322 Dunlap Street—an officer in the Potter Title and Trust Company—received one dollar when he showed me a package of Wrigley's P. Ks. "They are my favorite," said MR. SNYDER, "I like that candy coating on P. Ks."

F. J. SULLIVAN, 5271 Keystone Avenue, an elevator dispatcher in the City-County Building, a regular user of Wrigley's Double Mint, received his dollar between sending busy elevators on their way.

Although Miss Mint and I and our assistants have only been out for a couple of days, we are encountering fewer and fewer persons who do not have their package of Wrigley's. Everyone seems to know that we are all over town every day, looking for Wrigley Gum users and they do not know when they may be stopped.

Here are the names of a few Wrigley Gum users whom we stopped the other day. We cannot begin to list all of them—this is only a partial list:—P. J. FLEMING, 109 Jamaica Avenue, West View Borough; MRS. HUGH CALVERT, 2500 Penn Avenue; PAUL KONTOVSKI, 501 Market Street; THOMAS M. SULLIVAN, 307 No. Evaline Street; G. W. BROWN, 4 Monhagen Street; THOMAS LEONARD, 4934 Hatfield Street; NORBETT STERN, 5560 Beacon Street; JOHN THOMPSON, 601 Ridge Avenue; R. G. BARR, Wm. Pitt Apts.; A. K. BLACK, 221 Fourth Ave.

This week we are going out in the outskirts and suburbs more than ever. We'll stop you on the street, in stores, offices, factories, and even your homes. Always be ready for Miss Mint, me or our assistants by having a package of Wrigley's Gum handy. Then when you are stopped and asked: "Have you an open package of Wrigley's?"—you will be one dollar richer. Get in the game—it's loads of fun.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

My Girl Friday Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: There appears to be some buzz about the Laura LaPlante stitcheeayshun since the original announcement was ethered. South American millionaire interference . . . I'm taking the file of your early times over to A. W.'s apartment in person . . . Some magazine should grab Bill Vallee's article on reactions-to-being-Rudy's-brother . . . For want of something better to do, N. Y. U. has been compiling statistics on what the average "date" costs a collitch boy . . . They find it costs but $4.

Remember "The Warrior's Husband" of last season? That was the piece in which Katherine Hepburn starred. While in Hollywood she drove her Hispano from her dressing room to the sound stage—her way of kidding Hollywood . . . At any rate, upon her arrival here the other day, she told the station master that she would tolerate no publicity; so officials shooed everybody away—including her husband! . . . Not that you care, but today marks exactly four months since I've seen you. What time do you come in? . . . Among other orchids ought to be one tossed at Master Vallee for at least befriending his first fiddler. Who contracted t. b., and had to retire. Rudy sends him $75 weekly and the chap is improving because he has no financial problems. . . The Nunnally Johnsons are blessed-eventing, as the saying goes. . . . Thanks for "Ballyhoo" tickets. . . . Gloria Gilbert, the lass you colyumed about so enthusiastically recently, is the only show-stopper . . . Sunny O'Dea, a cute blonde youngster, was badly spotted at the opening so that her really excellent routine and charm was overlooked by the critics. . . . If you see it, leave the kiddies at home. . . Arthur Tracy will be married this week.

While going over some antiques at home I happened across an old copy of the Herald for 1896 and under Help Wanteds I found: "An entertaining woman wanted as a resident companion to demented young man. 329 W. 84th." . . . So you see—they were the good old days at that . . . On his attorney's counsel, Walter Chrysler, Jr., has altered his mind about publishing Renee (hat-checker) Carroll's book "In Your Hat" . . . He is afraid the libelous matter might tie up his pappy's coin.

Did you know that Western Union now carries an orange juice service? . . . If you want a hot dog or some orangeade, all you need do is dial W. U., and they'll deliver in five minutes, plus a dime service fee . . . I was reading one of the movie mags last night and learned that Annette Simpson, the American designer, lists Miss Garbo as the world's best dressed woman. Miss Dietrich is runner-up . . . Frances Dee and Gene Raymond are being groomed as the next Gaynor-Farrell combination . . . Mons. Gordon is resting at home, not in a hosp. . . . His show, "Flying Colors," has had such sour luck—delays, accidents to the cast, and other headaches. Vilma and Buddy Ebsen, who ran away with the honors at the Philly premiere, were only scratched and bruised when the scenery tumbled the other performance . . . Have a simile on me: As misinformed as a college graduate.

Here's a delightful item — there is a new 25c slot machine on the market in one of the smarter speaks . . . If you lose twenty two-bit pieces in a row—aspirin tablets come out! . . . Carmela Ponselle, whose contract with the Met was renewed this season, after three previous breaks with them, probably will do but one performance and a Sunday night concert . . . Incidentally Carmela and her sister Rosa inhabit the same penthouse, but never appear at each other's parties . . A perfect sister act . . . M. Ward, the Senator from Boston, and Louise Versell, one of the former Vanities sirens, will telescope this month . . . From Paris I learn that Patou has gambled his all on the new low waistline, which has the wholesalers yelling for help . . . It is the first radical departure since long skirts startled us . . . By the way, for your Paris-bound friends you might recommend the student establishments in and about the university district. Where they charge no more than 25 or 50 francs for bubble water.

Bert Lahr is in a bit of a jam with the Paramount booking offices over his conduct about billing in Brooklyn last week . . . Jack Denny, who conducts the melodies at the fashionable Waldorf—dunks! . . . George Price has a gag for radio tuner-inners who urge him for his photo. He instructs them to send him films and he takes his own photo and then sends it on . . . J. Foster, the radio commentator, reported that Joe Moss and his crew have played before four Presidents at Washington and that one still lives . . . Of all the dirty digs! . . . I pass along Col. Stoopnagle's newest invention—it's a pair of round dice for people who'd rather play marbles! . . . It's time to revive your line, to wit: "The height of something or other would be for Walter Winchell to get sore because somebody said something about him!"

Why does it cost $12 from here to Chicago via parlor car and $13 from Chi to New York? . . . The doctor who is supposed to have a sure cure for hay fever isn't so sure now, which is why I haven't forwarded his address to those who write in for it . . . The one melody I can't forget is: "Another Night Alone"—a classic, really.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Off will go the lid of a new theatrical season tonight. The Nixon alone will welcome it. Manager Harry Brown will be the official greeter of those Lew Joseph and George Weigand have been ticketing up at the box office window for the past week. Laurence Schwab and B. G. DeSylva, the producers, will be hovering around the front of the house somewhere, all of a dither and full of expectancy, wondering how the audience will take it. "It" refers to their new musical comedy, "Humpty Dumpty," a title which heretofore has been Harry Brown's synonym for a "turkey" show. But if this one is a "turkey" Mr. Brown avows he is ready to eat his hat. Even if it is straw, it would be an unpleasant meal. If it's felt you see on his dome tonight you may take it that he feels pretty good about last night's dress rehearsal. Helping Messrs. Schwab and DeSylva through their pre-curtain seige of preliminary shivers will be a number of New York friends who came along on the special train to tell the parents of "Humpty Dumpty" not to worry because "everything will be all right." The curtain will go up. Lou Holtz, Ethel Merman, J. C. Nugent, Eddie Foy, Jr., June Knight and Lotta Others will cavort on the stage. Then the folks will flock into the foyer to smoke and turn thumbs up or down conversationally. And the season will be open. The new show is booked for a week in Washington to follow the Pittsburgh premiere—and then on to Broadway.

In celebration of Leon Errol's twenty-fifth year on Broadway, a number of friends threw a party for the comedian with rubber legs. During the festivities he told how he got the idea for the funny things he does with his pins, stunts that have made him famous. He said that he put a puppy on a table and it made him laugh when its legs wouldn't support it. If that made him laugh, he figured that he could make others laugh by doing the same on the stage. Smart chap, Leon Errol. But then actors are always trying things on the dog.

Philadelphia will have a musical premiere tonight, too, the debut being that of J. P. McAvoy's "Americana." A young English musical comedy star, Peggy Cartwright, has come to these shores to appear in it. Others will include Lillian Fitzgerald, Don Barclay, Billy Taylor and Albert Carroll, who was seen here in the cast of the last Ziegfeld "Follies."

Laurette Taylor will return to the stage in the fall in a new drama, "Finale," by S. K. Lauren . . . A new play in which one character will be William Shakespeare, to be played by Glenn Hunter, is on the book for fall production . . . Besides "Vanities" Earl Carroll is to produce a drama, "Black Waters," a story about outcasts and criminals sailing for an unknown part of the world . . . While in Copenhagen, Richard Barthelmess and the missus, who have just returned from a trip to European countries, attended the showing of a Barthelmess picture presented under the patronage of Princess Helene of Denmark.

MUSICAL

June Knight is in the "Humpty Dumpty" musical comedy that has its premiere in the Nixon tonight.

Irene Dunne Will Star Again

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 12.

This week probably will see the end of Irene Dunne's vacation. Fired by the praise given her work in "Back Street," R-K-O plans to start the actress to work almost immediately in "Just a Woman."

In the original order of things, Ann Harding was to have done this picture, but she will be engaged for some time on "Animal Kingdom."

Irene Dunne

When Irene goes into the cast of the former Eugene Walter play, it will work another change to R-K-O's plans. They have been seeking a story with music for her next picture. And though the idea is tabled, I think we will hear more of it later.

"Just a Woman" is the story of a woman's part in the rise of a man from an iron puddler to a power in the steel business.

Screen-writer credits are a little scrambled as yet, but J. Walter Rubin is slated to direct.

BOULEVARD TOPICS

Joel McCrea went out of the Janet Gaynor picture at his own request. After having been rescued from drowning by Dolores Del Rio in "The Bird of Paradise," he discovered that Janet Gaynor was to repeat the rescue in "Tess of the Storm Country." The prospect was too much for the athletic Joel . . . Virginia Valli and Charles Farrell plan to stay out the winter at their new beach house. It's five miles beyond the Malibu colony. . . . Most of the studios pay bonuses for good titles suggested for pictures. Here's luck to that chap at Universal who invariably submits "Without Benefit of Clergy." . . . Come November and Bayard Veiller will depart for the East to write a play . . . Sue Carol and Nick Stuart are plotting to renew their personal appearances. . . . In reply to several letters, Universal can't use the Eskimo, Chee-Ak, for the lead in "Laughing Boy" because he is too large in stature to pass for a Navajo Indian boy . . . Dorothy Hertzog has sold a new novel which will be out this fall. She has an order from the publishers to do another.

Janet Gaynor

THRILLERS ON TAP

The placidly beautiful Fay Wray is to be mixed up in another film shocker—Warner Brothers' "Wax Museum."

She had to raise a crop of goose-flesh in "Dr. X."

Still another thriller on the verge of production is Universal's "Imhotep"—the story of a mummy who comes to life.

David Manners and Edward Van Sloan, both veterans of "Dracula," will be mixed up in the proceedings. The mummy will be played by Boris Karloff, whose life is being made miserable by studio quipsters who hail him as "Mummy of Mine" and "Excuse My Dust."

Sidelights on Hollywood

Authentic replicas of the thirty pieces of silver paid to Judas, the crown of thorns and other relics used in Cecil B. DeMille's "The King of Kings" have been donated by the director to the Los Angeles Museum. DeMille now is filming "The Sign of the Cross."

Cecil B. DeMille had to try out 26 girsl before he found one who could read to his satisfaction the line:

"Milk makes the empress' skin softer every day."

There's a strange business in Hollywood. It's conducted by a man who furnishes bottles (empty) of hundreds of foreign liquors. As his latest responsibility, he provides "dead soldiers" for scenes in "A Farewell to Arms."

Twelve famous radio stars in "The Big Broadcast" are facing the cameras with practically no makeup, so their fans may see them on the screen as they are. Stuart Erwin, Leila Hyams and Bing Crosby, however, wear the usual cinema warpaint.

Emil Jannings is the star of "Tempest," German drama showing this week in the Avenue Cinema.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Stranger Than Fiction

THEY WERE billed, let us make believe, as the Fenton Sisters—May and Kay. As is seldom the case in such instances, they actually did look something alike. Offstage and on, they dressed in identical fashion from the tops of their bleached permanents to the tips of their short-vamped, satin slippers.

But gather closely, children, because being in a generous mood today, I am going to let you in on a little secret. The "sister" stuff was the bunk. Almost anyone in the profession would have told you that the Fentons were mother and daughter.

I have mentioned the fact that the Fentons looked alike. There, alas, the similarity ended. Old May had legions of friends, and they all agreed that she was one good egg. But the kid . . . ! Well, that was another story, and a story not too pretty.

May was just a natural born sucker for the younger girl. She gave and gave. But she might have saved herself just that much trouble. For Kay would have grabbed anything she wanted anyway. The spotlight. The articles in their mutual wardrobe. And last, but far, far from least, each and every male appeared upon their horizon.

Men were extremely important in young Fenton's life. They figured in each hour of her day.

I don't believe I have to tell you that all this didn't make old May exactly happy. No doubt she often remembered the long years of hardship. Trouping with a baby hadn't been the easiest job in the world. No doubt she often thought of the manner in which she had struggled to keep them both alive, and wondered if it had really been such a good idea.

But May loved the youngster. She swallowed her disappointment, and said as little as possible. It wasn't always so easy. Especially when the kid showed up in the morning with a roaring hangover, and was just a little nastier than usual.

Until she learned better, May tried to reason with the younger girl. It was all, she told her gently, for her own good. Did May appreciate her interest? Well, hardly.

"What are you crabbing about?" she would ask sullenly. "You've got a nerve. Here I am stringing along with a worn-out old wreck like you when I might be somebody by myself. Listen, ma, you keep your trap shut, or I'll pull out of this act one of these days. Then where'll you be?"

Needless to mention, she never pulled out. That might have involved a little hard work, and hard work was one of the very few things that Kay graciously left for the older woman. So things went on for a time . . .

Now, to the fanfare of trumpets and the rolling of drums, enters Harry. Harry is our male lead, a part which he should play to perfection. If not, it will not be from lack of experience. The number of years he had played similar parts was larger than he would have cared to mention. Never in a real hit. Indeed, he was much better known to the reception clerks in booking offices than to audiences.

Yet none of this had affected Harry's very fine opinion of himself. When he was 40 and about washed up on Broadway, he set out for the West Coast. Just as though things weren't bad enough in the movie capital already.

By one of those queer happenings that occur only in Hollywood, Harry became a success. When he recovered from his relief and surprise, he was very, very happy.

His triumph, however, would not be complete until he had returned to the scene of his failures. So back to Broadway went Harry. To find, as so often happens, that as a success he had a great many more friends than he had suspected.

At the head of the pack leading all the rest was young Fenton. She was willing to make up for her past indifference by being more than a friend. Then something very strange happened. She suddenly discovered that there was someone even more important than Kay Fenton. And that someone was none other than our handsome, Hollywood hero—Harry.

As the kid grew a trifle sappy, May grew more than a trifle worried. This, she knew, was truly different. This was serious.

She took the kid aside one morning and spoke to her kindly.

"Listen, baby," she began, "I haven't said much about your chasing around with every guy in the world. But I've got to this time, honey. This Harry—he's not for you. Cut out seeing him, will you, Kay? I've never asked much from you, but I'm asking it now. Do this for ma, will you, kid? Do it for old May."

The sneer that curled at Kay's lips didn't do much to improve her looks.

"Yeh?" she snarled. "Like the devil I will! Not you nor anybody else is going to keep me away from Harry. I love him—get that? I'm crazy about that guy, I tell you. Just because you're my old lady doesn't mean that you can tell me who to fall for!"

May sighed. She looked, all at once, every day of her 42 years, with perhaps a few more added on.

"Kay," she said quietly, "I guess the time has come for me to say something. I hoped I'd never have to tell you this, but here it is:

"I'm not your mother, kid. Your mother was my old sidekick—the grandest trouper of them all. How she ever happened to be responsible for anybody like you . . . Oh, well! She died when you were born, and she asked me to bring you up right. I guess I must have slipped up somewhere," May finished wearily.

If Kay had been anything even faintly resembling a human being, she would have been touched. But Kay had a heart as cold as an installment collector's glare.

"Yeah?" she muttered. "Well, if you think that makes me sore, you're daffy. You never did have much to say where I was concerned, but this cinches it. It means that you'll keep your meddling nose out of my business—and Harry's."

She picked up her hat and walked toward the door.

"Where are you going?" asked May.

Kay stopped.

"Where'd you think I was going?" she sneered. "Trout fishing? I'm going over to Harry's—and I'm staying there. You get it?"

The older woman did a strange thing. She laughed. Then she leaped past Kay and flung open the door before the girl could reach it.

"All right," she cried, "the door's open, and you can go. But before you do, there's just one thing more I want to tell you—and it's something I never wanted to have to tell you."

She shivered slightly. She wet her lips. She stiffened.

"Harry is your father," she said quietly. "Now go!"

Here's the "Naughty Miss"

$3.75

As pert a hat as you could choose to wear with your sports coats and suits. The very soft felt flaunts three tiny folds in a sweeping curve all around the hat . . . and ends at the bright little bow over the right eye.

On black felt the tab of the bow is orange or white . . . on brown felt it is orange.

Get Out the Bridge Table!

TABLES
$1.95

CHAIRS
$1.25 Each

We know you've never seen a metal-frame card table you could buy for $1.95 . . . but here's one now you'll want for winter bridge games.

The metal frame extends to make the border of the table . . . which adds strength and provides a place to set ash trays or glasses. A special locking device holds the legs firm, and there's no chance of one leg doubling under. The plywood board center with its leatherette cover remains flat and solid.

Re-Upholster Your Furniture

Fabrics and Labor Are at Lowest Prices

Worn furniture can be re-upholstered to look like new at surprisingly little cost these days. It's amazing how a new cover for your sofa or a lounge chair can spruce up your living room and make it look like a new place.

Let us send a representative to your home to show samples of the new fabrics, quote prices and suggest ways to beautify your present furnishings. Here's an example of the low prices:

Cogswell Chair Re-Covered for $22.50

Flattering VELVET

For Women Who Wear Half Sizes

$13.75

A wonderful event for small women who have difficulty selecting well-fitting frocks at low prices! The velvets are as soft as silk, and with the depth and changing surface of the most expensive varieties. Sleeves show the new "elbow-room" effects . . . necklines are softly draped . . . touches of real Alencon lace trim two models, and one dress has sleeves of the new "burnt velvet"—with alternate stripes of the chiffon background showing. In black, brown or wine shades. Sizes 35½ to 45½.

Stomach Ulcer Formula Attracts Much Attention

New formula stops pain from hyperacidic conditions quickly and relieves at home. No rigid diet, no operation required.

Sufferers who have used this formula pronounce it the most astonishing scientific achievement of years to soothe and relieve stomach ulcers from hyperacidity, to neutralize trouble-causing acids and to aid the digestive system.

Acidosis, gas, acid indigestion, sourness, lack of pep and constipation from over-acidity are also quickly relieved by TOMA TABLETS, which can be obtained only from our offices at Ligonier, Pa.

Write today for our valuable free booklet, "Your Stomach and You," which describes symptoms of stomach distress, tells of this new formula and gives information everyone should know.

Wrigley's pay

DOLLAR BILLS

Cellophane WRAPPED WRIGLEY PACKAGE

Mr. Spear AND Miss Mint are all over town with
DOLLAR BILLS
for Wrigley Gum users

It is the talk of the town—not only the way the Cellophane wrapping protects all the original, full-flavor of Wrigley's Gum, but also the easy way it opens. Just unwind the red tape which removes the end cap . . . the Cellophane wrapping remains to protect the gum.

Mr. Spear and Miss Mint with their assistants are also making a big hit. In homes, apartments, offices, stores, shops, and public buildings, they are paying crisp new Dollar Bills—for personal opinions about Wrigley's Gum in the new Cellophane wrapping.

Hundreds of times a day they ask these questions, "Have you an opened package of Wrigley's Gum?" and "How do you like it?" But they are instructed not to pay for volunteered opinions. They pay a dollar only to those they approach.

HOW TO GET READY FOR THEM

Try any one of the four popular Wrigley flavors in the new, Cellophane package. Note how wonderfully well the full, rich, original deliciousness has been kept for your enjoyment. What brisk, lively flavor — and how refreshing!

When Mr. Spear, Miss Mint or one of their assistants approaches you, prove to them that you have tried this Cellophane-wrapped gum. (An opened Cellophane package of Wrigley's Gum in your purse or pocket will be accepted as positive proof.) Just tell them frankly what you think of it and you'll be paid ONE DOLLAR for your opinion.

Notables at Legion Meet, Gov. Roosevelt's Wife, Clyde Kelly on Air

Nationally prominent speakers from all parts of the country, addressing tonight's session of the American Legion national convention at Portland Ore., are heard over WCAE from 12:30 to 1 a. m.

The speakers, in the order of their appearance, are Floyd Gibbons, Josephus Daniels, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley; Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston; Mayor Frank Murphy, of Detroit; Gov. William L. Meier, of Oregon, and Mayor George L. Baker, of Portland.

Mayor Murphy

Broadcasts began yesterday morning over an NBC network including KDKA, followed by the first session this afternoon over KDKA at 2.

Immediately preceding Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's departure from Albany for St. Louis tonight on the first lap of his nation-circling campaign for the presidency, Mrs. Roosevelt joins Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, representative from Florida, to take an active part in the Democratic fight via radio. Speaking from New York, Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Owen are heard over an NBC network, including WCAE, at 10:30 p. m.

Program Pointers

A historical review of Braddock by Congressman Clyde Kelly is a highlight of the Westinghouse Parade on KDKA at 6:15 tonight. The children's programs directed by Jane A. White, assistant curator of education at Carnegie Museum, are resumed on WCAE at 5 p. m. today. The daily luncheon musicales from McCreery's also reappear on WWSW today.

Mr. Kelly

"The Octopus," sinister and elusive character who dominates the underworld of Paris, comes to the air over WJAS tonight at 9:30 when "The Lady and the Pearls," the first of a new series of "Evening in Paris Mysteries" is presented.

"Manhattan Apartment," a drama depicting the trials and tribulations of typical American apartment dwellers in three different walks of life, is presented over KDKA at 8:30.

The Prelude to Act III of "Die Meistersinger," Wagner's only comedy opera, and the somber Tschaikovsky work, "March Slav" comprise a symphonic program by Howard Barlow's orchestra on WJAS at 11:15.

"Songs of the Mountains of West Virginia," as interpreted by the McCravy Brothers, and an orchestral medley depicting the legend that the first and last battles of the Revolutionary War were fought in that state, are highlights of the "Parade of States" program on WCAE at 9:30.

The Gypsies offer a school days medley composed of "School Days," "Little Red Schoolhouse" and "I Can't Do That Sum" on WCAE at 9.

Wife Kills Noted Rancher and Self

EL MONTE, Cal., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Howard S. Killian, 39, member of a noted family of Southern California ranchers and bankers, was shot and killed yesterday in his big ranch home near here by his wife, Edna, 35, who then committed suicide. Relatives blamed financial reverses for the tragedy.

Severe Earthquake Rocks Buru Island

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Buru Island in Dutch East India, was struck by a severe earthquake today, according to messages from Amboina.

Listening In—

A Real Trouper. 'Knockout' Hall. Rapee's Name.

Welcome Lewis, the trouper . . . The little crooning princess was playing in vaude in a mid-western city recently when the apparatus which controlled the loud speaker through which her soft voice was amplified, went on what electricians—and others—call "the fritz." But that didn't feaze the tiny star. Pushing the "mike" aside, she stepped to the footlights and opening up with all six cylinders, she filled the house with song. She had become so accustomed to singing softly into a microphone that she couldn't speak for two hours afterward.

Miss Lewis

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—

Patricia Pitt

For the week-end, tennis staged a comeback at the Allegheny Country Club. And wives and sweethearts and parents and friends arrived yesterday and Saturday afternoon to watch the players, invited by the club's tennis committee to play in the two-day tournament.

The players used the grass courts in front of the clubhouse, with benches and chairs arranged at one end for spectators. Others watched from umbrella-shaded chairs on the lawn, and some from the club terrace, between hands of bridge.

Watch Tennis

Among the players, stealing a glance now and then at the tournament, was the Marchesa Dusmet de Smours, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. James B. Oliver and her sister, Mrs. W. J. Crittenden.

The Marchesa, and her husband, the Marchese, who devoted his entire attention to the tennis, will sail on the Bremen this week for Italy.

The younger set was there in all the glory of crisp sports frocks. And September or no September, the smart set is still wearing cotton frocks for sports, and straw hats.

Mrs. George C. Burgwin was there in one of her frocks she makes herself, pink cotton, in shirt-maker style.

Wears Yellow

Margaret Holdship chose a yellow linen frock, having a white embroidered frill at the deep v-neckline, and a jacket of yellow linen to match. And her red wool hat was accented with white yarn, and her purse was red and white wool, too.

Collie Jennings, tall, slender and pale-gold blonde, was striking in a suit of daffodil yellow diagonally striped wool. Yellow was popular indeed, for that was the color of Mrs. James O. Flower's costume, made of linen in shirt-maker style.

Husband In Game

One of the first arrivals at the match was Mrs. Willis McCook, who not so many weeks ago was Jane Allderdice. And her husband was one of the players. She had on a gown of beige crepe trimmed in cinnamon brown, with a hat to match, a color scheme most becoming to her brown eyes and her sun-tan!

With her were Viriginia Frew Wright and Mrs. Howard Burgwin. And I saw Mrs. William Penn Snyder, Jr., in a smart periwinkle blue crepe dress having novel cape sleeves. Mrs. George Harton Singer, Mrs. Marcus Stoner, Mrs. Martin Moore, Mrs. Frank Stoner, Jr., and Mrs. John Painter.

Vivid Blue

Mrs. Frank Stoner wore a trick costume of vivid blue crepe, having a double cape of the same material, with both capes bound in white. And she had a turban of white crepe.

Mrs. Joseph Horne Holmes arrived with Mrs. Thomas L. Orr, in a green cotton shirt-maker dress. And I saw Mrs. George P. Bassett in a vivid red crepe suit printed in white.

Betty Cappeau, Laura Liggett and Nancy and Virginia Doyle were interested in both tennis and golf.

The George W. Cahoons, of Wightman street, and Mrs. Cahoon's son, Bill Bailey, have returned from the Eastern shores of Maryland, where they have spent the summer with Mrs. Cahoon's brother-in-law and sister, the Grant McKinneys, at their summer home, "Barbormar." The McKinneys have just returned.

Sept. 24 Chosen For Greenwich Horse Show

The show is known for its children's classes, as it brings out practically all the young riders in that section. The program comprises 25 classes. There are to be children's jumping classes, a children's open riding competition class and a parent and child class.

The show is under the auspices of the Fairfield and Westchester Hounds, of which C. Wadsworth Howard and William V. C. Buxton are joint masters, and Alvin Untermyer secretary and treasurer, and the Greenwich Riding Association, of which George E. Vincent is president and Curtis P. Fields secretary and treasurer. This year the horse show committee is composed of Terrell Van Ingen, chairman; William V. C. Buxton and Alvin Untermyer.

Society's Younger Set Vies at Sewickley Swimming Meet

The boys and girls of the prep school set and the in-betweens, down to those just out of kindergarten, gave an exhibition of twist dives that were regular thrillers at the swimming meet at the Little Sewickley Creek Swimming Pool yesterday afternoon.

The Francis H. McKnights sponsored the meet, attended by scores and scores of mothers and fathers and younger and older brothers and sisters.

And it was an exciting afternoon. There was plunging, and there were races for ages from over 15 to all the youngsters under 7. And, most amusing of all, was the candle race, run in three heats, if you please.

George Morgan was the victor. The entrants had to swim the length of the pool with a lighted candle. The first one reaching the opposite end with his candle still lit won that heat.

There were hand twists, back dives, jack-knives, swan dives and hand stand dives. Christopher Goldsbury and Clinton Childs, Jr., carried off the prizes for the boys' diving.

Andy Mary Applegate, who did a hand stand dive, giving the spectators another thrill, won the girls' diving contest, with Marjorie Brown a close second.

In the plunging, Winifred Miller and Marjorie Brown were the winners, and Julian Kennedy III and George Morgan in the boys' class.

Clinton Childs and Julian Kennedy were winners in a 100-yard race, W. Miller and M. Grange in a girls' race, W. Jones and Evan Koger in a boys' race, S. Adams and Sally Lyon in a girls' race, Julian Kennedy III and Bernie Rose in a 25-yard race for boys under 10, and Fredericka McIntosh and Betsy Kennedy in a similar race for girls.

Laura McKnight, Sammy Applegate and Elmer Adams and Betsy Kennedy had a race all their their own—a race to see who could run across the shallow end of the pool the fastest.

Miss Eleanor M. Waters To Wed John Langhorne

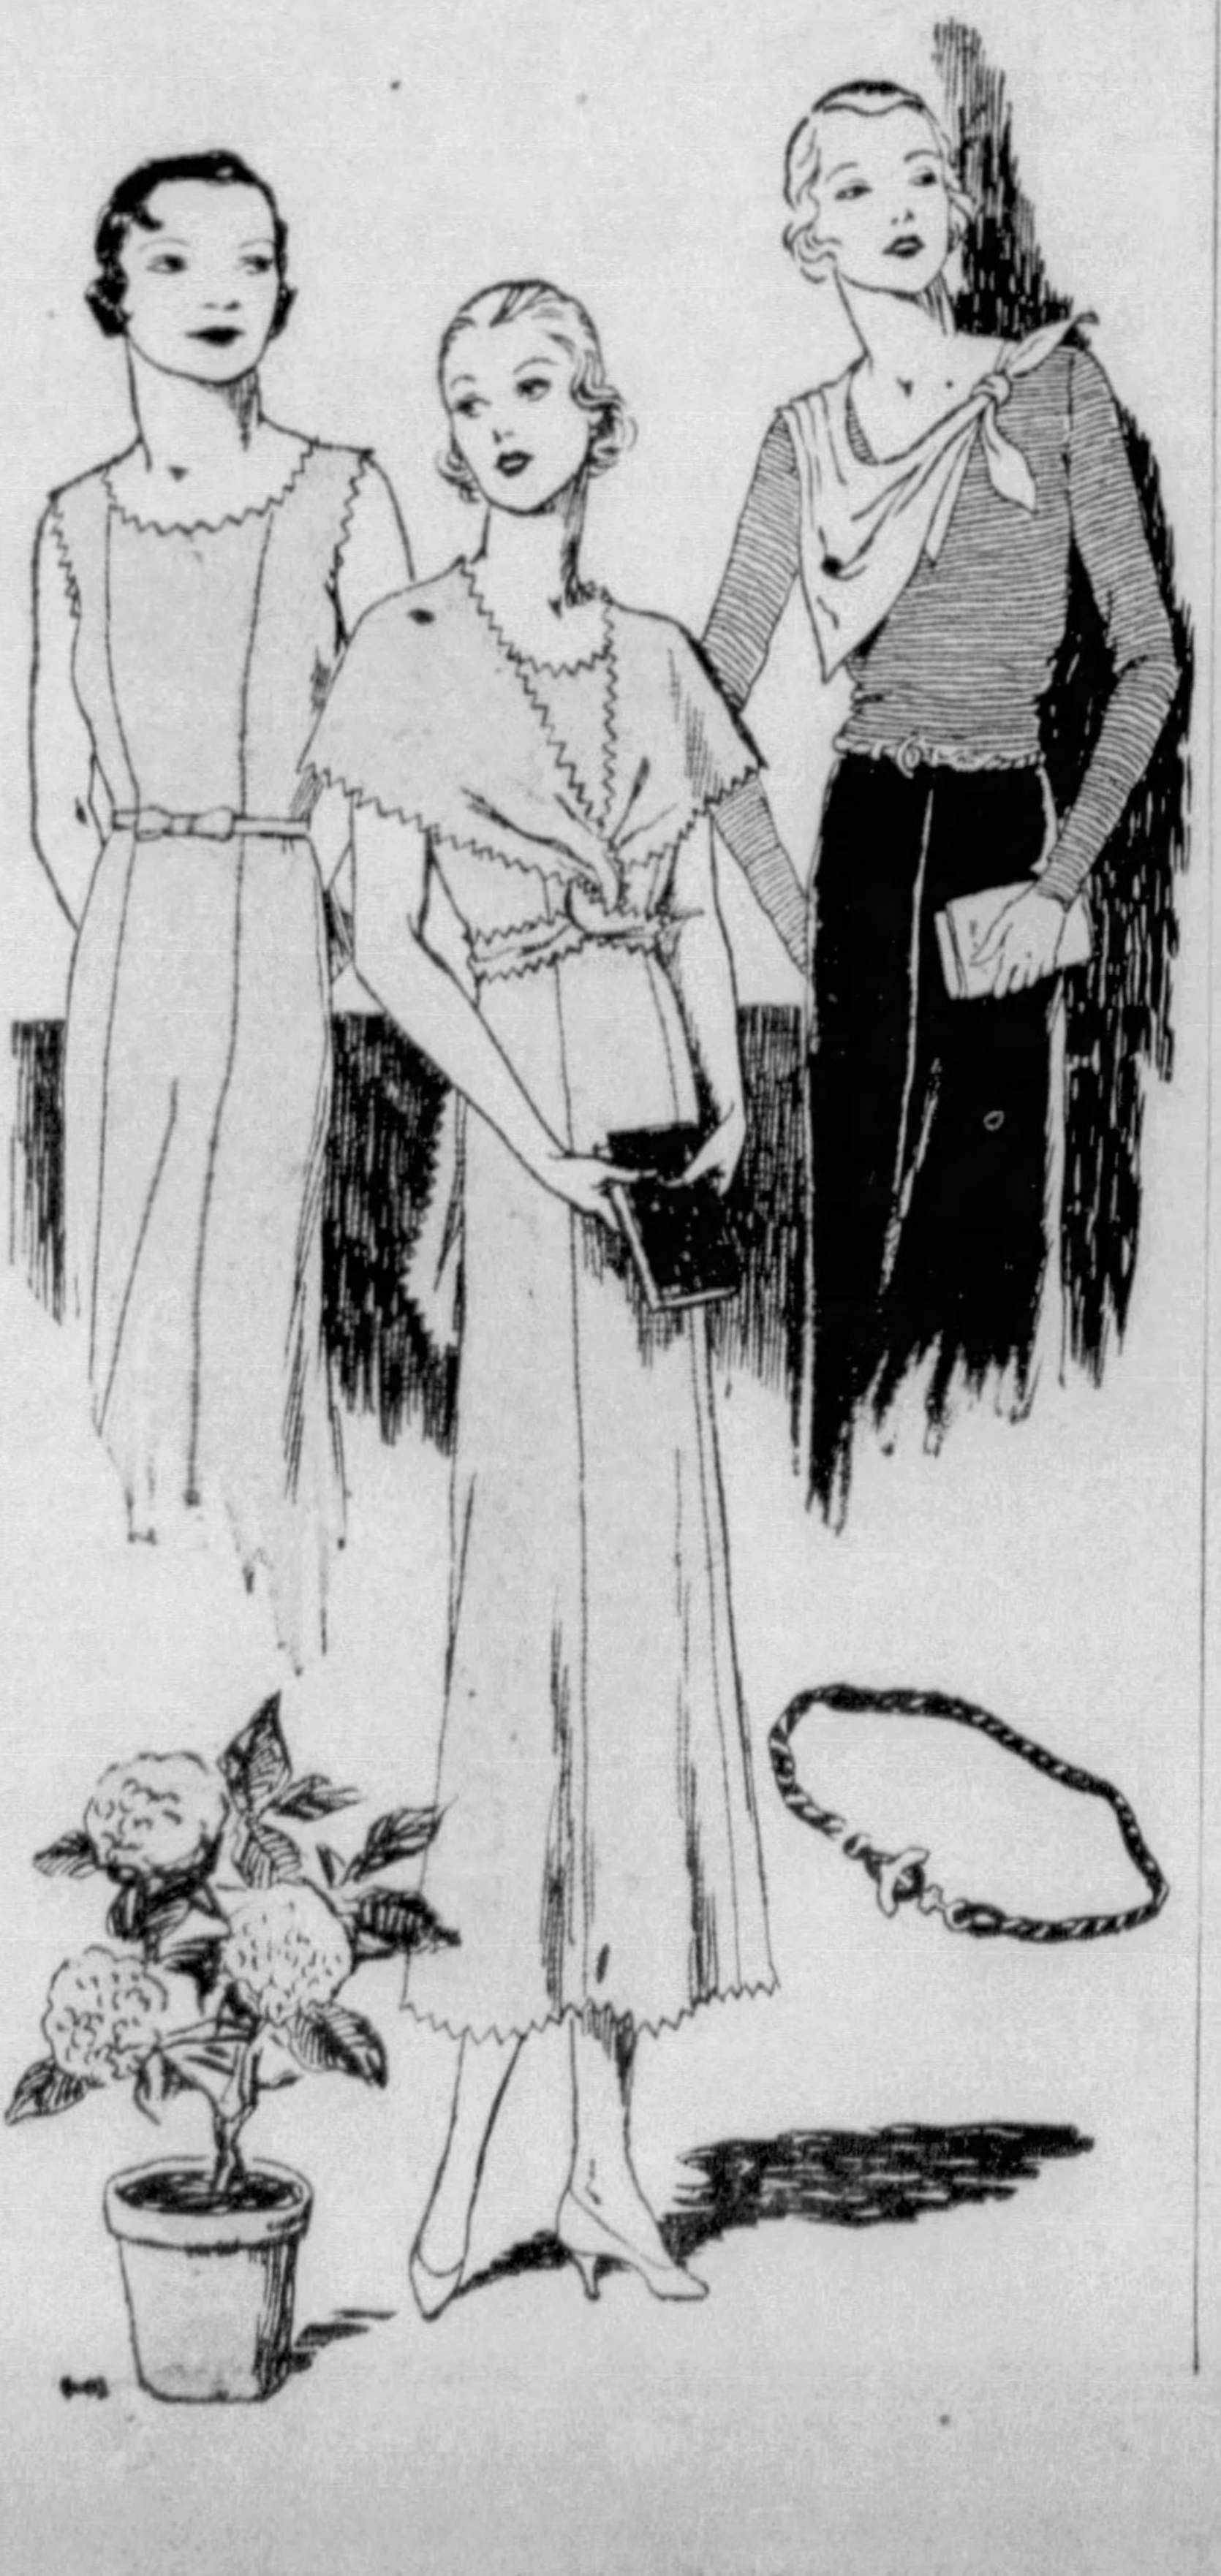
Mr. and Mrs. Rossiter Lester Waters, of Park avenue, New York, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Morrison Waters, to John Langhorne, of Morristown, N. J., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Gay Langhorne, of South Orange, N. J.

Miss Waters was graduated from Spence School and was introduced to society in 1929. Mr. Langhorne attended Lawrenceville School and Princeton University.

The wedding will take place early in December.

SCHOOLGIRL FROCKS SHOULD BE SMART BUT RETAIN YOUTHFULNESS

—Sketched in Paris—



PARIS, Sept. 12.—Schoolgirl clothes are among the current preoccupations of the important French designers. Clothes that are on the road to smartness, yet not overmuch on the fashionable side, still remain one of the few simple types of clothes that not every dressmaker can do. The Paris fashion world, always disapproving of dressing young girls in clothes that are too mature, too stylish and too extreme in line, set great store by those few dressmakers who are expert in making youthful frocks.

JEANNE LANVIN, early in her career as a designer, set aside a certain number of models for girls under 18. She even goes so far, on certain occasions, as to have children act as mannequins, to show how young clothes should be worn. Lucien LeLong has made a name for himself as a designer of youthful clothes—especially those for girls of college age.

FAUVETY is another of the designers whose frocks are especially suited to young women. In a recent collection, there were included a number of frocks and sweaters which had been successful at summer resorts, and were therefore adopted, in new materials, for wear at school and college. Among them was a silk version of the blue-and-white striped beach sweater — originally copied from the uniform of the French sailor boy—and now made suitable for college wear. It is shown in the sketch, worn with a white silk 'kerchief scarf and anchor belt.

THE CONVERTIBLE dinner and dance frock, now made in crepe de chine, was originally in pale blue linen. It may be worn with or without the scarf-belt combination.

Autos Forbidden At Meadowbrook Steeplechase

NEW YORK.—Even the oldest "one-hoss shay" will have an advantage over high powered automobiles at the Meadowbrook Steeplechase on the estate of F. Ambrose Clark, September 24.

Although Mr. Clark occasionally motors he never allows autos on his estate at the annual steeplechase and prefers himself to ride about Long Island in his old-fashioned yellow phaeton.

Last year only those who arrived in horse-drawn vehicles were allowed to drive into his grounds. The rest of the society folk had to walk.

The Meadowbrook Cup is the oldest trophy event in the country. It was first won in 1883 by the late Stanley Mortimer's Hobson's Choice. Mr. Mortimer attended nearly every succeeding event, usually accompanied by his daughter, Countess Edith Zoppola.

The steeplechase last year was won by Mrs. Thomas Durant's McCarthy More. Mrs. Durant, who was formerly Adelaide Hutton, an heiress to the fortune of C. W. Post, cereal king, of Battle Creek, Mich., is building a private steeplechase on her Roslyn (Long Island) estate.

Kentucky Girl And Ben Avon Man Marry

Two late August weddings are just being announced today. The first took place on Sunday, August 28, in Marribone, Ky., when Miss Mary Kate Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Powell Gray, of Marribone, became the bride of Thomas Murphey Batchelor, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Batchelor, of Ohio River boulevard, Ben Avon.

The second took place the next day, August 29. The bride was Miss Nellie Bender, sister of Miss Etta Bender, formerly of South Negley avenue, now of Chicago, and the bridegroom was Charles E. Suiter. The ceremony took place in Chicago, where Mr. and Mrs. Suiter will reside.

Ellen Margaret Meyer Weds Arthur C. Ludwig

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Meyer, of Termon avenue, North Side, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ellen Margaret Meyer, to Arthur C. Ludwig, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Ludwig, of Emsworth, which took place in the Meyer home Saturday evening in the presence of the immediate families.

Newport Show to Be For China Dogs Only

Another dog show will be held in Newport, R. I., on September 23, but it is to be for china dogs only.

It will be for the benefit of the campaign fund of the Newport County Women's Republican Club.

A preliminary meeting was held lately by Mrs. Burdick, wife of Representative Clark Burdick, at her home, where the show is to take place.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cleary Mark Silver Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. John Cleary, of Bellefonte street, East End, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on Saturday, September 3, with a reception and dance in their home in the evening. Covers were laid for 120 guests, and the floral decorations were Killarney roses, snapdragon, gladioli, zinnias and astors.

Ligonier Club Women Hold Flower Show And Luncheon

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

An unusually fine flower show, an actual advance over its two predecessors, was held yesterday and Saturday in the Fort Ligonier Hotel by the Woman's Club of Ligonier. Several new specimens were shown this year, the women exhibiting in all, 225 entries and the 4H Flower Club 125 entries.

Among the winners in the former class were Mrs. Charles Ambrose, Mrs. Ida Quear, Mrs. Harry Wilt, Mrs. Ernest Newel, Mrs. John Minohen, Mrs. W. W. Stewart, Mrs. Frank Cook, Mrs. J. P. Jones, Mrs. J. M. Mull, Mrs. Lewis Stoner, Mrs. Wayne Rawley, Mrs. Louis R. Schmertz, Mrs. Jacob Stear, Mrs. Clay Smith and Mrs. A. S. Hamilton.

Prize Winners

The 4-H Club members who won cash awards were Mabel Jean Leslie, Martha Withrow, Dora Graham, Cartha Graham, Jean Peterson, Robert Welty, James Holman, Loretta Withrow, Reba James, Marian Hamill, Louise Heintzleman and Anna Jane Mull and Robert Hamill.

The flower show, which was in charge of Mrs. George Naugle and Mrs. John Paul Jones, was opened in conjunction with the Women's Club luncheon in the hotel. Mrs. A. J. McColly turned the gavel and its responsibilities over to her successor, Mrs. George Freeman, who introduced several visitors, including Mrs. David Denman, of Latrobe; Mrs. Sara McHail, president of the Bolivar Current Events Club; Mrs. D. T. Wagner, president of the Derry Community Club, and W. L. Treager, county agricultural agent.

There was music by the club choral, which has improved in harmony and technique since its organization a year or so ago, and a high school quartet played during luncheon.

Respect Comes To Those Who Strive For It

Must Rose give up her nameless baby?

Her family says she must,

"Keep that brat around here, to advertise your shame and disgrace us all?" they shout at her. "No! Get rid of it! Let some good family adopt it!" But—

"I can't! I can't!" her heart cries. For when the nurse came the first time to her bedside and laid the wriggling pink bundle in her arms, she knew her first real thrill. And now it has become so much a part of her that the very thought of giving it up pulls her heart in two.

"And I am sure that somehow, I CAN take care of it!" she sobs. "But they say——"

Who do YOU think is right—the folks? Or Rose?

"Dear Sally:

"I am coming to you because my heart is breaking, and I don't know what to do—whether I have a right to do what I want to—or whether I must do what my people say.

"It is hard for me to tell you what my problem is, but I have finally found the courage to do it. I am the mother of a little fatherless baby.

"I know that I should have known better than to get into this, and I am not blaming anyone but myself. I was just a silly, headstrong kid, who thought she knew it all and thought she was in love. Well, I have waked up. But that doesn't solve anything. For now my baby is here. I can't bear the thought of giving it up. And my people say I must.

WANTS TO KEEP CHILD

"They are willing for me to come home and live with them, but not if I bring the baby. They say they won't have it around. They don't want any of the people who know us to know that I have a baby. So far, they don't know. But if I keep it they will be bound to find out some day, even if I don't come home with it.

"And another trouble is that I am not making much money where I am, and, of course, living away from home costs something, too. So I know that if I keep it, it is going to be a pretty stiff climb. I suppose I ought to do what they say—give it out for adoption to some good people. But I just can't. When the nurse at the hospital brought him to me the first time, I got the biggest thrill I had ever had. The first real thrill of my life. And now, when I pick him up, and his tiny fingers curl around mine, well—it just breaks me all up.

CAN EARN RESPECT

"I have thought of going far away some place where no one knows me, and getting a job. I know it will mean loneliness, and hard work, but I don't mind that, if I can just keep him. But my folk object to that, too. They insist that I have no right to keep him. Is that true? Do you think I should do as they say? I will be waiting for your answer, because no one realizes what he means to me. It will break my heart to let him go, but have I a right to keep him? "ROSE."

Have you the right to keep him?

You have, my dear!

And I'm for you!

You were a reckless kid once, but your baby has made a real woman of you, and I salute your spunk and courage. Keep him, love him and work for him. It won't be easy, but it will be worth it. Put your mistake behind you, hold your head up, go forward. You can make this world respect you, if you'll earn its respect by respecting yourself and your motherhood.

That's MY answer to Rose. What's YOURS, stranger?

Do you think she has a right to keep her baby?

Or do you think she should put it out of her life . . . Give it away to strangers?

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Conversation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a young girl, very quiet and self-conscious and it seems to me that when I am out with other people I can never find anything to talk about like other girls. Some girls seem to have something interesting to say all the time and I feel very quiet, and, in other words, out of it. Could you advise me how I could overcome this, or if you know of any book I could get that would help me in my difficulty. I seem to find it hard to have an answer ready like other girls.

ANXIOUS TO LEARN.

It is the height of banality to say that first you must forget yourself if you wish to get over this self-consciousness, but really it is the only advice that can be given. It's like dancing . . . if you are eternally sure that you will miss a step or lose your partner's rhythm, of course you will do both of these things. But if you change your thought and keep your mind on being in rhythm, you will dance well. If you keep your mind on saying something . . . anything that has even a grain of sense to it . . . you will soon get into the rhythm of conversation, of replying, of tossing the conversational ball back and forth.

One of the great troubles . . . and I am sure that you would tell me that it is one of your troubles . . . is that probably you are trying to think of something brilliant to say, instead of saying something pleasant and natural. Begin with the something-pleasant, the something-natural, and soon these will grow into spontaneously and increasingly interesting things.

A very wise way to help yourself about this is to practice things to say and ways to say them, when you are alone. (And I'm not even going to let you smile at this, for it is really very wise advice!) Begin on the weather and progress to books that you have read, or something that you have read in a magazine or in a newspaper, or some delightful thing that you have noticed about one of your friends, or some observation about bridge or golf or backgammon or tennis or any other game you like, or some observations about your vacation . . . anything that touches your life. Say them to yourself, say them into the mirror . . . this last is guaranteed to cure you of self-consciousness. And again, don't spend your time and thought in envying what other girls do or say . . . get very busy in making yourself get in step with whatever conversation is going on.

No Need for Prohibition if You Drink Wisely, Says Fay King

I DON'T REMEMBER ANY THING!
IF SHE COULD LOOK AHEAD?
BRILLIANT STARS HAVE DRUNK THEMSELVES INTO OBLIVION
FAY KING

By FAY KING

In ancient times, when wine flowed like water, there were those who drank wisely and those who got drunk.

Before prohibition was ever thought of, there were many who drank themselves into failure and physical decline.

And it will always be so, unfortunately, as long as some persons will not exercise their will and reason to prevent excess indulgence in drink.

Geniuses have died in gutters. Stars have fallen from the horizon of their fame. Men amiable and good-natured when sober, have beaten and even killed those they loved, in drunken delirium.

We read sordid cases, in which women who drank too much found themselves suspected of murder.

Why not try?

Hints for the Household

When boiling beetroots, add a pinch of bicarbonate of soda to the water, and they will keep a good color.

Add a few dates to stewed rhubarb. They eliminate the "harshness" and only half the normal quantity of sugar is required.

It is wise to prepare as much as possible for dinner in the morning during the warm months. You are fresh then, it is cooler in the kitchen and you do not have those unpleasant duties after you are tired from other work, because dinner preparations must be done, no matter how tired the housewife.

When you remove your cloth or velvet hat and again before donning it brush it well. A clean hat is far less apt to spot disastrously from rain than a dusty one, as plain water marks will steam out easily without leaving a stain, while if mixed with dust they are very difficult to remove.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Blackheads have a horrid way of settling on the chest and collar bones, probably because frocks that don't go often enough to the cleaners' establishment grind into the pores. A good treatment: bathe the skin surface with soap and water, dry, do an alcohol rub, then put on cold cream applications. Powdering with equal parts of boric acid and baking soda while the skin is moist and steaming after a hot bath, has a way of inviting black specks to pack up and depart.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Foreseeing an End-Play

An end-play in Contract is the manner of playing the cards whereby a chosen adversary is thrown in the lead and forced to make a lead which will give the Declarer a trick not otherwise available. The success of an end-play depends on careful preparation and also sometimes upon finding an opponent not alert to the opportunities of defense.

The method whereby an end-play was foreseen and avoided by correct defense was illustrated clearly in the hand below, played recently in a team-of-four Duplicate match in New York City.

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

North:
♠ J 10 9 5 2
♡ Q 5 2
◊ Q 6
♣ 7 4 3

West:
♠ A Q 7 4
◊ A K 9 5 2
♣ J 2

East:
♡ A 10 9 7 3
◊ 10 3
♣ A 10 9 8

South:
♠ K 6
♡ K J 6
◊ J 8 7 4
♣ K Q 6 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass (1)	1 ◊	Pass	1 ♡
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣ (2)
Pass	2 ◊ (3)	Pass	2 NT (4)
Pass	3 NT	Pass	Pass
Pass

(1) While South has the requirements for a minimum Opening bid, the hand is far from strong in playing-tricks and the pass is preferable.

(2) A greatly shaded bid. One notrump is preferable here.

(3) A sign-off. West feels that the misfit of the hands will not permit the making of game.

(4) East refuses to heed the warning.

As a Double Dummy proposition of play—that is, had all the cards been exposed — unquestionably South's best lead would have been the spade King, but South did not have the benefit of seeing the hands of his opponents, and after consideration, selected as his lead the club 6, deciding against the fourth best lead because of the information it might afford the Declarer. This trick was won with the club Knave in Dummy, and the Declarer then laid down the diamond King and followed with a small diamond. As a matter of fact, at this point he could have made the hand had he played low from the Dummy, won the club trick in his own hand and led the Ten of diamonds, permitting North to win with the Queen.

North, in the lead with the Queen of diamonds, returned a club, which South was permitted to win. At this point, South could see the strong possibility of an end-play in the making, and thus was required to take steps at once to prevent it. He therefore led the spade 6, and the Queen in Dummy held the trick. The Ace of diamonds was led and followed with another diamond, and South was again in the lead. He continued with the spade King, which was won with Dummy's Ace, and the last diamond cashed.

South's hand was now void of diamonds and spades, and careful defense was necessary if the contract was to be defeated. The heart 6 was discarded on the last diamond. A small heart was now led from dummy, the declarer winning with the ace, and South played the king, thereby avoiding the deadly pitfall to which he would have been subject had he retained the best heart.

It is quite true that this play might sacrifice a trick, but it was also true that South knew if he retained the card, East must make game. The declarer, hoping that South had not foreseen the end-play in the making, now led a small heart, but North, through his partner's unblocking defensive play, won with the Queen and cashed the last two tricks with his established spades.

Today's Question

South bid one no-trump; West two spades; North doubles; East passes. What should South now do? Is there an absolute invariable rule in this situation?

Answer: South should pass as North's double is for penalties, and it is difficult to conceive of any sound opening no-trump bid which would justify taking out the double.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Low Blood Pressure May Not Indicate Ill Health

From time to time I have outlined for you the many causes of high blood pressure. Today I want to tell you something about "hypotension," or low blood pressure. Perhaps too little attention has been given to this subject and possibly too much emphasis has been placed upon high blood pressure.

Dr. Copeland

Low blood pressure is more prevalent than is commonly believed. Since it has no immediate ill effects, it is often overlooked.

The blood pressure varies in different individuals, depending upon age, sex and environment. The approximate pressure can be determined by adding a hundred to your age. A blood pressure of one hundred or less is considered low.

Low blood pressure is not a disease. It is regarded as a sign of some physical disorder and careful investigation should be made to find what it really is. Insurance companies do not reject applicants with low blood pressure, as they do if it is too high. Persons with low pressure are accepted if there is no damage to the heart, blood vessels, liver, kidneys or the general circulation.

Low pressure may be temporary or permanent. It is frequently seen in the temporary form after severe shock, operation, accident, or hemorrhage. Low pressure may be found in certain acute diseases, especially typhoid fever. It is also met as a temporary condition in pneumonia, diphtheria and typhus fever.

Peristent low blood pressure is encountered in tuberculosis. Some authorities believe that the degree of hypotension, low blood pressure, is an index of the seriousness of this disease. It is regarded as a good sign when the blood pressure which has been low, increases or reaches normal.

Disturbances of the adrenal glands produce low blood pressure. This is seen in "Addison's disease," a disease of those glands.

Low blood pressure may be caused by chronic inflammation of the tonsils, defects of the teeth, nasal sinus or gall bladder disease. Contrary to a common belief that constipation is a frequent cause of high blood pressure, it is now believed to be more frequently encountered in cases of low blood pressure.

Hypotension does not always imply ill health. In fact, the condition may be found in healthy individuals. When no cause for low blood pressure can be found, it is spoken of as "assential hypotension."

MITCHELL'S REPORT ON RIOTS AND ROUT IN CAPITOL

SAYS B. E. F. INCLUDED NON-VETERANS AND MANY CRIMINALS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The text of Attorney General Mitchell's report to President Hoover on the bonus riots in Washington follows in part:

Immediately following the riot by the so-called bonus army on July 28, you directed that an investigation and report thereon be made in this department. We have completed it, and I submit herewith a summary of the result. A vast amount of material in the form of reports, affidavits and documentary evidence has been accumulated. It is only possible here briefly to summarize the conclusions.

Invasion of Vets

1. The entry of the bonus army into the District of Columbia.

The first contingent of the bonus army arrived about May 27. On June 3, information reached the department that a contingent from Cleveland led by C. B. Cowan and another from Detroit led by John T. Pace, comprising about 1,300 men, gathered at the Pennsylvania Railroad yards at Cleveland and had held up a mail train and attempted to commandeer transportation to Washington. Cowan, one of these leaders, has a long police record: he has been convicted and sentenced twice for forgery in Ohio and was sentenced to 13 months for robbing the mails to the United States Penitentiary at Atlanta in 1928. Pace, a well known Communist leader, has an extended police record.

By one means and another these groups and others obtained transportation to Washington. By the middle of June they had congregated here in large numbers. They entered into possession of various tracts of government property on some of which were old buildings.

2. The quality of the Bonus Army.

To understand the conditions causing the riot it is necessary to know something of the character of the men in the bonus army.

(A)—Number of marchers who were not ex-service men. A considerable number of the marchers were not in military service during the World War. An approximation of the number is impossible, but two items of reliable information throw some light on this question.

Prior to the riot of July 28, 341 members of the bonus army had been arrested at various dates for a variety of offenses, including disorderly conduct, parading without a permit, assault with a dangerous weapon, destruction of private property, trespass on private property and soliciting alms.

Prior to June 12, 3,656 of the marchers who were arriving at Washington registered on the muster rolls of the bonus army, giving their names, army numbers, and other data respecting their World War service. These muster rolls came into the hands of the police and ultimately to the Veterans' Bureau, which commenced to check the names to ascertain whether the marchers were ex-service men. Learning what use was being made of the muster rolls, after June 12 the marchers discontinued the practice of registering. These first 3,656 registered arrivals had been checked by the War Department and the Veterans' Bureau against their records of World War service men, with the result that of the total of 3,656, 877 or a little more than one-fourth, could not be identified in either department as having had World War service. It is possible that some of the 877 were ex-service men and could not be identified because of meager information, but the bulk of them were evidently imposters. It has been reported in the press that Director Hines of the Veterans' Bureau has said that over 90 per cent of the bonus army were ex-service men. Gen. Hines made no such statement.

Police Records

(B)—Number of bonus marchers with criminal or police records.

Two sources of information are available on this subject. Of the 51 arrested men fingerprinted by the police prior to the riot of July 28 and checked in the fingerprint division of this department, 17, or an even one third, had been convicted of various offenses, including larceny, assault, sex offenses, forgery, robbery, military offenses and disorderly conduct. A more striking result is obtained from the check by the Criminal Identification Bureau of this department of the fingerprints of 4,723 of the bonus marchers who were admittedly veterans and applied for and obtained loans from the Veterans' Bureau after Congress adjourned, for the ostensible purpose of returning to their homes. Of these 4,723, 1,069 were found to have police records.

Eight hundred and twenty-nine, or nearly one in five of the World War service men among the bonus marchers who obtained loans, had been convicted for various offenses, including assault, larceny, burglary, embezzlement, robbery, felonious homicide, forgery and counterfeiting, sex offenses and narcotic drug [illegible].

[illegible] with this [illegible] "A" a detailed [illegible] 1,0[illegible] of the 4,723 borrowers who have police records, giving in detail the time and place of their arrests and convictions. It is probable the Bonus Army brought into the city of Washington the largest aggregation of criminals that had ever been assembled in the city at any one time.

(C) Communists. As soon as the bonus march was initiated, and as early as May, 1932, the Communist party undertook an organized campaign to foment the movement, and induced radicals to join the marchers to Washington.

(D) The investigations we have conducted demonstrated that a very much larger proportion of the bonus army than was realized at the time, consisted of ex-convicts, persons with criminal records, radicals and non-service men. On the other hand a very considerable number were genuine ex-service men of good intentions and clean records. This is particularly true of the conditions prior to the adjournment of Congress and before the exodus of those who realized that they had no further justification for remaining in the city. Some of their leaders were decent and law-abiding, and others were not.

Holds Laws Violated

3. Further conditions prior to the rioting.

After the adjournment of Congress, the quality of the men in the bonus army steadily deteriorated. With Congress gone, no possible excuse existed for remaining in the city. The army was repeatedly asked to disband and vacate government property, but refused. It circulated around the city individually and in small groups and even in large bodies, asking or demanding money and supplies. Many reports have been received that they practically levied tribute on small merchants, and intimidated housewives when their demands were refused. Some of them boarded running-boards of cars driven by women and were disagreeable and insulting.

Notwithstanding all these conditions, they were tolerated and gently dealt with by the community in the hope that they would see the futility of remaining and would consent to return to their homes. On July 26 a letter was written by the Treasury to the Commissioners of the District, stating that the treasury planned to begin work in the area July 27, and requested that a sufficient detail of police be on hand to prevent any interference with the contractor or his workmen.

Rioting Starts

(Here, under the heading "The Riot and the Use of Troops," the report tells of the peaceful eviction of persons from government property, but declares that while this was going on a mob of 2,000 or 3,000 bonus marchers from Camp Marks invaded the area and attacked the 75 policemen on guard with bricks and clubs. More marchers arrived until, the report says, nearly 20,000 persons, including spectators, were at the scene.) The report continues:

Finally the mob of bonus marchers again attacked the police with bricks, lumps of concrete and iron bars. Two of the bonus marchers were shot by police who had been set upon and were in danger of their lives. The entire mob became hostile and riotous. It was apparent that a pitched battle on a large scale might start at any moment. Practically the entire police force of the city were called from their posts and assembled at this point, but they were outnumbered 10 or 15 to 1.

Maj. Glassford went to the office of the District Commissioners at 1 p. m. He stated that the situation was out of his control.

There is no difference of opinion about the fact that the presence of troops was necessary to and did prevent further disorder and bloodshed. In their absence, further rioting would have occurred with further bloodshed among bonus marchers and police, and possibly innocent bystanders.

The troops arrived and, with the use of practically no weapons except tear gas, restored order and cleared the area and put an end to the disturbance.

Flaws Found in Vet Riot Report

pants of the taxicab, including the driver, were obliged to hold handkerchiefs over their faces to protect their eyes and nostrils, the cab being driven with great difficulty.

The writer found the Twelfth street area still occupied by bewildered men, women and children. They might or might not have been Communists, at least they were human beings in a situation of acute anguish.

Their wretched belongings had been gathered into bundles. One man this writer talked to had been sleeping for a month on a bare floor in a deserted building. The one mattress and blanket owned by this miserable family were shared by the wife and two small kids.

As this writer passed among these people the hoofbeats of the slowly advancing cavalry could be heard.

Realizing the hopelessness of their frightful plight, with the darkness of night falling into purpling shadows over the top of the monument reared to the memory of the great and noble founder of American freedom under the flag, these tatterdemalions, with their despairing women and children, moved on down the street, penniless, shelterless, hopeless, and friendless, with no coherent notion in their heads as to where they would find a place to sleep, or a morsel to eat.

Evacuation Impossible to Deny

This writer remained there and was present when the United States Cavalry arrived. If those bonus marchers hadn't been evacuated by the troops, in God's name how would a proper respect for the English tongue lead one to another description?

No, Attorney General Mitchell is wrong again. It is apparent he has been sadly misinformed—or misdirected.

Now, as a matter of fact, there were nine bonus army units encamped in the socalled Twelfth street area. It is this area which the Attorney General describes as being "occupied principally by Communists headed by Pace."

Attorney General Mitchell is wrong again. This area was not "occupied principally by Communists," and the police records will not bear Mr. Mitchell out.

Of the nine units in this area only one was of Communists, commanded by John T. Pace. The other eight were ex-service men, and were not radicals. But the Attorney General ignores this, and lumps the whole area as radical.

A police check-up at the time of the attempt to picket the White House by the Communists, on July 21, disclosed that there were only 210 radicals then in the city. This was the peak number the radicals ever reached.

The Attorney General himself states that there were, after the adjournment of Congress, from 6,000 to 8,000 bonus marchers in Washington. Police figures officially place the radicals at not to exceed 210 at their peak, a very small percentage.

What then became of the Attorney General's statement that:

"There is irrefutable proof that a very large body of Communists and radicals, some ex-service men and some not, were in the city as part of the bonus army!"

The Attorney General's "irrefutable proof" is very easily refuted by the records of the Washington police, with which the people of Washington have long been familiar. It is too bad that the Attorney General has not familiarized himself with them.

Statement Aimed at Portland

It seems obvious that this whole statement by the Attorney General was not intended for consumption in Washington, where the facts are well known, but for consumption in the country at large, and particularly in Portland, Ore.

There are other police records, official figures, with which the Attorney General also appears to be unfamiliar.

"It is probable," says Mr. Mitchell, in his report to the President, and given out by the White House, "the bonus army brought into the city of Washington the largest aggregation of criminals that had ever been assembled in the city at any one time."

There is absolutely nothing whatever in the official police records of Washington to sustain this deadly blow by the administration at the integrity of the ex-service men of the bonus army.

Crime Actually Decreased

On the contrary the two months, June and July, when the bonus army was in Washington, were marked by no increase in crime whatever. In some crimes there was an actual decrease during this period, as is shown by the official records of the police department.

These records disclose that in this entire period only 362 bonus marchers were arrested, and of these only 12 were guilty of crimes. The rest were charged with minor offenses. There was one homicide, of one bonus marcher by another, in this period, out of a total of 20 murders committed in Washington in that period.

There were two assault cases involving bonus marchers, and seven assaults with deadly weapons, out of a total of 41 such cases in the city.

With all their misery and destitution, there was but one case of the passing of a bad check by a bonus marcher during the two months period. There were no arrests among them for grand larceny. And the Attorney General would have the country believe that the ex-service men, seeking their bonus from Congress, brought to Washington the "largest aggregation of criminals that had ever been assembled in the city!"

It would be ludicrous but for the overwhelming pity of it. Their only crime was poverty, their offense their friendliness.

President's Statement On Mitchell Report

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The text of President Hoover's statement making public the Attorney General's bonus riot report follows:

"On the 28th of July last I announced that I had directed the Department of Justice to exhaustively investigate and report in full upon the incidents of the so-called bonus riots of that day in Washington and to present the facts, through sworn witnesses, to the grand jury. I further stated that I should make the Attorney General's report public when received by me.

"The investigation has been completed. In giving out the report which shows the character of many of the persons assembled, the incidents and character of the instigators of the riots, I wish to state emphatically that the extraordinary proportion of criminal, Communist and non-veteran elements amongst the marchers as shown by this report, should not be taken to reflect upon the many thousands of honest, law-abiding men who came to Washington with full right of presentation of their views to the Congress.

"This better element and their leaders acted at all times to restrain crime and violence, but after the adjournment of Congress a large portion of them returned to their homes and gradually these better elements lost control.

"This report should correct the many misstatements of fact as to this incident with which the country has been flooded."

Teacher Fired, Pupils Go Out on Strike

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Members of the senior class at Old Forge High School went on strike today over the dismissal of Luther Giardano, history teacher. The students say the teacher was fired over politics. Police were on guard at the school today, but no trouble occurred.

Drags Dog by Auto To End Its Barking

FERNDALE, Mich., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Whitney Smart today faced a warrant charging cruelty to animals because, police said, he dragged a dog behind his automobile to break it of barking at passing cars. The dog's paws and legs were badly torn.

Donlon Holds Report On B. E. F. Distorted

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Thomas (Red) Donlon, national junior vice president of the B. E. F., today characterized the Attorney General's report of the Anacostia situation "a mass of misrepresentations, distorted assumptions and deliberately twisted conclusions."

Donlon charged the report was a "bare-faced attempt to patch up irreparable damage" which was done the Republican cause, he said as a result of the forced evacuation by the veterans.

Legion Convention News Barred From Radio

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Broadcasting of news developments at the American Legion convention today was barred from the radio.

To the amazement of Legion officials, the two great national broadcast companies have made no arrangements to send out over their chain systems any news description of convention affairs. The national hookups thus far arranged will deal only with reception speeches, the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, prayers, a description of the great parade and speeches before the national commander's banquet.

Floyd Gibbons, famous war correspondent and broadcaster, came here as a guest of the Legion. He will broadcast descriptions only of the parade and banquet, while introducing to the ether a few speakers who appear before the convention.

National Commander Henry L. Stevens, Jr., was understood to have telegraphed protests to both broadcasting companies. He felt the Legion was being discriminated against as a news source this year, after the two companies had given it hours on the air daily at the Detroit and other conventions.

CHARGES THAT CRIMINALS, REDS CONTROLLED 'ARMY' BRANDED FALSE HERE

Leaders of Allegheny County's contingent of the bonus army, commenting today upon the report of Attorney General Mitchell that many members of the B. E. F. ousted from Washington by federal troops were criminals and impostors, took exception to the report, pointing out that the men were veterans and law-abiding citizens.

County leaders of the American Legion took the same stand as the bonus army leaders and joined them in rebuking the Hoover administration for the ejection of the bonus forces on July 28.

Walter Kruse, leader of 112 ex-service men from New Kensington, Springdale, Natrona and Brackenridge, said:

"If there were any so-called criminals and convicts in Washington they were not among our group. I knew all of the men personally and I know that they were all loyal American citizens. If we found a Red in camp he didn't stay two minutes. We ran him out and he stayed out.

"I want to add that all of the men respected the Constitution of the United States, but they had no respect whatsoever for Hoover."

John J. Deller, past commander of the Allegheny County American Legion, said:

"It looks like somebody is trying to use the Legion for political purposes and the real facts should come out in the convention at Portland. I didn't think it wise to bring men in to chase the veterans out. I think we should do something about it when our high executives resort to the practice they did of using soldiers to fight against soldiers."

Robert K. Cochrane, Jr., of 3909 Brownsville road, newly elected commander of the Allegheny County American Legion, said:

"I understand that the bonus marchers had to have an honorable discharge before they could register in Washington. It's a pretty bad thing for the government to list them as criminals unless they absolutely know. Mitchell's report, to me, looks like a move to protect Hoover."

J. Guy Griffith, of 328 Riverview drive, New Kensington, state service officer for the American Legion, said:

"I was there at the time; Mitchell's report does not give the facts at all. The boys I met in Washington did not look like criminals. They had an absolute right to go down there and present their claims.

"If the administration would have gone half way and called in the bonus leaders and discussed the matter, it would not have been necessary to drive them out.

"The bonus marchers were sick and hungry and could have been led in peaceful action. Instead, the troops were marched in with their bayonets and tear gas as though it were a great holiday."

John Culshaw, leader of the McKeesport-Duquesne forces, who was in Washington for almost two months, said:

"I didn't think that Uncle Sam would pull a stunt like he did. Members of my group had every reason to go and should have been treated fairly. As it was, we were treated like dogs and driven out. None of them were convicts, as Mitchell says. They are American citizens who had gone to Washington for a square deal. There were nearly 150 men in my group and they were all veterans."

W. A. Scott, past commander of Homestead Post No. 60, said:

"Attorney General Mitchell is a liar! Why, those boys he calls cirminals are the very lads he was so proud to have stick behind him and the country back in '17 and '18. They're the same lads who were promised every cockeyed thing in of the world back in 1917, who went overseas and won the war—and came back to find their jobs gone.

"Every one of them had honorable discharge papers. They went down to Washington to plead for justice at the hands of the government for which they fought and risked their lives. They were respectable American citizens asking for a square deal and a chance to pay their just debts.

"The head of the traffic division in Washington said they were the easiest men to handle in his 15 years of experience.

"Mitchell should be asked what office he's after. The men in my group were all veterans and respectable citizens. When Mitchell says they were criminals, he's lying."

Former Legion Commander Raps Hoover

Editor's Note—A large majority of the veterans attending the American Legion convention went on the war path today as a result of President Hoover's statement regarding the ousting of the Bonus Army from Washington. Their attitude was exemplified by the past national commander of the Legion.

By RALPH T. O'NEIL

Past National Commander of the American Legion.
Written Expressly for International News Service.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12.—President Hoover has aroused deep resentment among veterans of the World War by his ill-advised defense of the unjustified use of federal troops in ejecting bonus marchers from Washington. In my opinion, it was unfortunate.

The bonus march may have been irregular; it may have drawn to the capital hundreds of men with police records, but there were other and more humane methods of getting them to abandon their cause than to assail them with bayonets and gas. The President can scarcely win popular approval of his action by charging the ranks of our veterans are filled with criminals.

CITES COURTS

The criminals, if there were any, should have been dealt with by the Department of Justice and through the courts. The thousands of service men in Washington, who were not criminals nor Communists, should have been treated as patriotic American citizens, perhaps wrong in their cause and perhaps misguided, but entitled to the protection, not persecution, of our government.

The nation, in my opinion, will not forget that federal troops, armed with rifles and bayonets, supported by tanks, machine guns and artillery drove hundreds of women and children from the Anacostia camp in the dead of night. There is a dispute whether one child died from the gas attack, but no one can deny that hundreds of women and children did suffer from the gas attack.

SMALL PROPORTION

Out of 4,723 veterans, whose identity was learned, it is said but 829 were convicted of crimes. The people will bear in mind there were 20,000 veterans in Washington and that this cross-section of our veterans were men desperate with hunger and long out of employment. But neither does the President nor his Attorney General say a single one of them was convicted of crime against the fine citizens of the District of Columbia before the attack on them by troops.

Ours is a constitutional form of government. It would rest better with our fellow citizens if the government had paid a little more attention to the Constitution in the handling of this problem. Trespassers should be dealt with in the courts. The courts were open and functioning but were ignored. The government, instead, called out federal troops against the men who served our flag in France. Then, there are great constitutional lawyers who point out troops were used without a declaration of martial law—and the Constitution only permits the use of troops under a declaration of martial law.

The kindest thing we can say is that the President blundered in using troops.

The kindest thing we can say about his defense of that unwarranted action is that he has blundered once more.

CHARGES FALSE, SAYS WATERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Walter W. Waters, commander of the bonus expeditionary force, in a statement issued last night through an aide, said the "charges" contained in Attorney General Mitchell's report on the bonus army were "absolutely without foundation in fact."

His statement follows:

"Mr. Mitchell's charges are absolutely without foundation in fact, the grand jury failed to find they had any basis, since they returned only three minor indictments against men who could hardly be called representatives of the bonus army.

"The statement is only a rehash of all the charges that have been made and published by the administration since the eviction of the B. E. F. In these charges, they have failed to state both sides. It was Mr. Mitchell's job to furnish this information and he did the best he could."

POLICE HEAD REFUTES MITCHELL

DENIES ASKING TROOPS TO OUST VETS

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—"Attorney General Mitchell's report is at variance with the facts known to police."

This was the stunning verdict of Washington's Police Supt. Pelham D. Glassford after a careful study of the Justice Department's report on the bonus army, presented today by President Hoover.

Glassford, who directed police supervision of the tatterdemalion army of marchers during their stay in the Capital, said he was up until the small hours of the night studying the report. He took issue with the conclusions presented by Attorney General Mitchell in several specific instances, and announced he would issue a comprehensive statement covering the whole thing for tomorrow morning's papers.

DENIES ASKING TROOPS

First of all, Glassford denied that he ever appealed for federal troops which drove out the marchers. The Mitchell report, dealing with this question, had said:

"He (Gen. Glassford) was asked the direct question whether he thought it necessary to secure the assistance of federal troops, to which he replied in the affirmative."

Glassford, discussing the report today for International News Service, said:

"I never asked for troops at any time. The statement that I had asked for them came from the district commissioners, not from me."

Glassford was critical of another phase of the Mitchell report specifically. The report in its section dealing with grand jury action after the bonus riots of July 28, leading up to the calling of federal troops, said the court action had been unsatisfactory, and blamed the police department.

Glassford said he could not understand this, and has asked Inspector O. T. Davis, who was in charge of much of the police bonus work, for an explanation.

REPORT ON RESULTS

The report has this to say of "unsatisfactory results:"

"The reason is that on the day of the riot no detective officers were at Camp Marks, where originated the large movement to march over and attack the police. The function of having detectives and crime prevention agents in a position to observe and obtain evidence against those who at the last moment incited the riotous march and attack, belonged to the district police.

"The inspector in charge (Davis) reports that he had no orders to place men for that purpose, and, on the contrary, on the day of the disturbance was directed to keep his men out of that area."

To this Glassford replied hotly:

"I am calling upon Inspector Davis for an explanation of this thing. It is news to me that one of my inspectors should be guilty of this disloyalty. I never issued any such orders."

TERMS REPORT HOOVER ALIBI

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—President Hoover's issuance of Attorney General Mitchell's report on eviction of the bonus army was termed "a political alibi" in a statement today by R. B. Ellison, who described himself as national organizer of the Khaki Shirts of America and former national contact officer of the Bonus Expeditionary Force. He said:

"In reading the latest effort of the administration to justify its forcible eviction of the bonus army from Washington, one is first struck by the fact that its release to the press and the public is timed to coincide with the opening of the national convention of the American Legion, where President Hoover and his henchmen must make their last desperate bid to regain the respect of the ex-service men of the country.

"Like all previous administration statements on the subject, the whitewash for the administration is mud for the bonus army, an attempt to justify the use of force against unarmed and helpless men, women and children by slandering those against whom the force was directed."

COMMANDER WATERS, BONUS CHIEF

held a series of all-night conferences with department commanders and state leaders. On every side, they were told the President's Sunday statement had provoked a fight over the resolution—a fight which may end in the American Legion publicly condemning his official conduct.

FEAR FOR HURLEY

There was widespread concern among the Legion leaders over the type of reception Hurley will get when he appears before the convention. Rumors persisted that his part in the use of troops against the jobless veterans had aroused so much bitterness, the legionnaires would hiss and boo him.

These rumors were so prevalent the Legion's executive committee passed a resolution authorizing National Commander Henry L. Stevens, Jr., to clear all galleries in event Hurley is insulted. The resolution was unprecedented. Stevens also appealed to a special session to do everything in their power to prevent disorders when Hurley appears. He insisted the Legion should be prepared to "treat all guests with every courtesy."

Before the state leaders agreed to stamp out anti-Hurley demonstrations Stevens virtually agreed to put a ban on any bonus talk by the Secretary.

Wise politicians among the Legion leaders regarded the President's move as the opening shot in a war against the Legion for its pending indorsement of the cash bonus issue. They said the President sought to discredit the Legion in the public mind in order to destroy its influence in the presidential campaign and to prepare the way for victory in the bonus battle before Congress in December. Some thought he might win such a campaign; others felt it was doomed to defeat, but both sides called it a blunder just the same.

REPEAL FIGHT SURPRISE

Developments over the prohibition issue surprised many Legion leaders. They expected a few anti-dry resolutions would be sponsored, but anticipated no trouble in killing them off in committee. They guessed wrong. The repeal movement swept through the delegations like a prairie fire and when the conservatives began checking up, they found the repealists had clinched a majority of the convention's votes.

The opening session today was devoted to organization formalities, addresses by distinguished guests and the annual report of the national commander. The latter annual dinner will be held tonight.

The famous Legion parade will be staged tomorrow with the fireworks coming Wednesday. All legislative recommendations — including prohibition and bonus—and resolutions (possibly a censuring of the President) will be voted upon that day. On Thursday a new national commander is chosen and the convention adjourns.

DEFENDS TROOP USE IN OUSTER

munist and non-veteran elements" among the marchers gained control of the B. E. F. from the "better element" after Congress adjourned.

Charging the bonus army brought to Washington "the largest aggregation of criminals that had ever assembled in the city at one time," Mitchell reiterated earlier administration accusations that "Communists and radicals" were primarily responsible for the disorders.

Administration supporters at the legion's Portland convention will attempt to head off a resolution censuring the President for calling out federal troops to drive the B. E. F. from the capital. Secretary of War Hurley flew to Portland to present the administration's case.

Mitchell's report constituted the most severe attack on the bonus army yet to come from official quarters.

'CRIMINALS AND IMPOSTORS'

Only 4,723 of the marchers were actually veterans of the World War, large numbers were "impostors," and several hundred had criminal records, Mitchell said.

Use of troops were justified, the Attorney General contended, to prevent "disorder and bloodshed." It is "intolerable," he added, that organized groups of men should encamp in the capital and "attempt to live off the community like soldiers billeted in an enemy country."

C. B. Cowan, leader of the Cleveland contingent, and John T. Pace, of Detroit, chief of the so-called "left wing" elements of the B. E. F. were charged by Mitchell with having criminal records. Mitchell dealt at length on the police and criminal records of the marchers to justify his assertion that "a very much larger proportion of the bonus army than was realized at the time consisted of ex-convicts."

'MANY CONVICTS'

Out of men who were actually war veterans, 1,096 had police records, and 829 had been convicted of major offenses, he stated.

The report said 877 men, or more than one-fourth of those registered on the muster roll at the bonus camp, could not be identified by the War Department. Mitchell added the "bulk of them were evidently impostors."

President Hoover summoned the troops only after he had been informed the police could not control the situation, Mitchell said. The two bonus marchers slain were killed by the police and not the troops, it was pointed out. Death of a child following the disturbance was attributed to an intestinal disorder and not to tear gas thrown by soldiers.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department is proceeding with its grand jury investigation by which it hopes to sustain charges that guns, ammunition and dynamite were found in the bonus camps.

Legion Leader Dies In Crash of Glider

ENID, Okla., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—A glider, crashing on the local airport from a height of 75 feet yesterday, killed its pilot, John Smebodnick, 38, Enid merchant and American Legion leader. He had helped build it.

SAYS VETS ASK NO FAVORS

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Fighting men in the World War "asked no favors" and "they ask none now," Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, N. C., war-time Secretary of the Navy, told the national convention of the American Legion here today. He added:

"More than that, they wish all administrative policies, which have been justly criticized, repealed and discontinued to the end that this generous nation's policy to the veterans will not be tainted by either extravagance or favoritism."

The solution of national economic problems rests alike upon Legionnaires and all other citizens, Daniels declared, in a prepared address, asserting extravagance in appropriations "is not confined to veteran legislation." He said:

"It has been rampant in almost every line, and in ways without justification. The knife should be applied wherever waste exists."

SENATORS RAP HOOVER ON B.E.F.

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—President Hoover was severely criticised by members of Congress for his attack upon the Bonus Expeditionary Force.

That a congressional investigation will be forced to sift the charges levelled upon the World War veterans by Attorney General Mitchell in his report to the President, was considered likely.

Hoover deserves a vote of censure by the American Legion convention this week at Portland, Ore., Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, declared.

Senator Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, said the President failed to handle the bonus marchers' situation properly, adding:

"No doubt there were some hangers-on in the bonus army, some men who did not belong there, but as a whole they were a fine upstanding lot of men, who had fought for their country.

"To make sweeping charges that the bonus boys were a lot of criminals is a gross injustice.

"If the President had talked to the marchers, explained to them why he could not approve immediate payment of the bonus, I believe all trouble would have been averted. At any rate there was no excuse for sticking bayonets in them."

Senator Brookhart said:

"The bonus marchers were a lot less dangerous to the country than the Wall street crowd that controls the White House.

"I think it is outrageous for the Attorney General to try to brand these boys as criminals and trouble makers. They were genuine soldiers.

"The President, in issuing his attack, is trying to head off a vote of censure from the American Legion convention. I think the Legion will take care of the President's statement. He deserves a rebuke from the Legion for this attack.

"Meanwhile, public opinion will register a deserving rebuke to the President and Attorney General Mitchell."

Hurley Declared Vets Were Law-Abiding

By HERBERT S. WARD

Written for Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The President's release contains an element of truth presented in a false aspect that is wholly misleading to one not intimately acquainted with the history of the B. E. F. in Washington

The great majority of the B. E. F. was so orderly that Secretary of War Hurley told Commander Waters on July 26 that the B. E. F. had been a serious problem to the administration because his men had been so "absolutely law-abiding and orderly."

For so large an aggregation of "criminals," as described in Attorney General Mitchell's report, the police records of Washington show no increase of "criminal offenses" during the period of B. E. F. occupation.

Either all these "desperadoes" reformed for two and one-half months, or there is something wrong with the figures.

Hurley, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Heath and Chief of Police Glassford were all advised that the B. E. F. would not oppose the United States with force. There is some evidence that the brick throwing in the Pennsylvania avenue area, which led to the shooting, was started by a group of unidentified men who came into that camp about the time the police arrived.

B. E. F. REPORT HELD FUTILE

The following signed statement on Attorney General Mitchell's bonus army report was made by Raymond Fields, Oklahoma's candidate for national commander of the American Legion. From the state of Secretary of War Hurley, Fields is a Republican, the publisher of a string of 24 Oklahoma newspapers, and was a director of publicity for President Hoover in the last campaign, but is not supporting Hoover for re-election.

By RAYMOND FIELDS

Universal Service.

PORTLAND, Sept. 12.—Coming on the opening day of the American Legion convention, Attorney General Mitchell's report obviously is a gesture of President Hoover intended to influence the convention.

The administration attempt to influence this convention merely represents so many wasted words. Every delegate and every citizen has a fixed opinion of the B. E. F. tragedy at Washington.

The Department of Justice had operatives with each contingent that left any state, and a thorough acquaintance with every move made.

If such conditions existed as are reported by Mitchell, they should have been made public before tanks and bayonets were used.

Such facts, if true, should have given a remedy for the situation instead of an alibi.

These veterans of the B. E. F. were peaceful citizens petitioning the government in a just cause.

If bayonets are to be used, they should be used against lobbyists who secretly buttonhole our congressmen for interests afraid of the light.

What if a bayonet were thrust at Joseph Grundy!

CAMP SHERRY VETS ANGRY

UNIONTOWN, Pa., September 12.—More than 300 World War veterans encamped at Camp Sherry near here expressed themselves as outraged over President Hoover's condemnation of the Bonus Forces at Washington.

Capt. Hoke Smith, National Supply Officer in command of the contingent, the last of the Bonus Army, declared:

"If there are any criminals among us, I am one of them. And I do not hesitate to challenge the President of any other person to prove it.

"We have been in camp here since our evacution of Johnstown. There is not a man in my command that would not give his life for his country even today."

Paralysis Epidemic Unchecked in Phila.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—(INS.)—The expected decrease in the number of infantile paralysis cases had failed to materialize today as 18 new cases were reported to health authorities. Dr. Norman Henry, public health director, said:

"There is no sign of a steady diminution in the disease. We are hoping there will be a turn for the better before September 20, when the schools are scheduled to open."

Memorial Unveiled To St. Gaudens

SAINT GAUDENS, France, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—A bronze memorial to the American sculptor, Augustus Saint Gaudens, was unveiled here yesterday with Robert Scotten, secretary to the American embassy, representing the United States. Saint Gaudens' ancestors lived here.

OBITUARY

Malone Funeral.

Funeral services for Dr. Joseph W. Malone, former Pittsburgher who died Saturday in Brooklyn, N. Y., will be held at the Samson funeral home, 537 Neville street, tomorrow afternoon. Interment will be in Homewood Cemetery. He had practiced medicine in New York 40 years. He was born in Pittsburgh and was a graduate of Baltimore Medical College. He was a member of the Brooklyn Methodist Church and the New York State Medical Association, and was a thirty-second degree Mason. Besides his widow he leaves a daughter, Mrs. D. D. Davis, of Brooklyn; two sisters, Mrs. S. M. Geary, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. C. R. McClelland, of Kutztown, Pa., and a brother, Dr. H. N. Malone, of Pittsburgh.

O'Daniel Funeral.

Funeral services for Allin Frederick O'Daniel, 55, of 108 North Neville street, who died Thursday while visiting in Atlantic City, were to be held at 2 p. m. today in Philadelphia. Interment will be in that city. Mr. O'Daniel, a vice president and director in the Allemannia Fire Insurance Company, Wood street, was prominent in insurance circles in the tri-state district, having been active in that line about 30 years. At one time he was vice president and secretary of the City Insurance Company, of Sunbury, Pa., which later merged with the Allemannia Company. He leaves his widow.

McClelland Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Ralston McClelland, 86, who died Saturday in the home of a daughter, Mrs. J. H. Diamond, of 414 Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg, will be held there at 8 o'clock tonight. A second service will be held in the Slatelick, Pa., Methodist Church at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Besides Mrs. Diamond, she leaves two other daughters, Mrs. J. E. Galbreath and Mrs. J. C. Rodgers, and two sons, Newton R. and Robert G. McClelland.

Canover Funeral.

Funeral services for Miss N. Roseta Canover, a retired school teacher, who died Saturday, will be held tomorrow in Springboro, Crawford County. She retired in 1927 after 30 years' school service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—President Hoover, it was learned reliably today, is preparing a campaign address in which he intends to make excessive expenditures for veterans' relief a direct issue.

The speech will be one of three, to be made at Minneapolis, Chicago and New York. These cities have been tentatively set as focal points for Mr. Hoover's personal drive for re-election.

The President gave fair indication he means to go to the people with his fight against what he considers "treasury raids" by the World War soldiers when he caused issuance of Attorney General Mitchell's scathing denunciation of the B. E. F.

This blast was only the opening gun in Mr. Hoover's campaign against veterans' efforts to secure immediate bonus payment, increased disability compensation and pensions, International News Service is informed.

B. E. F. UPHELD BY PATMAN

In the following article written for Universal Service, Representative Wright Patman, of Texas, gives his views on Attorney General Mitchell's report on the veterans who went to Washington to petition for payment of the bonus.

By WRIGHT PATMAN

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12.—It matters not whether a few members of the bonus army allegedly had criminal records. The principle involved is the right of peaceful assembly to petition Congress in a just cause.

If it is true that the gathering was composed of criminals, then the bonus army represented a great reform movement because the members were peaceful and law-abiding in Washington.

Attorney General Mitchell should commend them rather than condemn them for their actions.

It is my prediction that the American Legion convention will pass a resolution censuring those persons who would deny American citizens the right of peaceful assembly, as was done the bonus army.

'DUGOUT' RAID IRKS LEGION

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12.—(INS.)—A prohibition raid on the "dugout" of the 91st Division, while scores of nearby private speakeasies were reported flourishing unchecked, today aroused widespread resentment among Legionnaires.

The raid was staged by W. K. Newell, assistant prohibition administrator, who sent a man into the "dugout" to register as a veteran of the division. A little later the visitor slipped upstairs to a back room, where a bartender sold him a drink. The raid followed, and the bartender was arrested.

Dan J. Coman, chairman of the division's reunion committee, charged the raid was staged for the purpose of discrediting the Legion. He said:

"I think it's an outrageous shame to pick out one spot for a raid when hundreds of speakeasies are open all over town. I didn't know liquor was sold in the room above our dugout but even that doesn't justify breaking into a private clubhouse, to which only members are admitted. If the prohibition authorities wanted to dry up Portland, they could stage raids for months. I think this raid was staged to discredit the Legion."

Shovelful of Dirt Holds Up Span Work

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Sept. 12.—Completion of a $200,000 bridge spanning the Kiskiminetas River and connecting Westmoreland and Armstrong counties, is being held up by a shovelful of dirt. Matthew Durbrawka owns the lot from which it is necessary to excavate a cubic foot of earth, but he insists the county purchase the land.

Railway Employes' Magazine Head Dies

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Ben E. Chapin, editor of the Railway Employe, a magazine for railroad workers, died last night while visiting at the home of Frank Cizek, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad superintendent, at Binghamton, N. Y., He was stricken with a heart attack.

Thrift Committee To Inspect Garden

Several members of the Thrift Garden Committee of the Allegheny County Emergency Association today were to inspect the garden of Andrew G. Smith, Cedar boulevard. Local garden superintendents of the South Hills section will also be present.

Club to Hold Fair For Aid of Needy

The Golden Rule Club of the Twenty-seventh Ward will hold a fair and bazaar for the relief of the needy of the ward every evening from September 19 to 24 on the Dollman grounds, Marmaduke street. The club will start the bazaar with an automobile parade from the grounds on Saturday, September 17.

BOMB EXPLOSION ENDANGERS FAMILIES IN SWISSVALE

FATHER COYNE CELEBRATES JUBILEE

St. Mary's Pastor Sees Irish People United, Free of England

A prediction that Irish freedom would be realized within 25 years was made by the Rev. Charles J. Coyne, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Forty-sixth street, speaking at the observance of his golden jubilee in the church yesterday. This will be, he said, because the Irish people are forced by their own interests into economic and social, if not political unity.

Father Coyne, born in Pittsburgh 73 years ago, is a close friend of Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish Free State. For many years he has been a student of Irish affairs.

DOUBTS HATRED

Father Coyne said:

"I think the Irish people will be forced into economic unity. The north of Ireland has been disabused of the belief that English rule is the best by the failure of the linen industry and shipping. I don't think British hatred for the Irish has ever represented the attitude of the man in the street. I don't think people can hate another people as a whole. The greatest Irish leader of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, in my opinion, was Charles Stewart Parnell, a Protestant and the grandson of an American naval officer."

Father Coyne, the last priest to be ordained in the diocese by the late Bishop John J. Tuigg, was celebrant of the jubilee mass at 11 a. m. He was assisted by the Rev. William D. Savage, deacon; the Rev. Leo Fallon, assistant pastor, Epiphany Church, sub-deacon; the Rev. Thomas Dunn, chaplain of Mt. Gallitzin Academy, Baden, Pa.; the Rev. Justin J. Gallagher and the Rev. Andrew J. King, assistants at St. Mary's.

BISHOP ATTENDS

Prominent among those attending the mass were Most Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese; Mons. Bernard Conley, of Altoona; Mons. Martin Ryan, of Pittsburgh; 60 visiting priests and many prominent Pittsburghers. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. V. R. Burnell, of the Dominican Priory, New York.

At a reception in St. Mary's Lyceum last night speakers were Leo G. Griffith, the Rev. Gallagher, Judge Frank P. Patterson, the Rev. David Shanahan, John Monaghan, the Rev. King and Dr. S. H. Johnson.

BISHOP URGES CURTIS VOTE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Bishop H. M. DuBose, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, says in a statement that "multitudes of prohibitionists" will vote for Republican electors in support of Vice President Charles Curtis in the approaching national election. He says:

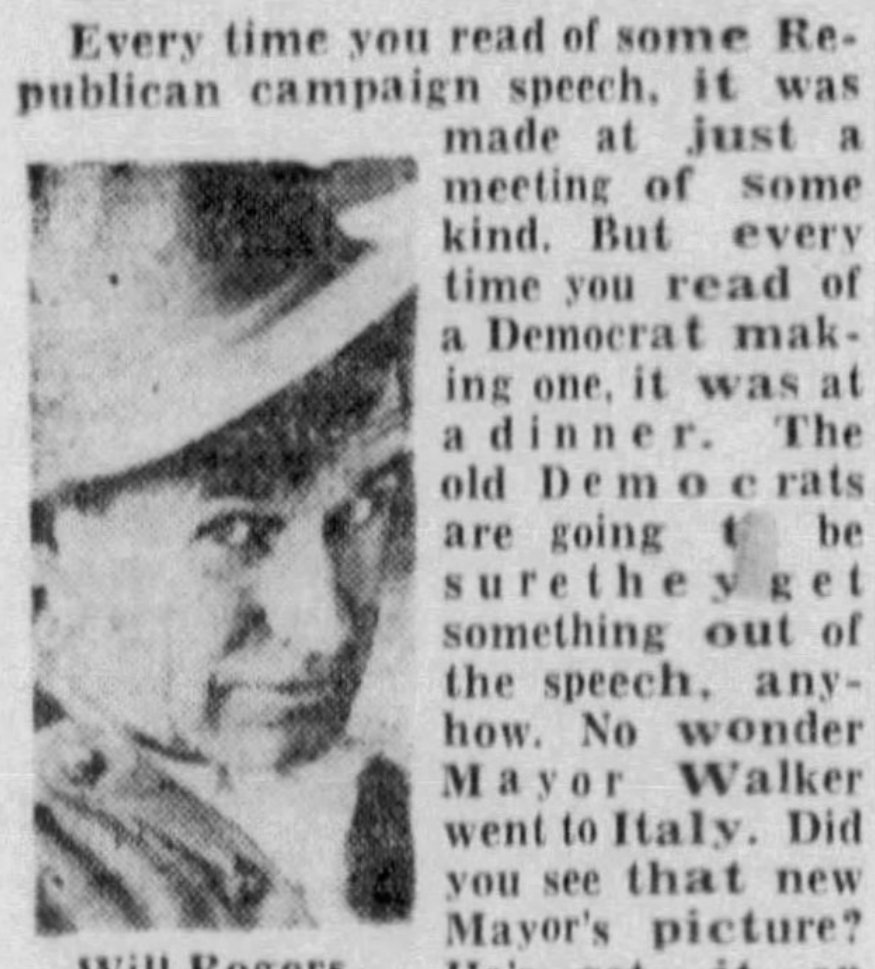
"Speaking strictly from the moral viewpoint, the Democratic prohibition plank is unacceptable and impossible to constitutional prohibitionists. The Republican plank is almost equally so."

For prohibitionists to vote for the Democratic nominees, he continued, "would help to pave the way for license and the saloon."

President Hoover, the bishop declared, "has deserted the disappointed millions of constitutional prohibitionists," and "no longer has a claim upon their loyalty."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Sept. 12.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:



Will Rogers

Every time you read of some Republican campaign speech, it was made at just a meeting of some kind. But every time you read of a Democrat making one, it was at a dinner. The old Democrats are going to be sure they get something out of the speech, anyhow. No wonder Mayor Walker went to Italy. Did you see that new Mayor's picture? He's got it on Jimmy for looks, and he mastered and taught Latin, Greek and English. And of course with those foreign accomplishments, he does not belong to Tammany Hall.

Yours, WILL.

ELEVATOR KILLS TRUCK DRIVER

While peering into the freight elevator shaft of the F. W. Woolworth Building, Sixth avenue and Smithfield street, today, preparatory to making a delivery, Robert Mazersky, 28, of Steuben street, truck driver for the Pennsylvania Transfer Company, was struck by the descending cage, his head being crushed between the bottom of the elevator and the first floor. He died almost instantly.

A bystander, who witnessed the accident, shouted too late for Keith Dyer, of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., operator of the elevator, to stop the lift.

Woman's Death Note Blames Misfortune

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Those who knew Miss Alice H. White, 36, stenographer, today pondered over a shorthand note she left when she committed suicide yesterday. She fired a pistol bullet into her heart. The note read:

"One may be beaten by fate with blows so heavy that at last he forgets fear, throws discretion to the winds and says: 'Come on, do what you will'."

Excitement Kills Baseball Game Fan

War Wounds Fail To Keep Invalid Vet From Meet

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The fact he has been flat on his back the last six years as a result of wounds received in the war did not deter Ray F. Winslow, of Robbinsdale, Minn., from attending the American Legion convention here.

Winslow, accompanied by a special nurse, traveled here with about 100 other Legionnaires from Minnesota and is enjoying the preliminary ceremonies to the opening of the session as much as his buddies. He has been provided with a special motor car and a wheel chair by the host city.

Winslow has been an active member of the Legion. This year he was elected commander of the Tenth District in Minnesota and last year he headed the post in his town.

Fire marshals today urged residents of the state to observe the designation by removing or avoiding causes of preventable fires during that week.

2 WOMEN TAKE POISON

Following a night of quarreling, police said, Margaret Erickson, 27, of 115 Sampson street, early today appeared before her husband, James, with a bottle said to contain poison, at her lips.

The woman was treated at Allegheny General Hospital, where she was taken by her husband, and later removed to the North Side Police Station, where she is being held on a disorderly conduct charge. The husband was held on a suspicious person charge.

A 71-year-old woman was in St. Margaret's Hospital today in a serious condition suffering from a poison taken, according to police, with suicidal intent.

The victim, Mrs. Mary Runge, was found ill in the bathroom of the home of her son-in-law, Edgar Singer, with whom she lived at 555 Blackstone street.

GRAFT CHARGED BY KNOXVILLE PASTOR

Defeat of Kline Urged In Sermon Against City Corruption

Graft and rackets which he declared were permitted by city officials were scored by the Rev. W. H. Hanna, pastor of the Knoxville Christian Church, Knoxville, in a sermon, "Is There Hope for Pittsburgh?" in his church last night. He said:

"Pittsburgh, for its size, has kept step fairly well with New York and Chicago in notoriety.

CORRUPTION CHARGED

"Graft, high taxation, gambling through slot machines and racing pools and the numbers racket, bootlegging, drunken policemen and firemen, houses of ill fame, several scores of unsolved murders and a Mayor whose time seems to be occupied with preparing the way to saddle himself again upon the long-suffering city, constitute some bad weeds in our city.

"Is there hope for Pittsburgh unless there is a decided and swift change for the better?

"Financial dangers threaten the city. A trip through the streets reveals an amazing number of vacant storerooms, office rooms and suites, an amazing number of tenantless homes. All this means no income or a materially reduced income on the part of taxpayers. Reduced income ought to bring reduced property valuations and a reduced budget for city administration. Where stands Pittsburgh today? Bright prospects for an increased tax levy for next year! What reductions have been made? Voluntary surrenders of a week's or a month's pay and forced reductions on the part of other public servants.

'ROTTEN POLITICS'

"Rotten politics menaces our city. What we need is not a Republican mayor, a Democratic Mayor, or a Socialist mayor. We need a citizen mayor—a man who will think of his administration in terms of the welfare of the city and the people who pay the taxes. It is to be hoped that now, while Mayor Kline is scheming to give the city another term of "Klineism," citizens will begin to lay their plans to defeat him and the spoils system.

"The stand of Judge Patterson as to "the blind men's parade" is highly commendable and awakens some hope for a decrease in open violation of law."

Score Sought After Sunday Auto Race

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 12.—Constable Isaac Fenton, under instructions from District Attorney Warren S. Burchinal, today commenced rounding up nearly a score of persons connected with the 50-mile auto race at Arden Downs yesterday. All are to be charged with violating the Sunday blue laws on complaint of a committee of ministers. A. C. Schempp, of Pittsburgh, was the alleged promoter. The race was won by his brother, Bill Schempp.

Mine Children Dress Well in Sack Clothes

BAREFOOTED, POORLY-CLAD PUPILS . . . FLOURSACK SHIRT

Flour Bags Used to Make Nobby Duds For Needy Pupils

Some 5,000 or more children of miners employed by the Pittsburgh Coal Company in 25 villages scattered throughout four counties in Western Pennsylvania are attending school today with new clothes.

Bright new dresses and slips for the girls; shirts and pants for the boys—it's all part of the Pittsburgh Coal Company's welfare policy of helping the miner to help himself. And in doing it Mr. and Mrs. Coal Miner have done themselves proud.

The company has supplied the material—gay calicoes, gingham and muslin, combined with the sturdy cloth salvaged from flour sacks—and the wives and mothers have done the rest. It's a thrifty housewife who can turn a flour sack inside out, bleach out the coloring and printing, combine it with a strip or two of calico or gingham and turn out a chic little dress that any little girl would be proud to wear.

And for the boys there are reconditioned "hand-me-down" pants and flour sack shirts. The shirts are durable, warm and, in the mode of the mining village, quite the nobby thing for the smart young man about the playlot or schoolroom.

Two things are still lacking—shoes and stockings, but Pittsburgh Coal Company officials are hopeful of supplying these before the "barefoot days" are gone.

The men and boys occupied their time in the garden, during the slack summer season. As a result the total production in home garden plots has more than doubled in actual cash value this year over last. It is estimated by company officials that $250,000 worth of food has been raised by the miners as against $106,000 worth for last year and this in the face of a 36 per cent reduction in foodstux values for the same period.

The women are busy these days with their canning. In odd moments they turn to the needle and all in all conditions have been greatly improved.

BLAST WRECKS TWO-STORY BUILDING

Property of Arson Suspect's Mother Damaged

A dozen persons were jarred from their beds, including two infant children, by a dynamite bomb explosion early today that partly wrecked a two-story frame building at 1822 Braddock avenue, Swissvale, and shattered windows in a number of nearby buildings.

The explosion was heard over a wide territory.

Swissvale police said the property was owned by Mrs. Josephine Prato, whose son, Vincent, brought back from Louisiana recently as an arson suspect, has promised to testify in Criminal Court as to the existence of an arson ring in Swissvale.

Vincent Prato, who pleaded guilty to arson and confessed hauling gasoline to several places alleged to have been marked for destruction by fire, is in jail. He is billed to be the state's star witness next Monday against Frank Getz, his wife, Rose; John Mihalchik, and John Adrina, when they go on trial charged with arson.

The first floor of the building where the heaviest damage was done, was occupied as a restaurant operated by Tony Serrio, of 612 Thompson street, East Liberty. Serrio was asleep in the building. living quarters of several families including Mrs. Prato, Mrs. Rose Zu, two daughters, Leona, 10, and Diana, 11 months; Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Deana and their daughter, Pauline, 6 months, and Peter Coyne.

Windows were shattered in a duplex at 7485 Church street, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fr and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lewis and their daughter, Dorothy, 21.

A watch dog, tied to a kennel 15 feet from the rear of the building, was not disturbed.

Man Held in Sale Of Rum on Street

When he admitted, police said, he had been selling moonshine at Center avenue and Soho street, Wilber Smith, 21, Negro, who said he has no home, was held for court today in Center Avenue Police Court.

Patrolman David Slessinger testified he saw the man at the corner with a box. Slessinger kicked the box and heard bottles rattle, he said. Smith told him he had liquor in the box and was selling it for 25 cents a half pint. Eleven half pints were found in the box, Slessinger testified.

Now We Realize Why G. O. P. Put Us on Slim Diet

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

We wouldn't like to take a prescription from the Illinois doctor who claims the depression has aided health.

We would rather go back to the old days when a man could inflict stab wounds on himself eating peas on a knife.

The doc probably bases his statistics on the fact that nobody has been browned in gravy for the last three years.

There's only one way to be healthy, doctor. That's to work eight hours, sleep eight hours and eat eight hours.

If we look healthier because we don't eat so much that ain't our fault. Those two chickens in every pot picked out the wrong incubator. How were we to know that the Republicans were out to do or diet?

But we'll tell you the truth, doctor. We ain't really healthier from the depression. It's because we've been sleeping in our busy office with the windows open.

Conscience Leads Alleged Thief To Surrender

Pete Trungo's conscience bothered him when he is alleged to have made off with three sets of priestly vestments from the Epiphany Catholic Church, Washington street, police disclosed in Central Police Court today.

He got as far as East Liverpool, O., where he gave himself up along with a suitcase containing the vestments, and was brought back by police of that city, Magistrate T. D. Jones was informed.

Trungo, homeless, had been befriended by the Rev. Lawrence O'Connell, pastor of the church, and given odd jobs around the church. He was held over.

FIRE SWEEPS STORE

Damage estimated at $10,000 was reported caused last night when fire raged through the stock and building of Stone and Frishman, wholesale clothiers, 1337 Fifth avenue.

The cause of the fire was not determined. It broke out in the rear of the building. Battalion Chief William Schwarz said much of the damage had been caused by smoke and water.

Traffic in Federal street was tied up last night while firemen fought a blaze in the taxidermist shop of A. E. Masters, 2 Federal street. Damage was estimated at $200.

SEEK BRADDOCK TAX REDUCTION

Declaring taxes in Braddock Borough excessive, property owners today were to present a petition to the County Commissioners asking special revision of assessments.

The united fight for a tax reduction in the borough was instituted at a meeting yesterday of more than 300 property owners in Holtzman's hall.

P. J. Caulfield was elected president at the meeting. Andrew Hudacek was named secretary and John Seaman treasurer. Committees were appointed to attend meetings of the borough school board and council to fight for lower taxes.

Speakers at the meeting besides Caulfield, were Attorney James Nugent, J. W. Kollar, James L. Quinn, Leo Ivory and George Peech, the latter a school director of East Pittsburgh, who outlined the success a similar movement by East Pittsburgh residents.

WIFE QUIZZED IN DEATH

Unable satisfactorily to explain the cause of two lacerations on her lip, Mrs. Irene McShane, 35, of 507 East Ohio street, North Side, today was held for further investigation in Morals Court when she continued denying fatally cutting her husband, John McShane, 35, Saturday.

Blaming an infected tooth for causing a cut inside her lip, according to Homicide Lieut. Frank Ferris, Mrs. McShane was taken to a North Side dentist whom she said was treating her.

The dentist denied knowing her, Ferris said. She maintained a companion of her husband was responsible for his death.

Ferris is working on the theory, he said, that the quarrel ensued from McShane's drinking during which he struck Mrs. McShane, causing the lacerations, and that Mrs. McShane stabbed her husband in the head with a bread knife.

MONDAY FIXED FOR OPENING OF HEARING

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—United States Senator James J. Davis today secured a severance for purposes of trial of the case of the government against himself and Bernard C. McGuire and the other dependants named in indictments charging participation in lotteries.

After hearing argument by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie and Charles H. Tuttle, Davis' attorney, Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy granted the severence so the Senator's case could be brought to trial next Monday.

Tuttle, himself a former United States attorney, urged the judge to give Senator Davis opportunity to "secure vindication" at the hands of a jury at the earliest possible moment. He said the Pennsylvania Senator would certainly be ready to go to trial by September 19.

CLUB FIRE ENDS SOCIETY REVEL

DARIEN, Conn., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Several hundred wealthy revellers, clad in the nondescript clothing of a "shipwreck party," escaped safely early yesterday as fire destroyed the exclusive Tokeneke Club.

Among those at the festivities were Edward C. Wilson, vice president of the Empire Trust Company of New York, and Mrs. Wilson; Donald McCabe Blodgett, vice president of the National City Bank; Robert E. Allen, vice president of the Central Hanover Trust Company, and Mrs. Allen; Donald Curran, sculptor; Walter D. Hines, of New York, with Mrs. Hines, and other New York business leaders.

The party, the last of the season at the club, started with a "shipwreck," or the explosion of a makeshift vessel at the beach. Several hours later, as the "survivors," in clothing designed to give the impression of having been hurriedly seized, danced in the main clubhouse, servants found the flames shooting up from a row of unused frame bathhouses in the rear.

Teachers Must Do Own Janitor Work

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 12.—Teachers in Washington's new $1,000,000 Junior-Senior High School were to decide upon a method of janitor service late today. The School Board has decided that all high school teachers must do their own janitor service, and today's meeting is to work out the details. A system in vogue in country schools where the teacher pays a pupil for lighting fires and cleaning, it is believed, will be put into effect.

Firemen in 3-Hour Battle, Save House

Volunteer firemen of Hiland Station were being credited today with saving the home of John O'Keefe, of Perry Highway, Perrysville, after a three-hour battle against a grass fire, yesterday afternoon.

Big Devil Fish Keeps Fishermen On Shore

HONOLULU, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Fearful of a big devil fish they said was lurking offshore, fishermen were remaining on terra firma at Kaneohe Bay, Oahu Island.

Fishermen said the creature was almost 50 feet in diameter, with tentacles the size of a man's leg, and when swimming on the surface its head extended two feet above the water.

SMALL BALLOT FOR ELECTION

The ballot to be used in the November election will be the smallest in Allegheny County in 25 years. Because there are 10 parties on the ballot it will be impossible to use any voting machines.

Several weeks ago it was announced at the Department of Elections that use of the mechanical voting devices was doubtful.

Copy for the ballot is now being prepared. The "dummy" ballot measures 16 by 24 inches. Elimination of the voting for presidential electors, under the act of 1931, is responsible for the small ballot. The ballot for the Smith-Hoover election four years ago required a sheet 26 by 32 inches.

There are 10 parties patented for this election: Republican, Democrat, Liberal, Prohibition, Socialist, Independent, Square Deal, Industrialist, Jobless and Communist.

CARRICK ROBBER SUSPECTS HELD

A half hour after Dave's restaurant at Brownsville and Carrick avenues, Carrick, had been robbed early today, police reported arresting two suspects. They are listed as Barno Orsido, 23, of Dodds way, and Frank Labella, 34, of Maxwell way. The robbers forced a side window and took $5 from the register.

Captured, according to police, while attempting to rob John Emmerich's store next door to the Carrick Police Station at 1808 Brownsville road, Albert Bonic, 18, of 2423 South Eighteenth street, and Russell Sinning, 20, of 35 Mt. Oliver street, his alleged lookout man, were held for further investigation by Morals Court Magistrate Thomas D. Jones yesterday. Sinning, police said, "tipped" them Bonic was going to stage the robbery.

Bridal Age Limit Set in Manchuria

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The Manchukuo government of Manchuria today had ordered that no woman shall be permitted to marry before she attains the age of 18. A limit of 20 years was placed against males.

It was announced that the step was taken in order that Manchukuo "shall have strong and healthy children."

'Ma' Ferguson To Face Contest

LUBBOCK, Tex., Sept. 12.—Announcement was made today that Gov. R. S. Sterling would not contest the claim of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson to the Democratic nomination for Governor before state party meetings here, but would file a contest in District Court later.

Spider Bite Fatal To Middy Candidate

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The bite of a spider proved fatal here today to Harry M. Johnson Jr., of Steubenville, O. The boy was bitten while driving to Annapolis, where he planned to enter the Severn School and prepare for entrance to the Naval Academy.

Woman, 115, Found Dead in Home By Son, 90

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Dora Meyers, 115 years old, was found dead in her home last night by her only son, John, 90.

The son said his mother had been complaining for several days, but her illness was not regarded as serious.

About two months ago friends arranged to have Mrs. Meyers pass her remaining days at a home for the aged, but she would not consent to the change.

Althought she had four husbands and 12 children, John said, he was the only survivor.

West View Borough Row Goes to Court

Walter F. Hunt, West View councilman and cashier in the sheriff's office, today filed suit against A. E. Torrens, West View schoolboard head, asking $15,000 damages.

According to the allegations, Torrens made statements in public reflecting on Hunt's character after a neighborhood newspaper published a story that an unknown councilman had borrowed $2,000 from the borough treasury before the death of Harry Wagner, Jr., who was treasurer 15 years.

PROF. LEOPOLD RITES TUESDAY

Funeral services for Prof. William L. Leopold, principal of Westinghouse High School since its beginning 18 years ago, will be held from the family home at 404 Center avenue, Wilkinsburg, tomorrow evening. He will be buried at Lewistown Wednesday. The veteran teacher, who had been ill several years, but continued his duties at the school, died last night.

Prof. Leopold, a teacher for the past 40 years, was born in Lewistown, Pa., and was a graduate of Juniata College and the University of Pittsburgh. He was at one time principal of the Watsontown and Ebensburg schools, supervising principal of Avalon schools, and organizer and first principal of the Business High School. He was a member of the Wilkinsburg Baptist Church, a Mason and an officer of the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association.

He is survived by his widow, Nell Carothers Leopold, two brothers, George A., of Wilkinsburg and H. H. Leopold, of Lewistown and two sisters, Mrs. Arthur Green and Mrs. Mary Snook, also of Lewistown.

RELIEF LEADERS STRUGGLE TO RAISE COUNTY FUNDS

AID FOR 17,000 IDLE NEARLY EXHAUSTED

Poor Board Bond Issue Approval Main Hope Of Welfare Workers

Ways and means of financing relief in Allegheny County after funds run out this week, were to be discussed today at a meeting of relief leaders called by S. E. Clancy, director of the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

State relief, all that stands between 17,000 residents of the county outside the city limits, and starvation, will run out Friday or Saturday. Becoming available last Thursday, and used sparingly—the destitute receiving but two-thirds of "minimum subsistence diet"—it will have lasted but 10 or 12 days.

BOND ISSUE SOUGHT

If the County Commissioners approve a County Poor Board bond issue, vital to sufficient relief in the county, this week, it will be possible, it was learned, to administer sufficient relief and refund when the bonds are sold.

Unless the Commissioners approve the bond issue, however, the situation will be almost hopeless, according to the consensus of opinion in relief circles.

In even the Commissioners fail to approve, it is learned, the Poor Directors plan to retaliate by referring all requests for food, clothing and shoes to the Commissioners.

To discuss distribution and use of federal aid, from the $300,000,000 relief fund of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, five Pittsburghers will journey to the White House this week.

WELFARE CONFERENCE

President R. Templeton Smith, of the Welfare Fund; Chairman Frank R. Phillips, of the Emergency Association; Executive Secretary Wilbur F. Maxwell, of the Welfare Fund; Campaign Chairman William P. Witherow, of the Welfare Fund, and Howard Heinz, of the National Association of Welfare Funds, will attend a national conference on the readjustment of social welfare budgets and activities in Washington, D. C., Thursday.

In calling the meeting, Allen T. Burns, executive director of the national association, said:

"The next 12 months will be the most difficult we have ever faced. The period of recovery is bound to be slow and the demands for help exceedingly heavy."

Co-operation in distribution of federal relief, well-balanced social welfare programs and strengthening of local money-raising campaigns are to be discussed.

Rio Grande Flood Danger Subsides

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The Rio Grande, swollen from flood waters that had swept down through all the extreme southern border of Texas, today was slightly above flood stage, which is 18 feet.

The international river which divides Texas and Mexico had sent its muddy waters within 30 feet of one business section of Brownsville, largest city in the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas, but residents believed Brownsville would not be endangered and that the flood had run its course.

Street Car Income Emerges from Slump

SEATTLE, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Passenger revenue receipts of the municipal street railway during August were reported today to be $301,581, compared with $287,638 in July, showing an upward trend for the first time in months.

HUNT BRIGANDS IN RAIL TRAGEDY

HARBIN, Manchuria, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The forces of Manchurian law hunted today for the bandits who wrecked the Changchun-Harbin train Saturday night, robbed 600 passengers, kidnaped others and left 12 persons dead and more than 100 injured.

It was the most disastrous train wreck in Manchuria's history.

Among those aboard was Henry Hilgard Villard, son of Oswald Garrison Villard, publisher of the Nation, New York. He was not injured.

In another bandit raid on a golf course here, George C. Hanson, United States Consul General and a party of British and Americans fought their way out to safety with their golf clubs, and two of the British members of the party were wounded seriously.

Earth Slides Partly Block Panama Canal

PANAMA CITY, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Eighty feet of the Panama Canal's 300-foot channel was blocked today by slides caused by heavy rains which precipitated another 150,000 cubic yards of earth into the cut. Shipping will not be interrupted, officials said, for the remaining 220 feet of the channel is ample to handle the traffic.

Blair County Man Hurt in Death Crash

SOMERS POINT, N. J., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Harry Fleming, 24, Somers Point aviator, died early today from injuries received in the crash of an airplane he was piloting at the Bargainoowm Airport.

GIRL AND CHILD HIT BY TARGET SHOOTERS

Six youths were being held today and police were searching for another in connection with the accidental shooting of an 18-year-old girl and a 2-year-old child.

Taken to St. John's Hospital, she was reported suffering from a flesh wound in the hip.

Police said the wound was inflicted accidentally by youths at target practice near her home.

While playing in the yard in the rear of her home, Betty Jane Link, 2, 162 South Seventeenth street, was struck by a bullet which police said was fired by one of six youths shooting at a target in an adjacent yard.

Those arrested were Stanley Michaelski, 16, of 1712 Sarah street; Diminian Gildea, 14, of South Seventeenth street; Edward Wright, 17, of Sarah street, and three other youths who were said to have accompanied them.

CHRYSLER JOINS ANTI-DRYS

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Walter P. Chrysler, automobile manufacturer, has accepted the general chairmanship of the Crusaders' victory fund campaign in New York City because he believes prohibition is a "failure." The Crusaders are an anti-prohibition organization.

He gave out a statement yesterday saying that he had accepted the post at the invitation of Fred G. Clark, of Cleveland, commander-in-chief of the Crusaders, and that this organization appeared to be an "effective" medium for altering the prohibition laws. He said:

"For many years, both before and after the Eighteenth Amendment, I favored prohibition. It is clear that prohibition is a failure. It has done the nation more harm than good. Prohibition is doomed, but we must seal that doom as quickly as possible."

Lions Invade Town as Fire Rages in Woods

OJAI, Cal., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Driven from their haunts by the worst timber and brush fire in this vicinity in 15 years, scores of mountain lions, deer and other wild animals have wandered into the outskirts of Ojai seeking safety from the flames and smoke.

Bumper Baby Crop To Stimulate Building

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The yield of babies this year, Edward M. Craig predicts, will stimulate the building industry.

Craig, secretary of the Building Employes Association of Chicago, today told a gathering, cities may be overbuilt in some lines, but not in the apartment house or small home field. He said:

"As a meaure of economy, many young couples are living in furnished rooms, but before long, especially when the baby crop is harvested, there is going to be a rush to cottages and apartments, and this means building."

Error Lists Wrong Man for County Job

Through a clerical error in the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, the appointment of John J. Joyce, of 807 Clearview avenue, Crafton, as a clerk was announced in the list issued last week.

The man oppointed is John B. Joyce, of 38 Crafton avenue, Crafton. John J. Joyce is an employe of the Board of Public Education and, it is said, was not an applicant for the position.

FRENCH DEFEND ARMS STAND

MEAUX, France, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Premier Herriot hopes the world will understand France's attitude on the question of Germany's demand for equality in armaments.

In an address yesterday, officially accepting America's gift of a monument for the Battlefield of the Marne, a gift made in recognition of the French gift of the Statue of Liberty to the United States, the Premier pleaded for world understanding of French "uneasiness over the noise of certain dangerous manifestations."

He defended the French stand that Germany's demand must be taken to the League of Nations, and praised President Hoover's disarmament proposals, made early in the summer.

In behalf of the United States, Ambassador Edge expressed the hope the monument might inspire international collaboration in every field, material and moral.

Gen. John J. Pershing and Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, were among the Americans at the ceremony.

INVADES CHURCH TO PREACH

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The Rev. Henry G. Dockrell, ousted as pastor of the Fifth Street Baptist Church at a congregational meeting last week, made good his promise yesterday to preach in the church, but his manner of access to the building was a subject of controversy.

Leaders of the group, which voted 103 to 4 to dismiss him, said locks placed on the doors to keep him out had been forced. The minister denied this and said he had a man posted inside the church all last night to see that the doors were not locked against him.

While Mr. Dockrell delivered a sermon on "The Value of Christianity" a group of his opponents met on the street opposite the church but did not attend the service.

The minister was accused of "high-handedness" in the ouster, but he contends his dismissal was illegal.

OIL MEN SEEK NAPHTHA TAX ADVANCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Potentially heavy imports of naphtha which are being used for motor fuel threaten the market in this country for domestic producers of gasoline, Comissioner of Customs Eble was told by representatives of both the independent producers and the big oil companies at a hearing before which it was sought to classify naptha as a motor fuel and thereby make it subject to a tax of 2½ cents a gallon instead of ½ cent, as at present.

Russel B. Brown, counsel for the Independent Petroleum Association, was joined by representatives of some of the big oil companies in this plea. These same big companies opposed the import tax on oil when it was under consideration.

USE CITED

Witnesses said there has been a considerable increase in the use of naptha as motor fuel. Dr. E. J. Elbridge, representing the Atlantic Refining Company, said that he experimented using all naphtha in a popular light weight car and found that it worked as well as gasoline. Trucks can use certain grades of naphtha to advantage; it is merely a little hard to start the motor, it was said.

Where naphtha is not used alone, it is mixed in large quantities with casing head oil, one of the highest grades, to form a satisfactory motor fuel, and it was claimed that in the Detroit area the importer of naphtha had by this method broken the market in that region.

BIG LOSS FEARED

Henry Dodge, representing the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, said that if naphtha imports forced a cut of ½ cent a gallon in the price of gasoline, the loss to the 42 major oil companies of the United States would be $181,000,000, and that the government would lose $25,000,000 in corporation income taxes. If a cut of 1 cent in the price of gasoline resulted, the loss to these companies would be $363,000,000.

The importers were represented by John Nelson, of the Hartoil Company, New York City. He argued that large quantities of higher grades of fuel had to be mixed with naphtha in order to make it a satisfactory motor fuel.

STORE SALES SHOW DROP

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The Federal Reserve Board reported a decline of 24 per cent in department store sales for the first eight months of 1932 as compared with the same period last year.

In comparison with a year ago, August's sales were off 24 per cent, but when allowance is made for the fact that there was one more trading day in August this year than last the decrease is about 26 per cent.

The board's preliminary figures on the value of department store sales showed an increase from July to August of "somewhat less than the estimated seasonal amount." The board's index, which makes allowance both for number of business days and for usual seasonal changes was 66 in August on the basis of the 1923 average as 100, compared with 67 in July and 71 in June.

Associated System Power Output Up

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The highest net output of electricity for nearly five months was reported by the Associated Gas and Electric System, the total for the week ended September 3 being 48,271,749 kwh. Sales of current to other utilities are excluded. This was only 7.8 per cent below the corresponding period of 1931, the smallest percentage decline since the week ended April 16.

Lumber Orders Continue Climb

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Orders placed with lumber mills continued their steady climb of the last four weeks, exceeding production by 67 per cent during the week ended September 3, according to report to the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association. Orders received totaled 182,510,000 feet with production at 109,404,000 feet.

H. F. KRESS NOW WITH WARD

Announcement was made today of the association of Harry F. Kress with Norman Ward & Co., having offices in the Grant Building. Previously to this connection Kress was sales manager for K. W. Todd & Co., Inc.

Kress has had a number of years in the security business and formerly was secretary of the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel Company and was a director of several of its subsidiaries.

The firm of Norman Ward & Co. was organized May 1, 1932, and has been gradually building up an organization of experienced men. The firm is specializing in fire insurance company stocks and has splendid facilities on all other class of investments.

World Wheat Crop Increase Estimated

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Estimates and forecasts of the 1932 wheat production in 34 countries, which last year produced 94 per cent of the northern hemisphere crop outside Russia and China, total 3,124,108,000 bushels, compared with 3,101,462,000 bushels a year ago, reports the Department of Agriculture.

METAL MARKET PRICES FIRM

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Copper advanced to 6¼c for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley to the end of the year, in sympathy with a sharp gain in the export quotation. Active foreign buying was reported early in the week, but this tapered off later when London reacted. In the domestic market, new business was restricted, but shipments against old contracts were said to have improved and producers were holding firm on expectations of renewed buying.

Early advances in tin were followed by reactions, reflecting similar price changes at London. Lead held steady, although demand was less active as consumers were said to have filled September and a fair part of their October requirements.

Zinc continued to advance on further active demand from consumers and dealers, although the total volume of business was restricted by limited quantities available at asking prices. Antimony was quiet, and in the absence of trading interest quotations were nominal.

General Motors Stockholders Up

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The total number of General Motors common and preferred stockholders for the third quarter of 1932 was 364,401, compared with 359,046 for the second quarter of 1932 and with 293,714 for the third quarter of 1931.

There were 346,763 holders of common stock and the balance of 17,638 represents holders of preferred stock. These figures compare with 341,490 common stockholders and 17,556 preferred for the second quarter of 1932.

MEAT INDUSTRY PAYROLL HERE LARGE

A payroll of between four and five million dollars is maintained annually by the meat packing industry in the Pittsburgh district, and this could be doubled if all the meat consumed in this district were purchased through local concerns. This is the opinion of George Hess, president of the William Zoller Company, North Side packing company.

The biggest problem of the local packing fraternity is the inferior grades of meat which are shipped into this city by out of town concerns, Mr. Hess contends. However, the future is bright inasmuch, he said, as the buying public is becoming educated along the lines of distinguishing good products and thus their decision sooner or later will swing the shoppers' attention to local packing house products where the best of meats can be obtained.

LEADING CENTER HERE

Mr. Hess declared that many life-long residents of this district show surprise when they are informed that Pittsburgh is one of the leading packing centers in the United States. This is true and the residents of the territory served by Pittsburgh packers are fortunate in being able to obtain the best of packing house products.

Mr. Hess said that Pittsburgh receives daily shipments of hogs from southern Ohio and Indiana, which the packing fraternity recognizes as the best obtainable in any part of the country.

PORK USE GROWS

An interesting fact is revealed by the North Side packing house executive. According to Mr. Hess, there has been more pork consumed in this city during the depression than in previous years. He said this is due to the fact that the public has become aware that pork offers great nutritious value for a low cost.

He said:

"People have no right to look forward to cheaper meat products from local packing houses. At present they are getting the greatest meat values that have been offered in many years. Of course they can purchase cheaper meats, an inferior grade shipped here in a chilled condition, but the shopping public today is too wise to endanger their health and that of their families by saving a few cents on meat purchases."

Bituminous Coal Production Gains

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Output of bituminous coal in the United States during the week ended September 3 is estimated by the Bureau of Mines at 5,644,000 net tons, a gain of 324,000 tons or 6.1 per cent over the preceding week and compared with 7,621,000 tons in the week ended September 5, 1931.

Anthracite output for the week is estimated at 1,069,000 net tons, an increase of 266,000 tons, or 33.1 per cent over the week previous, and comparing with 1,177,000 tons in the like 1931 week.

Pennsylvania Crude Supplies Increase

OIL CITY, Pa., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The Derrick says stocks of Pennsylvania crude held by major pipe line companies of the east at the close of August totaled 2,998,082 barrels, an increase of 59,890 barrels over the close of July.

Increased runs from wells and decreased shipments to refineries resulted in additional stocks, the paper says.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12.—California crude oil output during the week ended 10 averaged 477,400 barrels daily, a decrease of 850 barrels daily from the previous week, according to the California Oil World.

Cash Register Gets Order From Safeway

DAYTON, O., Sept. 12.—The National Cash Register Company has received a $250,000 order for 500 cash registers from Safeway Stores, Inc. The contract is the forerunner of a $3,000,000 order for 7,000 registers, according to S. C. Allyn, vice president.

The order will not necessitate recalling employes, but present working hours will be stepped up.

BUSINESS

Trade Indications Have Been Uncertain In Past Week

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

INDUSTRY IS COMING near to the middle of September with only uncertain indications that a recovery is to take place this year. It was generally thought that September would be the turning point in activity. After drifting at the minimum level of the depression during the summer, it was expected that business would start to revive during September and October. The sharp upturn in stocks was interpreted as a prediction of this gain.

Many other indications such as higher commodity prices, improved credit conditions and the operation of the various government agencies to aid credit and business were expected to mark a definite turning of the corner from declining activity to the recovery of prosperity.

It must be admitted, however, that there has been no indication that actual business is getting better. By actual business we mean sales, production, jobs, and profits. Business is getting no worse than it has been all summer, but no pronounced change in the trend has taken place.

Steel Output Advance Halts

STEEL MILL activity started to improve early in the month, but the gain was not particularly impressive in its extent. In the present week the recovery has been brought to an abrupt halt. Carnegie Steel's output will be at a slightly lower rate this week than last week. Complete figures covering the entire industry are not yet available, but it is highly improbable that any further improvement will be shown. Steel output in the entire country will be at about the rate of last week or slightly lower.

There has been no foundation of increased backlog laid for the steel industry. This may be seen in the unfilled tonnage figures reported by the United States Steel Corporation for August 31. These were only 3,293 tons more than at the end of the previous month. The mere fact that there was a gain is cheerful. The increase was the first in 16 months, but the recovery was so small that it cannot be made the basis for any great burst of optimism.

Recovery May Still Come in Present Year

IT IS NOT too late for a recovery in business to start in the present year, but each day of continued dullness reduces the time before the usual year end period of holiday waiting takes place. The fact that business has been drifting on practically an even keel since last April may be an indication that the bottom has been reached and that a long period may be needed for the forces of recovery to gain enough strength to start a revival.

But unless a decidedly marked improvement in affairs gets under way within the next few weeks it will be quite likely that we must wait for the early months of 1932 to show us a genuine recovery.

STOCK PRICES BREAK UNDER SELLING

NEW YORK, Sept. 12—(AP.)—Selling poured into the stock market from all sides today, sending prices skidding in the most violent manner since the market turned upward, more than two months ago.

While business and trade news continued to reflect seasonal improvement more decisively than at this period in either of the preceding two years, traders evidently felt that the 100 per cent appreciation in values had fully discounted the better tone in general business, and there was a rush to lighten commitments.

Rails broke widely, with losses of 5 to more than 7 points appearing in Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Lackawanna and Delaware and Hudson. Elsewhere in the list, losses of about 3 to 4 points appeared.

Railroad bonds turned heavy at the start, and appeared to drag stocks after them. Despite the pronounced upswing in freight car loadings in the past two weeks, and indications that carrier earnings generally improved somewhat in August, selling of these issues evidently reflected fresh realization that many prominent carriers are still failing to earn their fixed charges, and are leaning heavily on the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Many brokerage quarters were inclined to accept the sweeping reaction in shares philosophically, pointing out that a real technical setback had been long overdue, that the present short position had been substantially reduced, and that a good reaction which would lure a substantial short position back into the market would strengthen its technical position. Short selling, according to usually well-informed brokerage quarters, has increased sharply in the past few days. Houses with foreign connections reported that French speculators who had been active buyers here some weeks ago had largely taken their profits. Much of the buying that came from London, it was explained, however, had been for long term investment, and holdings acquired for such accounts were being retained.

A number of stocks in which bull groups were rumored to have been active, broke rapidly, and support was evidently withdrawn. Weakness of the coppers was said to reflect some disappointment over stubborn refusal of consumers to be prompted into making substantial purchases of the metal by the recent increase in J. C. Chick, general sales manager. Farm implements reflected a slump in cotton and grain markets. Indications were that the freight movement was being well maintained, despite the slump in carrier issues.

WHEAT PRICES TURN DOWN

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Influenced by New York stock market weakness and by lower prices on cotton, grain values tended downward early today. Bears gave stress also to the Canadian government crop report and to lack of export demand for wheat from the United States. Opening ⅛ to ⅝ lower, wheat weakened further. Corn started ⅛ to ⅜ off and continued to sag.

Buying on the part of houses with connections east served to check wheat price declines, but rallies were not well maintained, the market going more than 4½ cents under last week's high. Corn and oats declined with wheat, September corn outdoing the season's lowest previous level. Provisions reflected downturns both of hog values and of grain.

Byers Pipe Mill Working at 100%

The pipe mill of the A. M. Byers Company, in Sixth street, South Side, is operating at full capacity today, and it is expected will continue to do so for several weeks.

It was stated at the office of the company that this particular works has never been closed entirely, but has been operating on an intermittent basis for some time.

Cadillac Car Sales Increase in August

DETROIT, Sept. 12.—For the first time in many years, August sales of Cadillac Motor Car Company exceeded July, according to J. C. Chick, general salesmanager. This unseasonal upturn gives every evidence of continuing through September, he said.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

United Electric Coal Companies net income for 12 months ended July 31 was $310,008, after depletion, depreciation, interest, federal taxes, etc., compared with net income of $150,562 in the 12 months ended July 31, 1931.

Sparks Withington Company reports for year ended June 30, net loss of $1,930,514 after charges, depreciation, inventory adjustments and reserves, compared to net profit of $126,010 in the preceding fiscal year.

Rubber Companies Add New Tax To Prices

AKRON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone and other Akron rubber corporations today declared an 11 to 15 per cent tire price increase to cover the federal excise tax, effective today. Last June the raise was announced formally as effective the 21st of that month, but it failed to go through then, Firestone refusing to make the jump until mail order houses added the tax to tires they sell. The mail order houses have now added the tax.

Advertising Aids Loft Candy Sales

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—A 10 per cent increase in retail prices is being established by Loft, Inc. For 1932, sales of $16,000,000 are estimated by the company, compared with $14,317,026 in 1931, according to a letter to stockholders by President Charles G Ruth. At the present time there are no bank loans outstanding. Heavy expenditure for newspaper advertising during the past 30 months has resulted in a marked increase in sales and customers.

COTTON CLOTH SALES GAIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Sales of carded cotton cloths in August were 282.4 per cent of the month's production, and reached 510,531,000 yards, the largest in any month since comparable figures became available in January, 1928.

Stocks on August 31 were 209,407,000 yards, a reduction of 25.5 per cent, and comparing with a previous low record of 239,654,000 yards at the end of February, 1932.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The New York Cotton Exchange service estimates the amount of cotton consumed by domestic mills in August at 395,000 bales, compared to the Census Bureau figures of 279,000 consumed in July and 425,000 in August, 1931.

St. Louis Gasoline Prices Cut 2 Cents

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 12.—Major marketers in St. Louis and St. Louis County have cut the service station price of all grades of gasoline 2 cents a gallon. Regular gas is now 14.6 cents.

Soviet Gasoline Upsets Market In Bombay

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 12.—The Burmah Oil Company and Shell have reduced gasoline prices in Bombay by 4½ annas (approximately 10 cents at par of exchange) an imperial gallon.

Street Optimistic on A. T. & T. Dividend

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Many in the street believe that the recently improved telephone situation will encourage the American Telephone and Telegraph management to maintain the regular $9 dividend in the final quarter of this year.

Atchison Railway Loadings Hold Up

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—The Atchison Railway during the week ended September 10 handled 22,052 revenue freight cars, compared to 22,772 in the previous week and 27,674 in the like week a year ago.

News and Views

SILK EMPLOYMENT UP

Employment increased 17.5 per cent in the silk industry during July, as compared with the previous month, the Silk Association of America, Inc., reports. July employment was, however, 20.6 per cent lower than the like month of last year. Broad silk loom employment increased 11.3 per cent, narrow silk loom employment increased 7.7 per cent and spinning spindle employment increased 29.8 per cent during July, as compared with June. Machinery operations during July increased 19.2 per cent for broad looms, 28.2 per cent for narrow looms and 43.4 per cent for spinning spindles, as compared with the previous month.

MIDWEST INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYMENT

Industrial employment in the seventh Federal Reserve district declined 4 per cent between June 15 and July 15, while payrolls were off 8 per cent. These declines were smaller than in 1931, but were larger than in any other year on record. Factory payrolls in July were 24 per cent below January, 38 per cent under a year ago and 65 per cent under the 1925-27 average.

WESTERN CANADA CROP

Western Canada will garner this year 180,000,000 bushels of wheat more than it did last year, the Searle Grain Company estimated. This year's Western crop was placed at 459,000,000 bushels, the second largest crop in the history of the prairie provinces.

CONTINENTAL CAN

Continental Can Company, Inc., common stock is to be listed on the Amsterdam Bourse. The company consented to the listing at the request of an Amsterdam investment firm.

LOCAL MARKET OPENS WEEK QUIETLY

The new week opened quietly on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, with volume of business showing a slight decline from the recent average and prices holding within small fractional range of Saturday's finals.

Lone Star Gas was handled in small lots at 10 in the early market, unchanged from the previous close. The other fuels were quiet and showed only a few minor changes. Oil producers held steady in the face of the uncertainty created by Humble Oil's decision to reduce its volume of purchases in the East Texas area.

Industrial stocks were quiet. Pittsburgh Plate Glass ranged around 19 with demand fairly steady. At today's level the stock was a little more than a point below the high reached on the upturn two weeks ago.

COTTON PRICES WEAK, OFF

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 12 to 14 lower on easier Liverpool cables and under southern hedge selling. October, 8.00c; December, 8.15c; January, 8.19c; March, 8.31c; May, 8.42c; July, 8.52c.

Continued selling for southern account and general hesitation of buyers due to the easier stock and wheat markets resulted in a further loss after the opening. December sold early at 8.15, declined to 8.05 and rallied to 8.07. At the close of the first hour the entire list was 16 to 19 points net lower.

Further reactions occurred late in the morning under liquidation. Wall street and southern selling promoted by declines in the stock and grain markets. Although some trade buying developed on the declines, slight rallies brought out increased pressure and the tone of the market was rather heavy with stop orders uncovered in December as it declined below the 8-cent level, and all months eased 10 or 15 points below the lows established following publication of the September government estimate on Thursday.

December sold off from 8.15 to 7.88, with the general market declining to net losses of 32 to 37 points and at midday prices were within a point or two of the day's lows.

BUSINESS LAGS BEHIND STOCK UPSWING

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—In looking for confirmation in fundamental business statistics of the summer enthusiasm in the security markets, Wall street has again been confronted with the fact that, though speculation is mercurial, business moves like a snail.

Mr. Rukeyser

The composite commodity price advance, which continued to hearten the bulls, was associated with the same type of thinking that actuated moves in the security markets. As for business itself, it at least showed a capacity to make seasonal gains. Even this would have been unlikely, if the panic psychology of winter and early spring had continued.

PUBLIC SKEPTICAL

Activity in coal and apparel has been somewhat better than seasonal. Statistics of electric power output, building contracts and carloadings have also been mildly encouraging. The tiny gain in unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation, after months of declines, may indicate a change of trend, though, when the figures are justed for seasonal variations, they are far from conclusive.

In view of the seriousness of the previous stagnation in business, it is not to be expected that the transition will be rapid. The important thing is to capitalize the better sentiment prevailing by taking co-ordinated steps to raise purchasing power and to relieve unemployment.

In view of the fact that such improvement as may be evident in business has been slight, the man on the street, judging by the facts within his own observation, has been skeptical about the whole "managed recovery."

SEES FREER CREDIT

So-called leaders have been wrong so frequently in their prognostications that they are a little timid about heralding their views from public rostrums. They are fearful lest their audience might respond again, "Oh, yeah!"

It was my privilege to read a letter written by one bullish financier the other day to another financier, giving his views. The writer of the letter is the head of a financial institution of great magnitude.

His optimism was based largely on the ending of the credit panic. He estimates that half a billion in currency will be issued by national banks under the new Glass bill. He pointed out:

"Every week sees a further substantial addition to the credit base from this source, and as additional gold is being received, and hoarding slowly diminishing, the national credit base is steadily expanding, and money is steadily become more abundant throughout the country."

COURT HALTS HUMBLE CUT

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 12.—Judge W. F. Robertson, of the District Court here, issued a temporary injunction on petition of Attorney General James V. Allred restraining the Humble Oil and Refining Company from violating provisions of the ratable taking law.

The injunction order specified that the company and the Humble Pipe Line Company must obey the Railroad Commission's proration order and purchase crude oil ratably in East Texas, North Central Texas and Panhandle fields by accepting oil from connected wells in the same proration that it takes oil from its own wells.

The injunction was sought by Allred on his interpretation that announcement by Humble Oil that it would reduce its purchase of crude oil was a move to override the order of the Railroad Commission.

AUSTIN, Sept. 12.—The Texas Railrad Commission has reduced, effective September 12, the allowable of the Yates oil field in Texas to a specific 53,500 barrels daily from the former allowable of 65,000 barrels.

WALL STREET HEARS

That the better trend in automobile sales is continuing.

That Allied Chemical's first half earnings were between $2.25 and $2.50 a common share.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Raw sugar was quiet early today. Futures opened at 3 points' advance to 1 point decline, with the spot month showing the maximum gain on covering caused by the circulation of two notices. September contracts, after selling at 1.10, eased off to 1.08, while March sold off from 1.05 to 1.03, with the market at midday 1 point net higher for the spot month, but 1 to 2 lower for later deliveries.

There was nothing new in the refined situation, with all refiners listing at 4.25, but second hands available at around 4.10 to 4.15.

STEEL SHOWING SATISFACTORY

CLEVELAND, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The iron and steel industry made a satisfactory showing last week and sentiment continues strong with an increase in the nation's steel requirements regarded as certain, said Steel today.

The week following Labor Day brought a two-point rise in the steel operating rate, a slight but general expansion of inquiry and bookings, price advances in those scrap grades and districts which have lagged behind the leaders and structural steel lettings somewhat below the weekly average for the year.

The magazine, in its weekly review, however, added:

"The next two weeks are viewed as critical ones, which must record substantial improvement if recent high expectations are realized.

"A firmer tendency is manifest in steel prices. Some sheet mills have announced four quarter prices which rescind recent shading. Rivet makers also are restoring third quarter levels."

Consumer Demand Rise Due to Better Stock Quotations

As the result of the returning confidence and the increased purchasing power of the public resulting from the rise in security and commodity prices, there is no doubt but that some acceleration in consumer demand has been apparent in a number of industries. General Motors sales to individuals during August showed an increase over July and reports are now heard that September business of this huge enterprise has been running about 12 per cent ahead of August. Heavier industries have not as yet felt any particular impetus and one large metal company which usually sees from its orders in the first week of September some indication of the fall business, is said to have been disappointed at the results so far this month.

Volume of sales by the Molybdenum Corporation of America, for the first eight months of 1932 has been approximately 75 per cent of that in the peak year of 1929, according to officials of the company. The principal source of molybdenum consumption—the steel industry—is showing a much larger decline in the use of this ferro-alloy compared with 1929 because of the low volume of ingot production, but since the latter year numerous new uses for molybdenum have been discovered and put to practical use. Fifty per cent of the molybdenum business of Molybdenum Corporation of America in 1931 was derived from new uses not in existence in 1929. Further new uses have been developed this year.

Although the Bell System reported an improvement in telephone installations during August of 23,000 units over July, while disconnections of telephones were 44,000 less, the spurt in communications traffic, which is understood to have developed in the first two weeks of August, is said to have tapered off considerably. The improvement in the system's figures on telephone disconnections no doubt was caused in part by the sudden expansion of activity in the stock market while the improvement in sentiment was no doubt an important factor. The increase in connections during August was contrary to the usual trend, however, and as such accepted as a favorable indication of trade prospects.

A reduction of 20 per cent from the basic scales would apparently reduce the aggregate 1933 railroad payroll by an amount between $175,000,000 and $200,000,000 as compared with the 1932 wage bill. For 1931, the railroad payroll was, in round numbers, $2,127,000,000 and for 1930 it was $2,500,000,000.

Business developments of the next few weeks will be watched with more interest probably than at any time in the past. In the steel industry, railroad, telephone and merchandising lines it is conceded that the latter part of this month is the logical time to expect improvement to make an appearance and add to the recovery thus far attained. The stock market itself, after its sharp uprush of the past six weeks, has been saying quite plainly through its irregularity that it needs the vitality of additional business gains to carry further.

During the past two years, buyers have approached the fall season with the discouragement of falling security and commodity prices influencing them. The tendency to seek and obtain concesions in price on anything bought was natural. Moreover, fall and winter business subsequently was hurt by unseasonably warm weather this year. An early cool spell and the background of advances in securities and a wide range of commodity prices may change the picture sufficiently to influence a more liberal buying policy.

Forbes

Still Moving In Direction Of Prosperity

By B. C. FORBES

EVIDENCES MULTIPLY that trade is picking up modestly.

LATEST ENCOURAGING developments include:

Further recovery in the general price level.

A growing number of reported increases in working forces in a considerable number of directions, including steel plants, motor factories, textile mills, railway shops, woolen mills, shoe factories, silk and rayon plants, brokerage offices.

B. C. Forbes

Ditto bank failures, accompanied by more numerous reopenings.

The constant swelling of our stock of gold by an average of two—three millions daily—a movement which promises to continue.

The tendering of $7,420,000,000 of bids for offerings of $1,150,000,000 new treasury securities, reflecting the extraordinary super abundance of funds available for safe investment.

A rather substantial advance in copper prices.

The discovery that certain classes of merchandise needed by retailers are not available from wholesalers or jobbers, causing rush orders to be sent to factories and hasty recourse to overtime operations.

THE WEEK BROUGHT reactions, as is natural in the early stages of recovery from severe depression. For example:

Cotton precipitately fell $5 a bale on the government's crop estimate of 11,310,000 bales, but revived appreciably before the week ended.

The stock market, after its phenomenal and almost interrupted rise, encountered both profit-taking and fresh short selling. Although activity became unusually pronounced, and although transactions sharply increased during spasms of weakness, the undertone was such that bears were afraid to become reckless. The net loss for the week was negligible. Before the close on Saturday stocks were remanifesting strength.

The long-continued advance in bonds slowed down. Yet, practically all the $1,457,000,000 increase in value reported in August on the New York Stock Exchange was retained.

Disappointment was voiced in some quarters over the failure of spectacular business improvement to become visible immediately following Labor Day.

AFTER THE STOCK EXCHANGE closed on Saturday, the Steel Corporation announced its first gain in unfilled orders in 17 months. True, the increase was only nominal, 3,293 tons, but in view of the hesitancy which has characterized building, the quietness in the motor industry and the drastic curtailing of expenditures by railroads, the showing can reasonably be viewed as one more straw indicating that the economic wind has changed its direction.

Whether this change will prove permanent the future alone can tell. It can be said, without stretching the facts, that since mid-year the trend, on the whole, has been in the right direction and that thus far nothing has occurred to blast hopefulness.

The financial world remains unexcited over politics.

THEVENOW TARGET OF ADVERSE FATES

Tommy Thevenow

TOMMY THEVENOW still is the hard-luck player of baseball. His latest misfortune, which sends him home with the thumb of his right hand broken and deprives the Pirates of his valuable services for the remainder of the campaign, adds another chapter to a story of adversity that shows Tommy to have been the football of fate ever since he broke into the majors in the latter part of 1925.

In 1927, following his brilliant season with the Cards in 1926, the year in which he hit .417 in the World Series, Thevenow went down with a broken leg. He played in only 59 games in 1927 and in only 69 in 1928. Shifted to the Phils for 1929, he was severely injured in an automobile smash in the spring and was in the hospital for many weeks with a double jaw fracture. Later he had to go back twice for operations, and played in only 90 games during the year. Coming to the Pirates last season, he suffered a broken leg on Labor Day, and now for the second time in succession he is prevented from finishing the race with the locals. He has played only two full seasons since he came into the big show. It seems the game reserved its worst breaks for one of its most deserving players. .

WHILE THERE MAY be some question about the fairness of making Henri Cochet finish a semi-final and play a final on the same day, Pittsburgh tennis men returning from the title tourney say nothing could have changed the result—that Cochet was as good as ever but that Ellsworth Vines was at his life's peak and invincible.

Crushing the supposedly matchless Cochet in straight sets to retain his American title, the young Californian brought to an amazing climax a sensational year in which he won the Newport singles, the Wimbledon singles, beat Cochet in the Davis Cup singles and took the United States doubles with Keith Gledhill. History shows hardly anything to rival it. At the age of 20, Vines is one of the greatest figures that tennis has ever known.

THE PIRATES MANAGED to grab four in a row from the Braves when the latter were encountered in Pittsburgh recently, but that doesn't indicate any easy going when the Bucs move into Boston tomorrow for a three-game series.

The McKechnies are in a better stride now, are fighting hard with a view to finishing as high as possible, there are two tough left-handers to be faced in Ed Brandt and Tom Zachary, and about all that can be safely expected in the series is plenty of trouble.

BROOKLYN PLAYERS DECLARE Al Lopez isn't given the rating he deserves among the great catchers of the day. They insist he is the outstanding backstop of the National League, and former American Leaguers like Jack Quinn and Fred Heimach say he is better than Mickey Cochrane ever was. Lopez has all the batters catalogued and knows his pitchers perfectly. The lifting of hurlers is left entirely to his judgment by Manager Carey. Al has missed just one catchable foul fly this year, and that because another player collided with him. He hasn't dropped a thrown ball at the plate, hasn't missed tagging a sliding runner when he had the ball in time, and a double steal has not once been executed against him.

Lon Warneke

THOUGH CHARLEY GRIMM was playing percentage in using Lon Warneke in the final game of the Boston series, so that it would not be necessary to send him against the Dodgers, who have beaten him four times this year, the Cub manager says he would not fear to start the crack young pitcher against any foe.

"Warneke has a fighting, pitching heart," Grimm said, "and that's why I would not hesitate an instant about starting him in any series, no matter how important—even a world series against the New York Yankees."

GRIMM'S EXPRESSION OF faith in Warneke was prompted by a suggestion that in a world series Lon might suffer the fate that befell Paul Derringer last year. Derringer failed as a pitcher for the Cards in the post-season stakes after enjoying a year almost as brilliant as Warneke is placing to his credit.

"There's a great difference between Warneke and Derringer," the Bruin boss added. "Lon is a fellow who does not get nervous or over-anxious. He's in there natural, and he uses all his stuff without regard to the importance of the game. I would not hesitate to use him in any emergency."

A MOVEMENT IS under way among Eastern turfmen to arrange a special mile race between Equipoise and Morfair during the present meeting at Belmont Park, and it is hoped that Twenty Grand will be able to get into it also and make it a three-cornered fight. J. P. (Sammy) Smith, owner of Morfair, says he will be glad to run Morfair against Equipoise at any time, and as C. V. Whitney some time ago expressed a willingness to race Equipoise against any other thoroughbred in the country at weight for age, it is believed there will be no obstacle in the way of the proposed match. The Westchester Racing Association, operating Belmont Park, but is understood to favor the plan.

RACING CIRCLES ARE divided on the suspension of John McGovern, steeplechase jockey, for a questionable ride at Belmont Park that caused Cherry Brandy to finish second when the powers figured he should have finished first. McGovern's friends admit that he made a bad ride, but contend it was just that, and not a dishonest one.

The stewards appear to have taken a different viewpoint, after hearing the testimony of Vincent Powers, Cherry Brandy's trainer, and others who watched the jockey's actions. In suspending him for the remainder of the season they referred his case to the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, and it is reported his final sentence will be for a much longer time. Cherry Brandy is owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney.

REGARDLESS OF THE outcome, customers at the Schmeling-Walker Queensberry debate next week will confidently expect to get some real fighting for their money, and not without reason. Though he has received two or three shady decisions, Walker never has been accused of not trying. He goes after every foe in hot-and-heavy style. And Schmeling fights in any fashion an opponent elects.

So with Mickey tearing into Max, and the German willing to stand and trade with him, as he usually is, it is unlikely that there will be many dull moments while the battlers are on their feet. Schmeling appears the better fitted to survive such a pace.

Francis Ouimet

IT WILL NOT be necessary for Francis Ouimet to upset precedent in order to capture the United States amateur golf championship twice in a row by winning the 1932 tournament opening today at Baltimore. Five other players have scored two consecutive victories in the national amateur, and two of them did it twice, so that the trick has been turned seven times since the first tourney was held in 1895. The repeaters were Henry Whigham, in 1896 and 1897; Walter Travis, in 1900 and 1901; H. Chandler Egan, in 1904 and 1905; Jerome Travers, in 1907 and 1908 and twice more in 1912 and 1913, and Bobby Jones in 1924 and 1925, and again in 1927 and 1928. Nobody has ever made it three in a row, though Jones would have beaten even that and registered five consecutive wins had he not bowed to George Von Elm, 2 and 1, in the final round at Baltusrol in 1926.

SWIFT TO FACE QUAKERS

OUIMET SCORES POOR 78 FOR FIRST ROUND

FIVE FARMS COURSE, BALTIMORE, COUNTY CLUB, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Johnny Fischer, of Forst Thomas, Ky., intercollegiate champion from the University of Michigan, today shot into the lead in the first round of the United States Amateur golf championship qualifying test with a 69, one under par.

Fischer, a tremendous clouter and fine allaround shotmaker, had five birdies on his card. He climaked his great round by holing a 15-foot putt for a birdie on the eighteenth green to take the decision from Old Man Par and the lead from Charley Yates, 19-year-old Georgia Tech sophomore, who had posted a 72. Fischer's card:

Out ...4 5 3 3 4 5 3 3 4—34
In ....5 4 4 3 4 5 4 3 3—35—69

YATES, GOODMAN TIE

Yates, playing in his first national tournament, reached the turn in a sub-par 34, but used up 38 strokes on the homeward journey. His card:

Out ...4 3 4 4 3 4 4 5 3—34
In ....5 5 4 3 5 4 5 3 4—38—72

Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, moved into the front ranks with a 35-37—72, giving him a tie with Charley Yates, three strokes behind the pace-setting Fischer.

Two of the early casualities were a pair of Southern stars, Chandler Harper, Virginia open champion, and Sam Perry, of Birmingham, former Southern amateur titleholder. Harper, after two wierd holes, was out in 44 and totaled 83, while Perry wound up his first round with an 84.

OUIMET CARDS 78

Francis Ouimet, the defending champion from Boston, lacked his usual putting touch as he finished his first qualifying test in 78. His British rival, Tony Torrance, also was in considerable trouble and came in with an 80, endangering his chances of qualifying.

Two of the strong Oregon contingent, Johnny Robbins and Frank Dolp, former western titleholder, posted 74 and 76, respectively, to fortify themselves for the second half of the qualifying struggle tomorrow.

EXPLANATIONS OF SATURDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOONS: A TENANTS' UTOPIA—Jacob Fugger, of Augsburg, the merchant who was the first modern millionaire and who is referred to as "Jacob the Rich," also was a pioneer in community housing. In 1519, he ordered the constructon of a series of 53 houses of two apartments each for the benefit of worthy laborers and artisans who were not dependent upon extreme charity. The rent was fixed at one rheinisch gulden annually per family (about 40 cents in American money), the money to accrue for the purpose of keeping the buildings in good repair. The only other condition was that the inhabitant recite one Lord's Prayer, one Ave, and one Confession of faith daily to the memory of the founder. The houses stand to this day and the settlement is known as the Fuggerei. For 413 years the deserving families inhabiting the Fuggerei have been paying the same nominal rent and probably will continue to do so as long as the city of Augsburg endures. A CHEMICAL PHENOMENON—A bottle nearly full of concentrated sulphuric acid when exposed to the air will overflow. This is due to the acid's tremendous affinity for water. So great is this avidity that the exposed acid will absorb the moisture in the air and thus swell its volume.

TOMORROW: THE EAR OF THE TYRANT DENYS

MAY POSTPONE HEAVY BOUT

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Postponement of the 15-round battle here between Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, and Mickey Walker, former middleweight king, from September 19 to September 23, will be announced today.

Madison Square Garden officials said last night the postponement would be made because Walker had been suffering from a boil on his left arm, hindering his training.

Garden officials and a physician visited Walker in his training camp at Summit, N. J., on Sunday and decided the extra time should be given him in order to improve his condition by the additional training period.

Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, hurried here from the former champion's camp at Speculator, N. Y., and said he would protest the postponement, but Garden executives said his protest would be ignored and the postponement ordered.

Walker devoted his training yesterday to shadow boxing and bag punching. The boil has been lanced and the cut is rapidly healing, but Walker was not in condition to meet sparring mates.

Schmeling went through a strenuous workout, boxing nine rounds and working three rounds on the bag.

BAMBINO ON MEND

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Although still confined to his bed, Babe Ruth today was believed past all danger of an immediate operation for appendicitis. His physician said that with a few days rest Babe probably would be able to leave his apartment, and if his condition improves as expected he will play in the world series.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Art Giroux, who boxes Jimmy Thomas in the main bout at Hickey Park tonight, rates Pete Sanstol as the outstanding bantamweight in the world . . . Giroux has boxed Sanstol over the 15-round route, and also has met Willie Davies, Johnny McCoy, Frisco Grande, Gene Biancho, Ruby Bradley, Frankie Genaro, Harry Goldstein and other well-known little fellows . . . He is a former holder of the Canadian title.

The Ligonier Country Club is angling for the services of a highly rated golf professional for next season . . . Earl Hewitt, former Penn State star, is a candidate for the Legislature . . . Harry Seymour, dean of local tennis men, took in the national championship at Forest Hills, L. I., and says the event will be remembered as that of the year of the Big Wind.

Leo Mackey, catcher and manager of the Cumberland club, of the Middle Atlantic League, a New York Yankees' farm, is back home and waiting for the basketball season to get under way . . . Leo reports that the dear old Mad Atlantic circuit weathered the bad year in fairly good style, all things considered, and will be back bigger and stronger next season, when it will be expanded to eight clubs . . . The circuit had 12 clubs last year and six during the campaign just completed.

Ellsworth Vines, the California Cannonball, is anything but a clinging vine as a tennis player, judging from the shellacking he gave Henri Cochet, the French ace, in the final round in defense of his National singles title, following his rally from the brink of defeat against Clifford Sutter the day before . . . In fact, he appears to be just what has been claimed for him all along, a new Bill Tilden, and nothing less.

You have to hand it to Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees, for the manner in which he has breezed his outfit through this year . . . With virtually the same team last year, but not quite as good pitching, the New York club finished 13½ games behind the Athletics, while this year it made a runaway race of the pennant fight . . . They say Max Schmeling plans to retire from the ring, a la Gene Tunney, if he succeeds in defeating Mickey Walker when they meet and then regaining his title from Jack Sharkey . . . The American dollars he will have salted away by that time will provide a lot of easy living in Germany.

There is only one draw in the record of Mickey Walker—his 15-rounder with Jack Sharkey . . . He has had 111 bouts, of which he has won 41 by the knockout route . . . There were only 110 candidates for the Notre Dame football team this fall, or enough players to make up 10 teams . . . The warning comes from California that this is to be one of Pop Warner's big years at Stanford, which is anything but good news for Pitt, which winds up its season against the Cardinals at the Stadium here the Saturday following Thanksgiving Day . . Eddie Casey, who will be serving his second year as head coach at Harvard this fall, following some sensational seasons as freshman mentor, was one of the greatest stars during the brilliant regime of the late Percy

IRISH ALUMNI PLAY TODAY

Two golfing events are on the local card for today, as the Notre Dame alumni hold their annual tournament at South Hills and the local chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution stages its final tournament of the season at St. Clair.

Tomorrow, two events are listed. The Women's Golf Association has an 18-hole medal play tournament carded at Stanton Heights and an invitation tourney is listed for Chartiers Heights.

Six district amateurs are competing in the National Amateur at Baltimore, the qualifying round of which gets under way over the Five Farms course there today. This locality is represented by George H. Flinn, Jr., of Fox Chapel; Fred Brand, Jr., of Shannopin; J. Denny St. Clair, of Indiana; Knox Young, Jr., of Highland, and Watts Gunn, of Oakmont, runner-up to Bobby Jones in the title tourney of 1925.

Dr. W. L. Thunhurst and C. G. Taylor tied for the lead in the first division in the 18-hole match play against par tourney at Edgewood yesterday, both finishing 1 down. Play was under seven-eighths handicap.

F. C. Cooper won the award in the match play against par competition at Stanton Heights, being all even.

Gastanaga Signed To Box Kennedy

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Isadore Gastanaga, young Spanish heavyweight, and Les Kennedy, Vernon (Cal.) veteran, have been added to the Max-Baer-Tuffy Griffiths card at the Chicago Stadium September 26.

They will go either eight or 10 rounds, depending on the makeup of the balance of the card.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—The Pirates and Phillies are set to stage their final clash of the season this afternoon. On top of their victorious doubleheader of Saturday, the Pittsburgh athletes were glad to get the Sunday of rest, and this morning they were eager for action in the farewell clash. Bill Swift and Flint Rhem are likely to stage a righthand mound duel today.

As they rested yesterday, the Buccos suffered a loss of ground to the Cubs who won their second game over the Dodgers. The success of the league leaders increased their flag advantage to six full games. This is a stupendous advantage at this late date. The Buccos, by the way, are five games ahead of the third-place Dodgers in the race for the runnerup honors.

THEVENOW OUT

George Gibson's fast-going club will have to do or die without the services of Shortstop Tommy Thevenow, who is lost to the club for the remainder of the season with a broken thumb on his throwing hand. Tommy is back in Pittsburgh, whither he went last night after it was disclosed that he could play no more this season. Thevenow was hurt in the second game of Saturday's doubleheader.

Misfortune had haunted the little shortfielder for several seasons. He was in a very serious automobile smashup a few years back and since that time he has suffered bad injuries on the field. One year ago he broke a leg while performing at Forbes Field. Floyd Vaughan is able to play his regular post.

TOMMY STEADY

Thevenow's cleverness and his steady influence on the other players were high spots in the latest drive of the Pittsburghers. Tommy played brilliantly in most of the 10 games which the Pirates won in succession before the Dodgers stopped their streak. They have won 13 of their last 15 games, yet the steady pace has availed them nothing in their desire to overtake the Cubs.

The Buccos will strike out for Boston tonight. Three contests on successive afternoons with Bill McKechnie's team are slated for Braves Field before the Freebooters head for the Polo Grounds.

Memphis Protests Chattanooga Victory

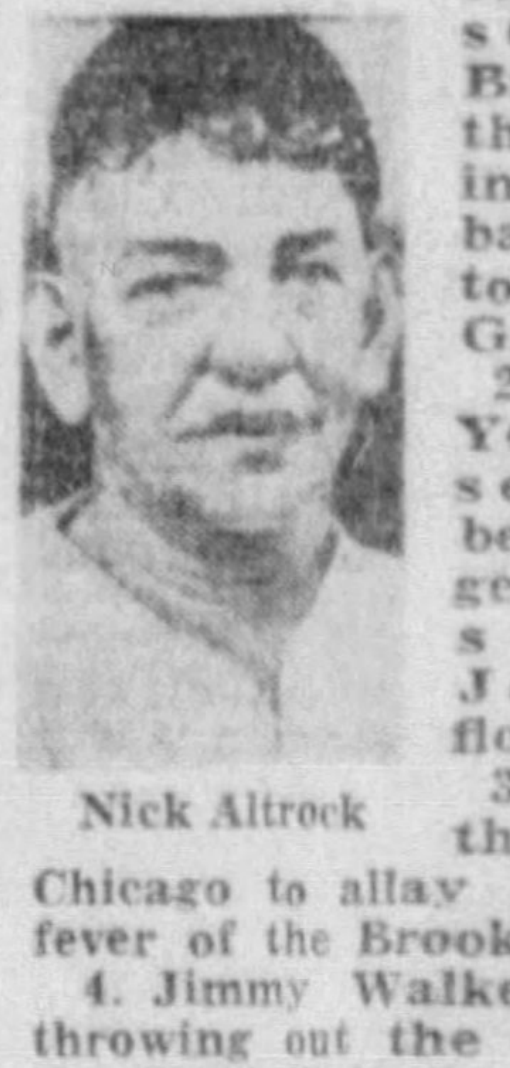
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The Lookouts of Chattanooga were the champions of Southern Association baseball by a two-point margin today, but protests by Memphis, runner up, prolonged controversy over the title.

The season ended yesterday when Chattanooga defeated Knoxville, 5 to 0, and the Chickasaws, of Memphis, whipped New Orleans, 1 to 0. Chattanooga's 12-to-4 victory over Knoxville last Friday in a game disputed by Memphis was the margin of victory.

Chattanooga will engage the winner of the Texas League pennant in a Dixie series that will determine the champions of Southern baseball.

Nick Altrock
Baseball's Humorist
Says:

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Here are a few random thoughts I jotted down:



Nick Altrock

1. The smartest baseball strategy of the season was Bill Veeck, of the Cubs giving Hornsby a base on balls to get Charley Grimm.

2. The New York Giants' season has been the biggest washout since the Johnstown flood.

3. It took just three days in Chicago to allay the pennant fever of the Brooklyn Club.

4. Jimmy Walker won't be throwing out the first ball of the Yank-Cub world series. In the Yank-Cub world series.

5. The Phillies would be the National League champs if they could take their own ball park with them when they went out on the road.

LUCH STRICKEN WITH APPENDICITIS, LOST TO PITT

STAR FULLBACK FACES KNIFE AT WINDBER

John Luch

WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 12.—The Pitt Panthers suffered their first loss of the 1932 season today when John Luch, varsity fullback of 1931 and the leading contender for the berth this year, was rushed to the Windber Hospital suffering with what apparently was an acute attack of appendicitis.

To all appearance Luch was in perfect health yesterday afternoon, but around bedtime he complained of severe pains in his side. Upon examination by Dr. Shanor he was rushed to the hospital late last night.

Luch is being kept under observation. He was reported resting comfortable this morning. The probable loss of Luch means that Dr. Sutherland will have to break in a new fullback and decrease the veteran string of the Panthers. Luch's successor will be chosen from either Izzy Weinstook, of Wilkes-Barre, or Heinie Weisenbaugh, of Tarentum.

Last week, Sutherland moved the practice sessions along in leaps and bounds and by the end of the third day in camp Old Sol had a ringside seat for the initial Panther scrimmage. He made it hot for the boys as they puffed away the greater part of the afternoon in heavy pads.

Saturday's practice brought no serious comment nor was there any rejoicing at the prospects for the fall campaign that opens September 24.

Sutherland's motive for the heavy scrimmage so early in the training was to determine whether or not the squad was in the physical condition to warrant a full week of such workouts.

Weaknesses that will be ironed out over the next week and a half of practice were apparent. There was not the smoothness and coordination that usually marks the line play of Pitt teams.

BELLAIRE MAY JOIN LEAGUE

By TOM BIRKS

The application of the Bellaire Eagles for a berth in the Western Pennsylvania Independent Football Conference is being given serious consideration by the league officials. Bellaire, just across the river from Wheeling, has been a hotbed of football over a period of years, and the club's backers appear to feel that the local sandlot talent would be easy picking for the club coached by Mike Miles, former Princeton all-America fullback, and last year backfield coach of the University of Georgia.

Andy Vusky, well-known sport promoter, is eager to stack the Eagles against the best clubs in the Pittsburgh district. The team has 12 former college players in its regular lineup. Hart Morris and Bob Morris, former Pitt stars, are with the club.

Art Rooney's first call for practice certainly gave the impression that the champions are going to have another real club. John Dreshar, former Carnegie Tech captain and star lineman, was out as was Ernie Lewis, of Pitt.

Boots Klinzing, for many years an outstanding halfback in this district, will play with the East Liberty Papales, along with Joe Morbito, Vogel, Chippy De Stout and Wop Polit.

Miss Fulton Through As Junior Player

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—With two major titles hanging from her racquet this season, Helen Fulton, of Chicago, has concluded her tennis play as a junior.

By the time another season rolls around, Miss Fulton will have passed her nineteenth birthday, the limit for junior competition. She won the national girls' grass courts title here Saturday, defeating Bonnie Miller, of Los Angeles, 6-2, 11-9. Earlier in the season, she took the Canadian junior championship.

Haughton as mentor of the Crimson.

Bunny Buntach, manager of local boxers, has an idea, and it's a pip . . . "I read in your column about the problem presented by the 'virtual knockout' of Ernie Schaaf by Max Baer," he says, "and I think I have the solution . . . Instead of calling a bout a draw when a boxer who has been beaten up to that time stiffens his opponent as the final bell rings, or just letting it go into the records as a decision victory, with the bell saving the man on the floor, why not let the seconds of the unconscious man drag him to his corner and work on him the same as at the end of any other round?

"Then, at the end of the customary minute rest period, ring the bell . . . If the man is able to respond to it, let the result go as a decision . . . If he is still out, credit his opponent with a knockout victory . . . I am sure such a formula would prevent a lot of arguments, such as followed the Stanley Ketchel-Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and Baer-Schaaf bouts."—HARRY KECK.

ARMY ELEVEN WINS

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The West Coast Army football team defeated the San Francisco Olympic Club here yesterday, 7 to 6.

Here's Dukes' Lineup for Opener—With Positions to Be Filled by Coach Layden

Duquesne University ushers in the college football season in Pittsburgh next Friday night when it meets Westminster College at Forbes Field. Four vacated positions will have to be filled by Head Coach Elmer Layden and his assistants. They are at quarterback, where Bud Devinney has passed on; left halfback, where Cristina and Trambley held forth; right guard, where former Capt. Mike Ferrare played, and left tackle, held down last year by O'Donnell. Present indications are that Weinberg will get the call at Ferrare's post; Venneri will replace O'Donnell; Sullivan will be the quarterback and DeLuca will be the regular left halfback. Coaches Layden and Bach are whipping the team into shape on the Bluff. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

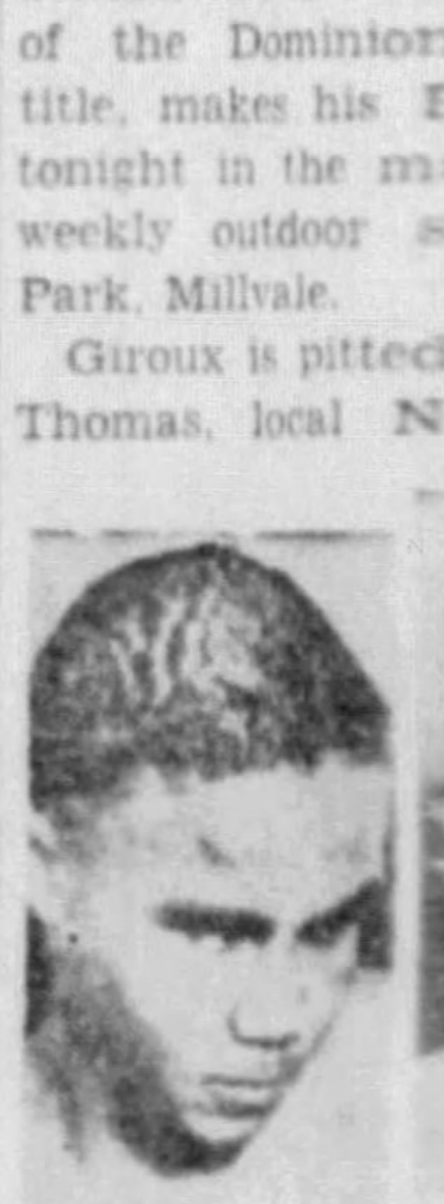
By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

One of the best of the Canadian boxers, Art Giroux, former holder of the Dominion bantamweight title, makes his Pittsburgh debut tonight in the main bout of the weekly outdoor show at Hickey Park, Millvale.

Giroux is pitted against Jimmy Thomas, local Negro star, who has boxed Archie Bell, Pete Sanstol, Spider Pladner and other notables, and has been making rapid strides, both as a boxer and a puncher.



Jimmy Thomas

Art Giroux

In a companion 10-rounder, Johnny Datto, knockout victor over Charley Baxter, local lightweight, in four rounds in the same ring last week, returns to oppose Jimmy Dean, Erie Negro.

HEAVIES IN PRELIM.

Heavyweights, Leo Clements, of Jeannette, and Carl Gross, of Braddock, box the second bout, and Al Farone, of the West End, opposes Johnny Durso, of Oakland, in the opener, scheduled for 8:45 o'clock.

This is the next to last show of the season at Hickey Park.

Thursday night brings two shows to the fans of the district, an open-air offering at Greenlee Field, with Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, boxing Tiger Roy Williams, Chicago Negro middleweight, in the main bout, and the first indoor card of the season at McKeesport, with Harry (Kid) Wallace, of Philadelphia, subbing for Joe Trippe, of Rochester, N. Y., against Billy Holt, Negro welterweight, of Homewood, in the 10-round main bout.

Between Rounds

Teddy Mancuso, of Connellsville, wants a return match with Sammy Asto or with Bobby Rowe or Petey Jahn. Promoters may reach him by calling Connellsville 1020.

The card has been completed for the amateur show at the St. Peter's A. A. arena, North Side, tomorrow night, as follows: Young Gizzy vs. Gene Pier, Eddie Katkish vs. Mike Canoni, Tarzan McGivern vs. Young Florida, Butch Walsh vs. Tuffy Wilson, Bill Schwerin vs. Frank Kladdick, Johnny Tirpak vs. Al Martzo and Dancer Tuminello vs. Young Battling Siki.

Al Quail, of the Y. M. H. A., will box Walter Marm, of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, in the main bout of the Women's Roosevelt-Garner Committee amateur show at the Moose Temple, October 5. Tubby Mills and Johnny Schuster are in another bout.

Al Fay, Charleroi heavyweight stablemate of Mickey Walker under the management of Jack Kearns, will box Vincent Parille, of Chile, in one of the six-round bouts on the Max Schmeling-Mickey Walker card.

Matty Oldach, of Erie, will be one of the principals in the semi-final at Greenlee Field Thursday night.

Lou Raymond Named Arena Matchmaker

Announcement was made today by Promoter Eddie Kapphan that he has named Lou Raymond the new matchmaker at his Arena on the North Side, which opens its season either Friday of next week or the following Friday. Raymond, who came here from New York to make matches at the Meyers Bowl during the sumer season, assumes his new duties at once.

O'LOUGHLINS NET VICTORS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Dr. Dave and Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. aces, hung up a 6-3, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1 triumph over Bill Snyder and Collie Burgwin, rangy home club stars, to top off festivities of the second annual Allegheny Country Club invitation men's doubles tourney on turf before large and colorful audience on the Heights gallery court yesterday afternoon.

Howard Burgwin, A. C. C. luminary, and Hub Rinehart, giant Stantonian, annexed consolation dual laurels by virtue of 6-3, 9-7, 6-2 decision at expense of Frank White and Tom Orr, University Club-Allegheny coalition.

COMPETITION KEEN

The O'Loughlins, in tourament play together for the first time in several seasons, found spirited opposition from the veteran Allegheny combine, which, after a wobbly start, settled down to serious lobbing to grab off set three after nine consecutive service breaks.

The victors, lacking the co-ordination of attack and defense that will come to them only after considerable competition together, found themselves somewhat disorganized by an aerial onslaught begun by the cagy Snyder and continued with the collaboration of the no less tennis-wise Burgwin.

Snyder and Burgwin pulled out a tough semi-final fray from Frank Broida, Pittsburgh Parks premier, and Paul Sullivan, of the P. A. A., 7-9, 6-4, 6-3, after being down, 1-3 in the final canto. Here, too, it was Snyder's lobbing, plus fine volleying by Burgwin, that turned the tables to crack up rival service for the triumph.

In the other semi-final affair, the O'Loughlins downed their Winged Head teammates, Billy O'Loughlin and Wally Arensberg, 6-1, 6-3.

STONE, MATTERN LOSE

Howard Burgwin and Rinehart bumped the Edgeworth duo, Frank Stone and Don Mattern, 6-4, 7-5, and White and Orr eliminated the Alleghenians, J. S. Richardson and Bill Doolittle, 6-3, 6-1, in the consolation penultimate frame.

In a special women's doubles exhibition, the Western Pennsylvania champions, Margaret Carspecken, Morgantown flash, and Miriam Sullivan, P. A. A. driver, defeated the West Penn runners-up, Dorothy Jarvis and Nancy Lee Byers, A. C. C., satellites, 6-3, 6-4. Miss Carspecken later teamed with Julius Boise, brilliant Allegheny pro, to trim Miss Sullivan and Warren Krueger, scintillant Pittsburgh Golf Club mentor, in an abbreviated mixed doubles tussle.

HIS ANNUAL INJURY

TOMMY THEVENOW HERE WITH BROKEN THUMB

It seems Thevenow, Pirate infielder, can't get through a year without a serious mishap. Here he is as he appeared upon his return home today from the East, out for the season with a broken thumb. Twice he has had a leg broken and in 1929 he was almost killed in an automobile accident. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

KINGS OF THE COURT

ELLSWORTH VINES   HENRI COCHET

Two outstanding tennis players of the world as they strode on the court for their titanic battle for the National singles title at Forest Hills, L. I. Vines, the defending champion and also holder of the Wimbledon crown, won in decisive fashion in straight sets to become virtual world premier. This is an International News Photo Service picture.

Vines Is Defeated In Net Exhibition

DETROIT, Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Ellsworth Vines, who successfully defended his national singles tennis crown in New York Saturday by defeating Henri Cochet, smarted from a defeat today. He was beaten by the Japanese Davis Cup player, Jiroh Saoth, in an exhibition match at the Detroit Tennis Club here.

The United States titleholder lost by the score of 6-2, 6-3, after he had teamed with Miss Helen Jacobs, national women's champion, to defeat Miss Sarah Palfrey and Keith Gledhill in a doubles match, 6-3, 6-4.

THEVENOW HERE FOR X-RAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Shortstop Tommy Thevenow, of the Pirates, who came back to Pittsburgh today with a broken thumb on his right hand, is likely to be doing his stuff in the majors for years to come. The modest infielder is not shy on courage; he has weathered a series of bad misfortunes and he is likely to return next season with his accustomed vigor.

The Giants, I know, are sweet on the clever shortfielder, and well they might be, in view of the troubles the Broadway troupe has experienced in the difficult role this year. Bill Terry might have carried his club home to a first division berth had the utility Bucco been a member of the Giant family.

Thevenow arrived in Pittsburgh this morning and went to St. John's Hospital to have an X-ray photograph taken of the injury.

CHILLYSAUCE

Just about the worst "break" the Pirates experienced all summer was dealt in a rather indirect way. When Prexy Bill Veeck, of the Cubs, decided to give The Rajah the "gate" he probably did not know he was turning a bold stroke in favor of the Bears so far as the current campaign is concerned.

The Buccos were far in front when Galli Curci Grimm succeeded Hornsby as the leading man in the Chicago cast. Had Hornsby remained until the close of the season, the Bruins probably would have staggered to the curtain in third or fourth place.

Tommy Padden had to catch both games of the doubleheader on Saturday owing to an injury to Earl Grace. The youngster is the kind of boy that thrives on hard work. If he and Thevenow had been in the lineup instead of Grace and Vaughan when the "lefties" were mauling the Pirates we might have copped a few extra battles.

The Pittsburgh officials should start now to lay plans to acquire righthand hitters to combat the lefthanders they are sure to get next season, if they continue to operate against the southpaws on a lefthand drive. It is bad baseball to persist in the contrasting manner.

Lightweight Grid Conference Formed

Two sections of the local lightweight football conference were organized at a meeting at the Seventh Avenue Hotel last night. Section I was formed with Stowe-Rox, Soho Oakleafs, Ambridge, Oakmont, Homestead, Goose Goslins, Jordans and Arnold Firemen as members.

In Section II, Leetsdale, Glenshaw, St. Williams, Glassmere and the Baden Independents will compete, with two clubs being taken from Section I to complete the roster. The season will be opened September 25.

BACH BOLSTERS DUKES' LINE

By JESS CARVER

Armand Nicolai

Joe Bach, the well-known Notre Dame alumnus, who, in his playing days, could give it and take it as a tackle with the very best of 'em, is toiling diligently day by day up on the Bluff, perfecting a forward wall that will do credit to himself, honor to Duquesne and plenty of damage to the opposition.

Bach, Elmer Layden's line coach, will turn this line loose Friday night against Westminster as the Dukes and Titans open the tri-state intercollegiate gridiron campaign at Forbes Field. After resting yesterday, the Dukes resume their training grind today with a single workout, the two-a-day sessions having been discarded. Hard work will be ordered this afternoon and tomorrow, a somewhat lighter program listed for Wednesday and a tapering off drill Thursday, with a workout under the lights that night.

HAS STRONG TACKLES

Joe is building his line around a pair of crackerjack and experienced tackles and a dynamic center. The tackles, Armand Nicolai and big Johnny Donohoe, are truly formidable stalwarts. Nicolai served the Dukes last year in a dual capacity, being used both as a tackle and an end. He acquitted himself nobly in both roles.

Unless he changes his plans between now and Friday night, and it is possible that he may, Bach will start Weinberg and Decarbo at the guards and Capt. Smoke Abele and Al Krankota at the ends. Ben Ciccone, of course, goes at center—and how he goes.

Meanwhile, Coach Layden is fussing with his backs. It looks now as though Red Sullivan would get the first call at quarterback. DeLuca, provided he is in shape, and Bumping Ben Pawlina are the halfback choices and will work on the varsity in the drills this week. Sil Zaninelli has the fullback and punting job tucked away.

TITAN LINEUP UNCERTAIN

Coach Johnny (Psychology) Lawther, of Westminster, is holding a guessing contest with himself as he attempts to dope out a starting lineup to shoot against the Dukes. He plans a long scrimmage tomorrow, and afterward, hopes to have a better line on his squad.

Swede Hunneke, one of the boys who followed Johnny to Westminster from Long Island, rated as one of the most promising football prospects ever to enroll at the United Presbyterian institution, has been shifted to the backfield from an end. In last Saturday's scrimmage he went very well.

Coach Bob Waddell may join the Carnegie Tech squad today. Bob was absent last week as the Tartans opened their training grind, due to the sudden death of his mother. If he doesn't get into the harness today, he'll be on hand for certain tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Coach Wally Steffen may be expected to shoot the first scrimmage at the Tartans this afternoon, possibly giving them a bit of rough work this morning. It is a wonder he hasn't set them buffeting one another before this. The workouts to date have been fruitful, in that Steffen has been able to get a pretty good line on the prospects, especially in the backfield.

The Tipoff

Hearing the call to gridiron arms, Frank Wykoff, proud possessor of the world's 100-yard dash record of 9.5 seconds, has reported for football practice at Southern California. Wykoff has set his hopes on playing an end for the Trojans. Imagine that baby chasing down the field under a punt. He'd help the safety man catch the ball.

Hank Day isn't going to fool with his footballers at Wash-Jeff. The new coach has let it be known that there is to be no discrimination between the first and second elevens. He plans to have them both of equal strength.

Harry Kipke, head coach at Michigan, has a swell job ahead of him. The Maize and Blue squad opens practice Thursday, and in the short space of two weeks before the opening game, Kipke must develop two guards, two tackles and a center.

Michigan lost Morrison, star center of last year; Auer and Samuels, tackles, and Hozer and LaJuneese, guards. Fortunately Kipke has a wealth of backfield material, including four star punters, in Everhardus, Regeczi, Heston and Oliver.

TULSA VICTOR

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The Tulsa Oilers drew first blood in the Western League playoff with Oklahoma City here last night, winning a 12-inning game, 2 to 1.

CUBS STRETCH LEAD; YANKEES DROP GAME

Associated Press.

The major league finish line still is 14 days away but, with a little luck, both pennant races may be decided this week.

The New York Yankees are almost certain of clinching the American League flag within the next few days. They need only two victories to eliminate the sole remaining contenders, the Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators. In the National League, the Chicago Cubs are confronted with a sterner task. They need 10 victories to eliminate the Pittsburgh Pirates, or any combination of victories which, coupled with Pittsburgh defeats, totals 10. The odds are against any definite decision in the National League this week, but it can be done if the Pirates hit the skids.

CUBS GAIN GROUND

The Cubs stretched their lead over the idle Pirates to six full games yesterday by trimming the Brooklyn Dodgers, 3-1, behind Guy Bush's eight-hit pitching. Gabby Hartnett's home run with Manager Charley Grimm on the paths, gave the Cubs their winning margin in the fourth inning.

The Boston Braves beat the Cincinnati Reds in both ends of a double-header, 13-3 and 10-1, and drew to within a game and a half of the fourth place Phillies. Tom Zachary and Bent Cantwell pitched steady ball for the Braves and had the benefit of some high-powered hitting by Dutch Holland, Wally Berger and Randy Moore.

The St. Louis Cardinals retained their hold on sixth place by beating the New York Giants, 3-2, in the second game of a doubleheader after taking a 7-to-3 beating in the opener.

YANKEES HALTED

The Yankees made no progress in their march to the American League flag, for they were stopped by Wes Ferrell and the Cleveland Indians, 5-4. Ferrell, making his first appearance after a 10-day suspension, limited the Yankees to eight hits and won his twenty-first game of the season.

Jimmy Foxx's fifty-second homer with one on was the margin by which the Athletics beat the Detroit Tigers, 5-4. Washington made it 23 victories in 27 games by tripping the Chicago White Sox twice, 2-1 and 9-4, and moved to within one game of the Athletics.

The St. Louis Browns, after breaking an eight-game losing streak in the first game, 7-1, dropped the second to the Boston Red Sox, 8-3. Dale Alexander poled a home run with the bases filled and two doubles in the second game.

PITT TO ACT ON RADIO

The question of whether or not the University of Pittsburgh football games at the Pitt Stadium this fall will be broadcast by radio will be settled by the athletic council, W. Don Harrison, athletic director, announced today upon his return from New York, where he attended a meeting of the Eastern Intercollegiate Association at which the organization's ban on broadcasts was rescinded.

The executive committee of the council will meet tomorrow and make its recommendations, which will be acted upon by the council as a whole at its annual fall meeting Tuesday of next week.

YALE TO BROADCAST

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Malcolm Farmer, graduate director of athletics, announced today that Yale will permit radio broadcasting of the Yale-Army and the Yale-Harvard football games this season.

The broadcasts from the Bowl, he said, will be unsponsored and the entire costs will be borne by the broadcasting companies.

The Army game will be played October 22 and the Harvard game on November 19.

COLUMBIA IN LINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Dr. Edward S. Elliott, director of athletics at Columbia University, announced today that broadcasting of all Lion football games would be permitted. The Eastern Intercollegiate Association, of which Columbia is a member, voted Friday to allow individual schools to decide the question of radio broadcasting.

Grays to Battle Giants Again Today

The Homestead Grays and the Chicago American Giants will resume their championship series at Greenlee Field this evening. The final contest of the series will be played tomorrow.

On Saturday, at Monroe, La., the Crawfords walloped the Monroe nine, 11 to 1.

The initial game of the Greater Pittsburgh League post-season championship playoff series will be staged at Swissvale this evening as Edgewood and Springdale clash. Play will get under way at 5:30.

SCHEMPP WINS AUTO RACE AT ARDEN

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 12.—In a race that lacked the thrills of the Labor Day affair and was watched by a good sized turnout, including township constables who had been instructed to halt the races, Billy Schempp, of Pittsburgh, led a field of 11 drivers over the 50-mile distance.

Constable Isaac Fenton, of Chartiers Township, took the names of all those connected with the race and warrants for their arrest will be issued today.

TRUESDALE SECOND

Owen Truesdale, of Edgewood, finished second to Schempp, with Earl Johnson, of Tarentum, third, and Earl Hertzog, of Pittsburgh, fourth.

Riding in second position until the seventy-second lap when his car went out of control and crashed through the guard rail, Oliver Clay, of Pitcairn, escaped injury. A rear tire blew out and caused the car to swerve.

SCHNEIDER COPS

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 12.—Alfred Schneider, of Trafford, Pa., finished first in the 50-mile auto race at the Sharon Speedway here yesterday, leading Griff Stewart, of Pittsburgh, and Larry Evans, of Steubenville, O., across the line. Gail Lanker, of Griffin, O., was fourth.

Roy Porter, of Pittsburgh, escaped injury when his car crashed through the fence and Jack Casey, also of Pittsburgh, also was unhurt as his car blew a tire and went into the bank in one of the qualifying races.

Lanker won the first qualifying race with William Carr, of Carey, O., first in the second preliminary. The third was won by Larry Evans.

SAULSPAUGH WINS

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Bryant Saulspaugh, of Chicago, jumped far into the lead in the point scoring at the Woodbridge half-mile yesterday by winning the feature 25-mile auto race for the second straight time. It was the second program for the new oval and left the middle-Western driver with a total of 120 points.

Billy Winn, Little Media, Pa., driver, set a new track record during the time trials, touring the half-mile in 29 seconds flat. Ken Fowler set the old mark of 29 4-5 seconds in the opening program two weeks ago before Frank Farmer and Bill Neapolitan were killed in a crash.

CAREY VICTOR

WINCHESTER, Ind., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Bob Carey, of Anderson, Ind., started the race card at Funk's motor speedway west of here yesterday, winning the 20-mile feature race, the first five-mile elimination tilt, and a special five-lap race with Maurie Rose, of Dayton, O.

The second five-mile elimination contest was won by Ira Hall, of Terre Haute, with Al Gordon, of Los Angeles, second and Benny Benefield, of Indianapolis, third.

KNIGHTS EVEN M.-A. SERIES

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Kelsey Jennings limited the Charleston Senators to two hits yesterday, as the Beckley Black Knights won, 2 to 0, to even the count at two-all in the Middle Atlantic playoff series. The crowd overflowed onto the field after the grandstand was filled and the park gates were locked.

The Knights scored their first run off Joe (Speed) Martin, Charleston hurler, in the opening inning. With one down, Eli Harris, shortstop, tripled and Clyde Glass, leftfielder scored him with a single. An additional tally was scored in the seventh when Hope Beasley, centerfield, opened the inning with a double to left and scored on a similar hit by Groseclose.

Gene Byrd, Charleston's second baseman made both of the Senators' hits. He rapped two singles to right, both with the bases empty. Gordon Johnson, centerfielder, was the only other Senator to get on base. He was walked twice and once stole second. The score:

Morbito, Tech Grad, Married Four Years

Joe Morbito, former Carnegie Tech backfield star, has been married for four years, he revealed to his friends today. Mrs. Morbito is the former Miss Theresa Holland, of Leetonia, O. The marriage was performed on May 1, 1928.

Mrs. Morbito is employed in a downtown department store, while Morbito, who graduated in 1932, was a lifeguard at the Pittsburgh Field Club pool. He made his bow in pro football this fall.

Arnold to Drive In Langhorne Race

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Billy Arnold, Detroit automobile racer, who won the 1930 Decoration Day race at Indianapolis and who was injured in the classic 500-mile grind this year, has agreed to enter the 100-mile event at the Langhorne (Pa.) track, September 24.

THE BABE

He's the Grand Slam of World Series—Here's His Life Story.

By EDWARD J. NEIL

Written for Associated Press

This is the first of 10 stories relating the prodigious world series feats of the one and only Babe Ruth. Nearing the end of his career, the Babe this year will make his tenth and perhaps last appearance in the classic.

Every time George Herman Ruth steps up to the plate, scratches his spikes in the batter's box, tucks down his cap as the crowd roars, and waves his hickory wand — nine world series records either will tumble automatically or tremble, and 13 others will be in danger.

Babe Ruth

That is all that Ruth, the greatest slugger in baseball history, once one of the game's best left-hand pitchers, and certainly the outstanding gate attraction of all times, means to the game he has played for world championships more than any other ball player.

The first time the Big Bam trots out with his funny mincing stride to take up his cudgel in the opening game at the Yankee Stadium, one record will topple with that motion alone. This is the tenth world series for the Babe.

STARTED AS PITCHER

The first three of these he saw as a pitcher for the Boston Red Sox in 1915, 1916 and 1918, and even then he set up records. His mark of 29 successive scoreless innings in series competition never has been equaled.

But over the stretch of his world series career with the Yankees, in 1921, '22, '23, '26, '27 and '28, when hitting was his forte and the clouting championships of the world at his mercy, the big belter has all but rewritten the record book.

Every time he scores a run or bats one in, hits a home run or any extra-base hit, gets a base on balls or even strikes out, Babe Ruth breaks one of his own series records.

HOLDS MANY RECORDS

Ruth's unequaled marks today, over the period of his nine series, stand at 31 runs scored, 27 driven in, 13 home runs, 20 long hits, 48 extra bases on them for a total of 85 bases on all his hits, 29 bases on balls and 27 strikeouts.

He has made four home runs in one series and twice clouted three in one game. He has walked 11 times in one series, four times in one game.

He made six long hits, three doubles and three home runs in four games with the Cardinals in 1928. He had 12 total bases in one game, 22 in one series. And he holds the magnificent batting average record of .625 for one series. Six times he has averaged better than .300.

Shady Side Poloists Defeat Vangs, 4-3

The Shady Side polo team defeated the Vangs in the first game of a schedule three-game series on the Squaw Run field yesterday, 4 to 3. The second game will be played under the lights at New Kensington Wednesday night and the third game at Sewickley next Saturday.

Shady Side came from behind to win yesterday. A crowd of 1,500 attended the match. The lineup:

SHADY SIDE—4.		VANG—3.
Arron	No. 1	Mazuzan
D. McCahill, Jr.	No. 2	D. McCahill, Sr.
B. McCreery	No. 3	Grodan

Score by chukkers—

Vang ... 1 0 2 0 0 0—3

Scoring—M. McCreery 2, McCahill, Jr., 1, Arron 1, Mazuzan 2, D. McCahill, Sr., 1. Referee—Boyce. Timekeeper—Lewis.

The Fox Chapel poloists downed South Park, 11 to 4, at South Park yesterday. Steve Madden starred for the visitors, scoring five goals. The lineup:

FOX CHAPEL—11.		S. PARK—4.
Linton	No. 1	Degenhardt
Perritt	No. 2	Ackerman
Madden	No. 3	Voltz

Substitutions—Fox Chapel, McGovern; South Park, Landau, Wagner, Fisher. Goal scoring—Madden 5, Landau 3, Perrit 3, Linton 3, Ackerman 1. Referee—Keiser.

Petrali Captures Class A Hill Climb

Joe Petrali, of Sacramento, Cal., won the Class A event for professionals at the motorcycle hill climb held at Wittmers' farm on the Perry Highway yesterday. Herb Reiber was second and Gene Rhyne third.

Reiber won the Class A, 21.35 cubic inch event and also finished first in the 45 cubit inch race for experts. In the 45 cubic inch, Class B climb, J. R. Castonguay, of Springfield, Mass., was first and in the 80 cubic inch, Class BB event, E. S. Buck, of Palmerton, Pa., won.

By his victory, Petrali practically assured himself of the national title for 1932. He will compete in the final climb of the year at Albany, N. Y., next Sunday.

Art Earlenbaugh, of Milwaukee, suffered the only serious accident of the day. His cycle turned over on him after he had gained the top of the hill on his second trail in the professional event. He suffered a broken right ankle. More than 6,000 saw the climb.

CHAPTER XIX

Morning sun streamed through the wide windows, illumining the austere Spanish room, turning the dim tapestries to brilliant garnet and purple and gold.

Val sat up and looked out the window, surprised and delighted to see that Millie's house was built on the hills overlooking the sea. She had not realized the beauty of the setting at night.

White jasmine garlanded the windows. A mocking bird sang his thrillingly sweet song in a giant pepper tree just below.

"Val, darling—awake? Want to get up for breakfast, or have it up here?"

Millie, radiant and lovely, and fresh as the morning in chalk white sport dress and a little loose pink jacket that exactly matched her cheeks, was laughing in the doorway.

"Oh—want to get up! It's so beautiful, it's wicked to lie here!"

"Then I'll tell them—we'll have it downstairs. Don't hurry. We haven't a thing to do but enjoy ourselves!"

So Millie, with a careless wave, and a swish of her white silk skirts . . . the old Millie back again! . . . disappeared, and Val splashed and whistled in the luxurious tiled bathroom that she didn't have to share with anyone, and wondered why she had felt so blue the night before.

Millie hadn't changed! She might live in an authentic Spanish house and wear sport clothes instead of the picturesque trailing things she used to wear, but at heart she was the same Millie, merry, laughing, carefree.

DISAPPROVES OF NAME

All the strain of the night before was gone. They sat at a little painted table in the patio that was shaded with banana trees and flowering vines, and dappled with sun, and drank coffee and gossiped as comfortably as though they had never been apart.

Vincent was out.

Aunt Julia was far away in Oakland.

Millie and she were together again.

"Millie, doesn't it seem that we'd never been separated?"

"It does, darling. Because you're just what I wanted you to be, and knew you'd be . . . though I must get at your clothes. But I wish you wouldn't call me Millie."

Val flushed to the roots of her hair. "It's just that I never have called you mother. It would seem strange, but I can—"

"Mother! Don't you EVER call me that! Of course, everyone will know I am your mother, and I'm proud of you, darling. But to have a great, grown girl CALLING one mother . . . no, thank you! What I meant was —Millie is so common—I hate the sound of it."

"I love it..And it's your name, Millie."

"No, I was named Millicent. I wish you'd call me that. Vincent does, and all our crowd. Now try, won't you, Val?"

Val tried, but it was hard. And she didn't want to meet "the crowd."

FRIENDS ARE GAY

She didn't even want Vincent to come back again, they had such a lovely day without him. But he did come back, and in spite of herself she did like him.

Like Millie, he had a streak of gaiety, as charming as it was unexpected. He wanted everyone to have a good time, and he had the best time of all, himself.

"The crowd" wasn't formidable either. In twos and threes and sometimes by the dozens and half dozens, they "dropped in for a minute" and spent the rest of the afternoon and evening.

After the first two or three days Val got used to it. Vincent, it seemed, had a yacht, the Sea Horse, which was anchored in the bay and reached by means of a trig little launch, with two blue-coated sailors to man it.

Friends of Vincent had other yachts. They were all men, middle aged, ruddy faced, impressive looking, like himself. If they had wives they never mentioned them. Each one had "a friend," introduced as Miss This or That. But like Millie, most of them had been married and were really "Mrs." and some of them had children.

All of the girls but Millie, and one or two of the others, worked. Two were private secretaries, one was a publicity agent for a woman's club, and the rest were stenographers or clerks in offices. All were young, an indeterminate "young" that might be 25 and might be 35 or more. And all, like Millie, were gay.

DIFFERENT TYPES

It was just as Val remembered Millie's flat in the old days. Laughter, music, good food, a little too much noise, a little too much drinking. Smell of perfume, cigaret smoke, gardenias.

So different from Aunt Julia's house, from the stilted parties Val was accustomed to, where people dressed up and then sat around for an hour or two with strained smiles waiting for everybody to get there, and nobody really had any fun until after the refreshments were served.

Yet these people . . . no use pretending, Val knew . . . they weren't good. These men, some of them at least, had wives waiting for them at home, while they "dropped in" at Millie's with these girl friends. Yet they had more fun than the "good" people at home.

There was an answer, Val was sure there was an answer for that, but she couldn't find it. She tried to talk about it to Millie on one of their rare afternoons at home alone.

"Millicent . . . these girls, Miss O'Hara and Miss Greene, and the others in the crowd . . . they're not doing just right, do you think? I mean, wouldn't Mr. Crosby's and Mr. Sheridan's wives, and the others, feel badly if they knew?"

Millie turned her long, dark eyes on Val. "Not knowing the ladies, I couldn't possibly say."

Val turned the leaves of the magazine on her knee. "I can't help but wonder. I think about them, because I'm going to be a wife myself. Not that Joe is likely to have a yacht and a lot of money, and do things like that."

MILLIE ANGERED

Val was angry too.

"What do you think I mean? I'm not a child. Do you think I don't know what it's all about? Can't I see that Miss O'Hara—"

"I don't know a thing about Oswald Crosby and Nell O'Hara, and I don't ask any questions! Of course, it's pretty obvious that . . . well! I dare say he's keeping her. But I'm not going to cut off my nose to spite my face, to snub her! Besides, she's a nice girl and secretary to one of the biggest men in Santa Barbara, and very refined looking. And the same with the others. They——"

"I know. That's what I mean. They seem nice enough, and they certainly have more fun than the girls I know at home, and still I know they aren't nice, really and——"

"Valentine Macfarlane, if I thought you'd be fool enough to be influenced by these—these hussies—do you think I'd have brought you here for one single minute. They aren't nice, and they don't have fun. They lead dogs' lives, every one of them, even if they are done up like circus horses."

"Oh, Millie! Millicent, I mean! Don't lecture me like Aunt Julia. I'm not going to COPY them!"

"I should say you aren't! If I thought, for one minute——"

"MILLIE! Please! I just meant that they have such lovely things, and go so many wonderful places, and the girls at home——"

"Valentine!" Millie was shocked. Shocked clear through. "How can you compare your friends at home with these—well—how can you compare them? What difference does it make whether your nice girl friends in Oakland have a lot of clothes or not? None at all. Why, the happiest time of my life I was so darn poor I didn't know what it was to have an extra pair of silk stockings.

"Do you think fine clothes make a lady? Do you think I'd speak to one of these girls if Vincent and I were mar——I mean, if Vincent wasn't married and he could marry me? But as it is, people would not understand that our case is different, so we can't go around with the people I'd like to go with, and we have to go with this crowd, and it—it just KILLS me——"

Millie broke into loud, tearing sobs that shook her lovely body in its exotic lounging robe. Millie lived in lounging robes and pajamas as much as possible, because her street clothes, to please Vincent, were so conservative.

Val tried to comfort her. She didn't know what to say, or what to do. Millie cried so hard her face became horribly disfigured, and she had to go to bed. Val brought her an icepack and sat beside her, holding her long, lovely hand.

"Don't you confuse me with those cheap women. Do you hear me, Valentine? Don't you think for one moment——"

"No, Millie—of course not—"

"Because I tell you, I may be unconventional, but I certainly would not have a thing to do with ONE of them if the men weren't friends of Vincent's, and under the circumstances I have to be decent to them.

"But you wait 'till I'm Mrs. Vincent Shalor, and you'll see how long I'll have that trash around! I'll show them . . . Oh, Val! If it were now! The things I'd do for you. I tell you, Vincent has money. You wouldn't believe how much. This house is nothing. Why, the house where his wife lives is set in fourteen acres of landscape gardening, and then she spends most of her time in Europe.

"Well, you wait. You'll see. Kiss me. Send up a tray for my dinner, darling, and tell Vincent I'm not feeling well, will you, when he comes in? Just milk toast for me. Milk toast, and tea, and lemon—"

But when Vincent came home Millie was sitting up in a gorgeous nightie, with a cerise ribbon tied around her blue-black hair, and laughter crinkling her long, dark eyes.

Synopsis

Hugh Grantland Asks for Madge's Help

Hugh Grantland's eyes shadowed as I told him that I had no choice about coming to the sick room to help him in watching over Lee Chow and the Chinese who first had come under Katherine's care.

"I will be responsible to Mrs. Bickett for the care of these men," he said, with an abrupt change of manner. "It is unthinkable that you should be sent here against your inclination."

"I have nothing else to do," I went on hurriedly, wishing that, ithout appearing embarrassed, I could turn my look away from that lambent flame which had again appeared far back in his eyes at my assertion. "With my mother-in-law taking care of the baby, and all our young people and children with the Underwoods at the shore, I am holding myself in readiness to help Katherine in any way and at any time I can. So please don't worry about it any more. I'm here to stay. You can't get rid of me."

I could have bitten through my treacherous tongue at this last sentence.

"Get rid of you!" he repeated tensely. "Don't you know?"

His eyes were fixed steadily upon mine, and I do not know what dismay or shrinking I may have unwittingly betrayed.

"Please, forgive me," he pleaded. "I—I did not mean to startle or annoy you. But you must not imply that ever, at any time or place, I could wish to send you away."

I must hold fast to a casual air, I told myself. It was my only possible attitude, and I tried to mask my very real agitation.

SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

"Thank you," I said lightly. "That is a very nice, complimentary speech. But I am afraid we will awaken your patients if we keep on talking, and then Katherine will scold."

I think he was relieved at the way out I had provided him, for his response was quick and his manner was matter-of-fact.

"I wish we could awaken Lee Chow merely by the sound of conversation," he said. "When he reacts to ordinary noises, we shall know that the battle is won. The other poor chap is deaf, as you probably know, so that talking does not disturb him."

"Yes, I know," I said, catching at any conversational straw, "But tell me, is Lee Chow definitely out of danger?"

"As far as our knowledge goes, yes," he replied gravely. "But no one taking care of him knows the nature of the poison smeared on that dart, and therefore we have been handicapped in his treatment. But to my eyes he appears to be definitely improving, and as Mrs. Bickett holds the same opinion, I think we may hope for the best."

"I trust so," I said fervently, and he arranged a chair near his in the doorway so that I, too, could see both patients.

"I am so glad of this chance of consulting you," he said, and with a little secret sigh of relief I saw that he was speaking in a perfunctory casual manner. "This illness of Lee Chow's throws a rather perplexing problem upon my shoulders."

MUST ALTER PLANS

He paused and looked at me with troubled eyes; but the flame had gone, and I knew that I was safe in encouraging his confidence.

"I shall be glad of helping you in any way," I returned, "although I fear my advice isn't worth much. But tell me about it, anyway."

The troubled look left his eyes, and he bent toward me with relief in his voice and face.

"I knew I could count on you," he said. "It's just this. As I told you, the capture of those two Chinese whom we turned over to the authorities marks the beginning of the end of our necessitated long absences from the States. There will be expeditions, of course, but the 'tumult and the shouting die.' We shall lead more peaceful lives henceforth.

"We had expected to leave here, attend to some neglected personal affairs and then return for Marion's birthday celebration and the opening of the box; but when Lee Chow received that venom into his veins, it changed everything. If things go well he will be convalescent soon, but it will be several weeks before he is really himself again. Do you know of any furnished house nearby—we both loathe hotels—that I could take until the birthday celebration, when the sealed envelopes in that box are to be opened?"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

A colorful event, the initial running of the annual Enright Chapter marble shooting tournament, was the piece de resistance at Saturday's meeting in East Liberty's Enright Theater.

It might have been a day at the races for there were evidences of excitement upon every face and the atmosphere tingled with suspense as the sidelines watched every movement of the straining entrants in that great American sport—marble shooting. The contestants, eager with the desire to win, outdid themselves and the first lap of the tournament was a really colorful affair.

Unless one has seen such a thrilling contest it is indeed difficult to picture in one's imagination the breath-taking suspense created by a group of boys all yelling and jeering, plus a sideline of youthful feminine supporters. A joyous bedlam of youthful exuberance!

VIE FOR HONORS

We noticed the Pagano twins, Bill Eiseman, Eddie Schoenberger and Freddie Hill straining every muscle to capture the coveted crown which will be awarded the winner—not to mention the title that accompanies the crown. After all it is some honor to be the champion marble shooter of the Enright Chapter of the Junior Komic Club and there will be many an envious person when the final decision is made two Saturdays hence.

Just one big affair would hardly complete a real Enright meeting, so there were several other events on the program, among which was the usual dancing class, conducted by Ruthie Miller. If anyone believes that dancing lessons are work, we beg of you to watch just one class with Miss Miller instructing. The girls put so much vim and vigor into their lessons that we are sure that it is nothing at all like work, but must be something really enjoyable.

The boys, not content with their marble tournament, requested that they be permitted to hold another of the ever-popular "poison" contests. The sport is still the universal success that it was when first introduced at the club and all of the boys present were right in the thick of things. "Poison" really creates excitement, not to mention the exertion that everyone goes through while participating in the event.

ENDURANCE CONTEST

And everyone had extended themselves quite a bit in the several activities, as a fitting climax, an endurance contest was staged. The object being to decide which boy and girl could hold their right arm fully extended for the longest time. Recall to memory a picture of the lame-duck and you will have an idea of what the contest looked like. The anxiety upon each face as the arm began to tire enticed roars of laughter from the onlookers and the contest scored a huge success.

With the lively interest manifested thus far in the marble tournament, next Saturday's meeting should be more than ever exciting and the Enright Chapter promises much fun for those attending, not to mention the screen attractions for that date which is Joan Blondell in Mary Roberts Rinehart's mystery-thriller, "Miss Pinkerton."

If you are not already a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, hasten now to enroll and then you, too, may participate in the many enjoyable events held each week at the various Warner Theaters for the club members. Your name and address, age, name of school attended and nearest theater mailed to the Secretary of the Junior Komic Club in care of the Sun-Telegraph will bring you a membership card and club emblem. Send that information today and be among those present for the club-meetings.

A Shorter School Year?

Whether the Children's Education Would Suffer Is The Main Consideration.

N. R. Criss, chairman of the finance committee of the Board of Education, lets it be known that the members have been discussing informally a suggestion that the school year be shortened from 10 months to nine, as a means of saving $1,000,000 a year in teachers' salaries.

The proposal to save money for the taxpayers at the expense of the teachers, by giving them only nine months of work a year, is of dubious merit at best. There are no public servants more hard-working, more eager to do good work and serve the public loyally, than the school teachers; and we do not believe the people of Pittsburgh will relish the idea of imposing this hardship on them.

But the main consideration, of course, should be the welfare of the school children. How would lopping a month off the school year affect them? Would their education suffer? If it would, the idea ought not to be entertained for a moment.

A Chance to Save

One-Half of One Per Cent Is Not to be Disdained in Borrowing Millions.

Apropos of Congressman Harry A. Estep's recommendation that Pittsburgh borrow money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the improvement of the wharves, John S. Herron, president of City Council, remarks that the city's credit is good, and that if it becomes necessary to borrow, a loan can be negotiated without help from Washington.

Yet he admits that a loan could be obtained from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at an interest rate of 3¾ per cent and that the city has to pay 4¼ per cent on recently issued bonds. A saving of one-half of one per cent is not to be disdained in borrowing a million or more.

If the wharves are to be improved, and it is going to be necessary to borrow money to pay for the work, the city should not be too proud to save one-half of one per cent by getting the loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

A Wise Nomination

Connecticut Democrats Deserve Praise for Selecting Lonergan, Foe of Foreign Entanglements, for Senate.

The nomination of Augustine Lonergan for United States Senator from the State of Connecticut reflects great credit upon the Democratic Party in Connecticut.

Representative Lonergan is classified in Connecticut as a Smith man and was urged for the nomination by the so-called old guard of the Democratic Party, which is still loyal to ex-Gov. Smith.

It is not strange that the ardent supporters of Gov. Roosevelt, who are called the "New Guard," were able to unite with the "Old Guard" in Mr. Lonergan's nomination.

His record in public life and in Congress is a party asset and richly entitled him to the nomination.

As a representative in Congress, Mr. Lonergan has opposed our entry into the League of Nations, and in every way striven to keep the United States free of European entanglements.

He has opposed adherence to the World Court.

He has advocated and supported a sales tax.

He has firmly opposed cancellation of Europe's war debts to the United States.

He has been steadily for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

In these attitudes, boldly taken and consistently adhered to, one finds the delineation of a true American and a genuine Democrat.

It is good to see the Democratic Party getting back to the sound Democratic ground of the founders of the party.

The election of Mr. Lonergan to the Senate would strengthen that body and hearten the country.

Mexico's New President

The Change in Administration Was Effected With Dignity and Constitutional Correctness.

Mexico honors her sovereignty, quickens the confidence and admiration of her neighbors, and heartens the family of free nations by the quiet dignity and constitutional correctness which distinguish the change that has just taken place in the presidency of the republic.

For reasons that concern the Mexican people and only the Mexican people, President Ortiz Rubio has resigned the presidency midway of the term for which he was elected.

In strict accordance with the procedure prescribed by their constitution, the Mexican Congress has accepted the resignation of the retiring president and elected as his successor his minister of war, General of Division Abelardo L. Rodriguez.

Major political differences with the leaders of the national revolutionary party which elected him have not blinded his party or his people to the integrity and honest purpose of the retiring president.

As a result, despite criticism of his administration on the score of ineptitude for the theory of administration and an increasing infelicity in its practice, Ortiz Rubio relinquishes his high office and leaves the republic in search of health with the protection and respect due his office and without animosity toward the man himself.

As the new president of the republic the Mexican Congress has by unanimous vote drafted a tried and true son of the revolution in Abelardo Rodriguez. He was not an active candidate for the office. In accepting it at this time he renounces the right to be a candidate for the full presidential term at the next election.

As governor of Lower California, as chief of the cavalry, and general staff departments, as undersecretary of war and marine, as minister of industry, commerce and labor, and recently as minister of war and marine in succession to Gen. Calles, the new president has shown administrative ability, courage and energy that further explain the unanimity of his choice for the highest office in the gift of his people.

President Rodriguez begins his administration with an uninterrupted record of loyal service to the government and people of Mexico of 19½ years. In him the National Revolutionary party has nominated and the Mexican Congress has elected a president of the republic whose natural ability, long and varied experience and gift of leadership augur well for the success of his administration and the future welfare of the Mexican nation.

The Anchor Holds Her Back -:- -:- -:-

There are blasts upon the whistle,
As the long unused propeller
Once more starts to churn the water.

But the vessel is retarded
In her sailing by the anchors;
And until they have been hoisted
She can make but little headway.

Women—And Trousers

The sweetest consolation for the passing of summer is that one can say goodbye to pajamas! Or, to put it more accurately, to PANTS!

For years, I have envied man his freedom, perquisites and privileges—and above all, what I fondly thought were his comforts. But two seasons of pajamas have cured me! And these little tight sailor pants (so popular this past summer) have made me thank heaven that I was cradled in a pink bassinet, instead of in a blue one, and have not had to go all through life wearing these stuffy, silly-looking things.

Who INVENTED trousers, anyway? And why wasn't he boiled in oil or burned at the stake for putting this gypsy's curse on men?

Women may dress frivolously and foolishly; but a woman can give you a reason for everything she wears. It is either to keep her warm, keep her cool or make her beautiful. But three-quarters of a man's garments are absolutely meaningless!

Take off a man's coat, for instance, and what do you see? A waistcoat that wrinkles over the most shrinking front and doesn't even come within kissing distance of his trousers in the back. Trousers that balloon about around his hips like twin loving-cups and are held on only by faith and a leather belt.

AND I LIKE TO BE FEMININE

He is put together in 20 or 30 pieces—just like one of these picture puzzles that you give the baby for Christmas. (Only in the end the puzzle DOES mean something.)

* * *

NO WONDER men are always late for breakfast! I marvel that they ever get themselves all fitted together, fastened, strapped and hooked up in time for lunch!

If there were any aesthetic or practical reason for all this secret mechanism—but, after two whole summers of wearing pants, I know better. Never in all my blameless life have I been so bitterly uncomfortable. Next to a mustard plaster, there is nothing hotter or stuffier on a July day, than a pair of pants!

* * *

With what a sigh of relief and joy I have packed them all away—the swaggering corduroy ones, the tight, little jersey ones, the stiff linen ones and even the floppy silk ones!

* * *

Give me back my wild, free skirts, my soothing long silk stockings and all the things that go with them. I'm going FEMININE, this fall!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Betimes and an autographed copy of Princess Der Ling's "Jades and Dragons." And, after breakfasting on a mackerel, to see Clara Walsh, who told of motoring through Gallipolis recently and I felt a longing to go there myself.

All the early afternoon frittering at my task, and with my wife to meet Mrs. Pearl S. Buck, authoress from China, then to my dentist, Dr. Campbell. And we talked of days when he, just out of college, opened his little office and I was his third patient.

Dining in the evening at "The Chimney Corner" near Stamford, run by Marseilles, a former acrobat, who has found content away from the fury of the city. Then driving on to Shippan Point to call on the H. T. Websters and home late. And so to bed.

In a roadside cafe a master of ceremonies called upon audience talent. After a little coaxing a silver-haired gentleman, on the other side of the gulf and suggesting the late Lord Oxford, responded. With his middle-aged and plump wife, he executed a series of whirlwind dances that brought diners to their feet. In the Hammerstein-Victoria days, they were billed as The Marvelous Millers, and in mature years express an amazing elan of vitality.

* * *

A swing along the old Post road reveals rare bargains in roadside dinners this summer. In the array were the "depression huts," featuring a nickel-in-the-slot and 50-cent dinner dances. There were three-cent hot-dog stands, too, and lemonade at two cents a glass.

Incidentally, an innovation on the penthouse ledges and Long Island estates was the hot-dog wagon, slightly glorified, and rolled about by the host. The proceeds were contributed to charity. Such wagons were on sale in smart specialty shops along Madison avenue. O, yes, in penthouses, a servant is "a house boy."

A Manhattan wag in London recently spent a lonely evening waiting for a guest, lost in a fog or something, for a dinner at Claridge's. Thumbing idly through a phone book he came upon this entry: King George V, 32 Manor road, Wallingtn 2162. He called the number. After a long wait there was a knock at his door. A grand llama in high plush hat and caparisoned in gold rope was there with a notebook and looking very official. He wanted to know the why of the call. Flustered, the New Yorker pleaded a sudden curiosity. And then, the story goes, in enormous pique, put in a trans-Atlantic call for the White House, asked to talk to President Hoover and did. Out more than a sum of $100, he still think's he's even.

-:- LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

"I can't understand my 18-year-old daughter," she sighs.

Sounds familiar; doesn't it?

"No, it isn't a 'flaming youth' problem," she goes on, "She isn't really wild, but she has such a hard way that I wonder if strangers realize that. She doesn't care for any of the things which I cared for as a girl. She's everything I was taught not to be.

"That sounds terribly 'old fogey,' doesn't it, Miss Robinson? But I'm only 40, and I pride myself that I have kept up with the times; yet my daughter is a riddle to me. There is nothing feminine about her, and she is as worldly wise as her own father.

"She thinks all my ideas about young girls are a joke, and becomes perfectly furious if I try to shield her from things. All her girl friends are like her, too; more like tough young boys than the sweet young women of my youth. I wish someone could tell me what it's all about!"

Forty and 18; only 22 years between your youth and hers.

YET MORE HAS HAPPENED TO THE HUMAN RACE WITHIN THOSE TWENTY-TWO YEARS THAN IN THE PRECEDING TWO HUNDRED.

AND THOSE HAPPENINGS HAVE CAUSED A GREATER GAP BETWEEN YOUR TWO GENERATIONS THAN THERE WAS IN FIVE GENERATIONS BEFORE YOU.

Almost every condition which affects human life and human behavior has been changed since that birthday in 1892. Automobiles, telephones, aeroplanes, apartment houses, moving picture houses, one-piece bathing suits, silk stockings, make-up compacts, marcels, beach pajamas, votes and jobs and professions for women, athletic meets with feminine competitors—all these things, which played little or no part in your youth, were established in the world by the time your daughter came along.

They had altered it, almost beyond recognition. They had changed its whole way of thinking; all its ways of living. They had speeded up its tempo; shifted all its values. They had given it standards and goals, also escapes, of which you never dreamed.

AND AS A RESULT, IT WOULD BE EASIER FOR YOU TO LIVE BY THE RULES WHICH GOVERNED YOUR GREAT-GREAT-GRANDMOTHER'S YOUTH THAN FOR YOUR DAUGHTER TO LIVE BY THE RULES WHICH GOVERNED YOUR YOUTH.

I read an advertisement the other day which should explain your daughter to you. It was released by a famous New York clothing shop and ran, in part, as follows:

"A shop with a staff of prominent girls from 12 leading eastern colleges to advise 'old girls' and freshmen-to-be on what's what in college clothes. A shop where it doesn't cost much to be smooth—where the sweet, simple and girlish is banished, the too 'collegiate' rejected, the expensive-looking shunned.

"Where the sweet, simple and girlish is banished!" That's the attitude you find so mysterious and maddening in your daughter, isn't it, mother of 40?

But why should your daughter be "sweet, simple or girlish?"

Why should your daughter wear ruffles around her shins, when she'll surely be a wash-out if she wears 'em on her brain?

What will it buy her to be "simple," if she needs to know all the tricks and all the answers?

They want to be "smooth;" these modern girls. Smooth and subtle and sinewy as snappy young snakes. That's their ideal. And if you can shake yourself out of the sachet, sister, why not admit that it's a GORGEOUS IDEAL?

You wouldn't object to that ideal in a boy. WHY SHOULD YOU OBJECT TO IT IN A GIRL WHO MUST LIVE THE LIFE OF A BOY?

The Debts and Loans; And Postponed Relief

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

We learn from Washington that members of the cabinet have informed Mr. Hoover and Ogden Mills of the unfavorable reaction to "Professor Clarence Skinner's" (alias Montagu Norman) proposal that the debts of the 14 nations be transferred to the American taxpayers. The implication is that the two members of the administration who are to determine its policy on the debts require admonition; and the fact that they are under no obligation to give heed to the other members of the administration is not encouraging.

But the big news is that "Professor Skinner" was here to talk about the debts; and the certainty is that he did talk about them with representatives of the international bankers and of the administration.

With the light of publicity playing on this little international conspiracy, Mr. Mills says that the debtor nations have not indicated what they will do about the payments due December 15; but he does not say they have not indicated what they would like to do.

In justice to the American people and to the debtors, the time has come for Mr. Hoover to say point blank what he proposes to do about it now; and this to the end that the debt transfer question be taken out of the campaign, and that the debtors may have time to make their arrangements.

Hoover Should Have Met Issue

The question of shifting the debts of several nations to the backs of Americans would not be in the campaign had Mr. Hoover in dictating his platform, included a downright declaration against "cancellation," such as was incorporated in the platform of the Democrats.

That being one of the outstanding questions, it should have been frankly met; and when it was ignored it was reasonable to assume that Mr. Hoover is in sympathy with the plans of the debtor nations and the international bankers.

And when the international bankers and Wall street wheeled into line behind Mr. Hoover and against Roosevelt, the suspicion that Mr. Hoover does sympathize with the transfer scheme grew.

And when Europe manifests such a pronounced partiality to Mr. Hoover in a campaign that is none of Europe's business, the suspicion intensifies.

Walcott Takes Slap At Own Candidate

With Mr. Hoover and Mr. Mills silent, Senator Walcott, of Connecticut, undertakes to put the Administration right in a partisan speech. He shares our own hostility to the transfer of the debts; but the Senator should have made his speech before the platform committee of his party which strangely ignored the question.

He denounces the selfishness of the international bankers; but he does not undertake to explain why they are so deeply interested in the re-election of Mr. Hoover and the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt.

And then he unwittingly takes a back-hand slap at his own candidate and his Administration when, in refering to the enormous private loans at handsome interest made by the international bankers, he said:

"They found they could sell almost any kind of a foreign bond to the unsuspecting people of the United States."

When Senator Walcott said that he almost reiterated the indictment of the administration drawn by Roosevelt at Columbus.

That which is past is water over the dam; but we are interested in what protection, if any, is to be given American investors—"the unsuspecting people of the United States"—in the future.

Mr. Roosevelt at Columbus made the pledge that hereafter the "unsuspecting people of the United States" should be put on their guard with full information regarding foreign securities; and Mr. Snell, speaking for the administration, replies that this is quite impossible.

These conflicting positions, together with the blunt declaration against the transfer of the debts in the Roosevelt platform, and the significant silence in the platform dictated by Ogden Mills at the behest of Mr. Hoover make an issue.

Hoover Callous To Jobless Misery

But, to people of humane instincts, the most damning indictment of the Hoover administration has been its callous indifference to the misery of the unemployed. Mr. Hoover's leadership here has been worse than nil—it has been one of obstruction and misrepresentation.

Not only has Mr. Hoover opposed every effective measure proposed to put men to work—he has, throughout, petulantly protested against representations made to him concerning the vital needs of these millions in distress.

Throughout 1929 the administration juggled figures to make it appear that few were in the streets.

On June 4, 1930, when a committee of the highest type appealed to him for a relief program to prevent suffering and slow starvation during the coming winter, he impatiently protested that the situation was "exaggerated," and, on his responsibility as a public servant and in possession of the facts furnished him by his own subordinates, he contended that the tide of employment had turned upward!

At that very moment the line of the jobless was lengthening at an appalling rate in every industrial community.

On that day, June 4, 1930, he complacently assured a wondering committee of distinguished men and women that they had "come 30 days too late."

And from that hour on, with the Hoover administration making a virtue of his opposition to all measures of relief for the jobless and the hungry, the ranks of the unemployed have been swelling.

Mills Failed to Execute Relief

Through these three black years of human misery Senator Wagner has worked unceasingly for relief measures—both for temporary succor and for permanent protection of the workers against a recurrence of the present tragedy. Last spring public opinion had become so aroused that in the end Mr. Hoover had to agree to at least something.

It was not much. It was pitifully inadequate. But it was better than nothing and all that could escape Mr. Hoover's veto.

And so Congress authorized public construction and the extension of help to prevent starvation in communities unable to find the money, but the administration insisted that even this should depend upon the whim of Ogden Mills.

The result is, nothing has been done. And Mr. Mills announces that he will see what he will do about the first of October. We predict that then, in the midst of a campaign, Mr Mills will announce some public works projects in the hope of getting credit politically for the administration for an act forced upon it by Wagner and Garner.

Who will be playing politics with human misery then?

200,000 Children Now Destitute

Every day and hour of delay is precious time lost; for welfare workers know that the coming winter threatens to be the worst of all. Every day lost in getting men to work and bread to the hungry is cruelty.

It is announced that at this hour more than 200,000 children, boys and girls, are shelterless, jobless and in dire distress—wandering about from place to place. But they are not Belgian children.

The time has come for the Administration to act under the provisions of the Democratic relief measure sponsored by Wagner and Garner. To withhold relief at this juncture and to feed the hungry on misleading Pollyanna bulletins is sheer brutality.

Isn't It So?
